SENATE, BY 47 TO 15, PASSES CANAL BILL

Adds to Radical Amendments by Barring Railroad-Owned Ships and Trust Offenders.

VOTES SPLIT PARTY LINES

Attempts to Reverse Them Fail—House and President Expected to Approve Amended Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—By a nonpartisan vote of 47 to 15 the Senate passed the Panama Canal bill late this afternoon. Besides the routine provisions for the opening of the canal and one-man government of the zone, with free passage for American ships, the Senate in a landslide of radicalism adopted amendments of a far-reaching character with little relevancy to the canal. These amendments, which received some support even from regular Republicans, as well as from the two other factions, will almost certainly pass the House, and the President is expected to sign the bill.

To an extraordinary degree the amendments endow the Inter-State Commerce Commission with the enforcement of the Anti-Trust law as well as of the Inter-State Commerce act. A provision inserted on the motion of Mr. Reed, a Democrat, of Missouri, forbids passage through the canal to any ship owned in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, by any corporation doing business in violation of either of the laws mentioned. And the Inter-State Commerce Commission is directed to make the findings of fact for presentation in court.

Another amendment proposed by Mr. Bourne, an insurgent Republican of Oregon, applies to corporations doing business other than through the canal. If such a corporation owns in whole or in part a water line other than through the canal and might compete with a railroad owned wholly or in part by the same corporation, the commission has authority to force the corporation to divest itself of the water line holdings. Or, instead of this forced sale, the commission may make regulations for the operation of the line under its present ownership. Neither of these alternatives is mandatory, however, as the commission has discretion to decide whether or not the present ownership is to the public detriment.

The one amendment that had the least tendency toward conservatism was offered by Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia barring the canal to railroad-owned ship lines. But this amendment, with the others that accompanied it, was really in substitution for the Senate Committee amendment which, while prohibiting railroad-owned ships generally from the use of the canal, permitted such ships in the foreign trade, not only to go through the canal, but to stop at various coast ports and trade before they set out on their ocean voyage. The milder committee provision was overwhelmingly defeated.

All attempts at reversing any of these votes in the open Senate, after consideration in Committee of the Whole, failed. Efforts to undo yesterday's work in granting free passage to American ships also failed so completely that Mr. Root, after getting a viva-voce vote, did not try to force a roll call. From the beginning to the end it was evident that the Senate was bent on granting free passage to American bottoms. It was equally evident that the Senate was determined that no such benefits should be extended to railroads.

Opinions vary little to-night as to the scope of to-day's amendments. The consensus of opinion is that the Inter-State Commerce Commission, under these amendments, will become a powerful force in the enforcement of the Anti-Trust act. In carrying out this provision of the law the commission's findings by fact will, of course, have to run the gantlet of a court's decree, just as all penalties and orders under the anti-trust law are now enforced by the courts. But the commission, with its great machinery and large experience, will be turned partly into this new channel, and anti-trust prosecutions will not hereafter rest entirely with the Department of Justice, with its direct responsibility to the President.

So sweeping are the amendments to the Panama Canal bill that fifteen Senators—two of whom are Democrats—voted against the final passage of the bill. Mr. McCumber, who fought most of the amendments as he fought also the free passage of American ships through the canal, explained that he would rather see the canal fail of operation than have it opened at so enormous a cost to the established systems of the Nation. He then voted against it.

The New England Senators who voted against the measure were Mr. Crane and Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts, (though both of them fought for the favors to American ships contained in the bill,) Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire and Mr. Wetmore of Rhode Island. Mr. Root of New York and Mr. Penrose and Mr. Oliver of Pennsylvania voted with them, as did Mr. Catron and Mr. Fall of New Mexico; Mr. Heyburn of Idaho, Mr. McCumber of North Dakota, and Mr. Sanders of Tennessee—all Republicans. The two Democrats opposing the measure were Mr. Bankhead of Alabama and Mr. Shively of Indiana.

The Reed amendment prohibiting the passage of the canal to ships owned by corporations violating the Inter-State Commerce act or the anti-trust law, received support from a mixed assemblage, unusual even in these unsettled times. Four regulars, ten insurgents, and twenty Democrats pushed the amendment through, while four Democrats, twenty-three regular Republicans, and one insurgent voted against it. The four opposing Democrats were Mr. Bankhead and Mr. Johnston of Alabama, and Mr Fletcher and Mr. Bryan of Florida. The insurgent was Mr. Work of California. The four Republican regulars who supported the amendment were Mr. Brandegee of Connecticut, Mr. Nelson of Minnesota, Mr. Perkins of California, and Mr. Smith of Arizona. The ten insurgents were Mr. Borah of Idaho, Mr. Clapp of Minnesota, Mr. Crawford of South Dakota, Mr. Cummins and Mr. Kenyon of Iowa, Mr. Gronna of North Dakota, Mr. Jones of Washington, Mr. La Follette of Wisconsin, Mr. Poindexter of Washington, and Mr. Townsend of Michigan.

The Bourne amendment in regard to joint ownership of railroads and water lines was supported by thirteen insurgents, seven regulars, and sixteen Democrats, while five Democrats and twenty Republicans voted against it. The seven regulars supporting the measure came from various parts of the country. They were Mr. Fall of New Mexico, Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts, Mr. McLean of Connecticut, Mr. Nelson of Minnesota, Mr. Perkins of California, Mr. Root of New York, and Mr. Smith of Arizona. Three of these later voted against the final passage of the amended bill.

The amendment to admit to United States register American-owned foreign-

$10,000 IN JEWELS STOLEN.

Mount Vernon Has a Series of Thefts of Smaller Amounts.

A series of burglaries attempted in Mount Vernon Thursday night brought to light the fact that $10,000 worth of jewels and family heirlooms were stolen from the residence of F. M. Dunbaugh at 177 Summit Avenue, Chester Hill, Mount Vernon, on July 23. Mr. Dunbaugh has offered $500 for information leading to their recovery. He had taken the jewels out of a safe deposit box on the 23d and placed them in a bag on a dresser in his bedroom when he went down to dinner. When he returned they were gone.

George E. Cutler and hs wife, of 55 Claremont Avenue, Chester Hill, were awakened early yesterday morning by a burglar in their bedroom. He flashed the light of an electric lamp in their faces and covered them with a revolver while he backed into the hallway and escaped. He had taken but fourteen dollars from the bureau.

Early yesterday morning the police discovered that the residence of S. J. Taylor at 652 Cedar Street, Mount Vernon, had been ransacked a few hours before, the thieves gaining entrance by removing a heavy pane of glass from the front door. Mr. Taylor and his family are out of town and it is not known what was stolen.

It was also learned that the home of Wayles B. Bradley, 175 Elm Avenue, Chester Hill, was robbed Tuesday night. It is believed that a quantity of silverware was taken. Mrs. Bradley put her jewels in safe deposit before the family left for the Summer. A neighbor said she saw a large touring car standing in front of the Bradley residence on Tuesday night.

Burglars also entered the home of Robert Herbst, 2 Claremont Avenue, Chester Hill, about eleven o'clock Thursday night, but were frightened away by Mr. Herbst, who heard them and turned on the electric lights. It is reported that an attempt was made by two men to enter a house on Archer Avenue, Chester Hill, Thursday night, half an hour after the attempt at the Herbst residence, but neighbors chased them away.

PATROLMAN A PEACEMAKER.

Assigned to Reconcile Husband and Wife, He Gives His Recipe.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 9.—Patrick J. Egan, a patrolman of the Laclede Avenue Station, who was appointed Thursday by Judge Karl Kimmel to supervise the domestic affairs of Elmer Quan and his wife, Etta, has already established contentment and optimism.

At his first visit Egan gave Mrs. Quan her first lesson on "getting along" with her husband. After questioning her closely on her attitude toward her husband and his treatment of her he set down a list of principles for Mrs. Quan's guidance. Some of Mr. Egan's precepts were:

Don't remonstrate with your husband when he has been drinking. Wait until next morning, then give him a cup of coffee for his headache Afterward lead him into the parlor, put your arms about him and give him a lecture. It will have more weight with him than any number of quarrels.

If he has to drink let him have it at home.

There is nothing like children to bind husband and wife together.

Don't annoy a man by talking to him in the mornings or when he feels bad.

Avoid mothers-in-law. Don't let them live with you or interfere in your affairs.

If you must have your own way, do not let your husband know you are trying to boss him. Have your own way by letting him think he is having his.

Don't be jealous or give your husband cause for jealousy.

When your husband is in a bad humor, be in a good humor. It may be difficult, but it will pay.

"Peacemaker" Egan admitted that some of these precepts were not original with him.

BIRDS FAVOR THE COLONEL.

He Can Have Fishes' Votes—Ex-Judge Watson Calls Him a Zoroaster.

From revelations made yesterday by ex-Judge William Watson of Brooklyn, it appeared to politicians of that borough that the people—both common and preferred—had been worrying along in ignorance as to the full greatness of Col. Roosevelt. Returning from the Bull Moose convention in Chicago, Judge Watson laid bare the hidden truth.

"Roosevelt," the Judge confided to a group of friends at the Borough Hall," is a Moses, a Mohammed, and a Zoroaster leading us into new fields of righteousness."

Some of the Brooklyn politicians addressed had heard of Moses and Mohammed, but all seemed in the dark as to Zoroaster. Pityingly the Judge gave them light, telling them that Zoroaster was a Persian prophet of renown.

"That man Roosevelt," he added rapturously, "grows on me, and grows and grows and grows. Everybody is with us. Even the little birds in the trees, the animals in the forest, the fishes in the brook. It is one perfect song of love and good feeling toward all."

The Judge took leave of his audience without making known to them the plans of the Roosevelt campaigners for getting out the avian, faunal, and piscatorial vote.

RESCUE GIRL FROM HERMIT.

Miss Wyman Found on the Desert Through Telegram from Her Mother.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN BERNARDO, Cal., Aug. 9.—Through a telegram sent on Tuesday by Mrs. Alice Wyman of Minneapolis to Chief of Police Sebastian of Los Angeles, the former's daughter, Miss Bessie Wyman, 23, was rescued this morning by Deputy Sheriff Edward Harris from Mike O'Malley's cabin on the desert at Kramer.

O'Malley is a hermit. For over three years he has held the young woman. The first known of her plight by relatives was a letter scrawled hurriedly on a piece of wrapping paper by Miss Wyman and sent to her mother. On receiving this letter, which described alleged cruelties to which the young woman declared she had been subjected, Mrs. Wyman wired to the Los Angeles police.

The Chief sent the telegram to Sheriff Ralph here, and he rushed it out to his Deputy, Edward Harris, at Barstow. Harris found the woman a mere skeleton in the hermit's shack. Her body showed unmistakable signs of severe treatment. The woman declared O'Malley had kept her a prisoner. O'Malley said the woman should not take an article with her which he had bought. "She'll go in her bare feet," he said, and ordered her to remove her shoes, but Harris interferred and brought her to this city.

HELD AS IMPORTER OF CONTRACT LABOR

F. Vernon Willey, Treasurer of Woolen Mills in Barre, Mass., Accused of Conspiracy.

IS ARRESTED IN COURT ROOM

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—As he was about to leave the courtroom after testifying in the case of Arthur Saville, an Englishman who is charged with having imported British subjects into this country to work in the woolen mills at South Barre in violation of the alien contract labor law, F. Vernon Willey, Treasurer of the Barre Wool Combing Company, and a member of Francis Willey & Co. of Bradford, England, one of the largest wool manufacturing firms in England and America, and son of the senior member, was arrested to-day, charged with having conspired on July 25 with Saville to import alien laborers into this country from England.

In pursuance of this conspiracy it is alleged Saville went to Montreal and assisted three British subjects, George O'Neil, James Kehoe, and Frederick Johnston, to land, and brought them from Canada into the United States. The Government alleges that F. Vernon Willey had full knowledge that the aliens were being unlawfully imported, and that Saville was acting as agent for the firm of Francis Willey & Co.

Willey declined to plead, saying that he would leave all those details to his counsel. He was allowed to go on his personal recognizance until morning, when he will, it was agreed, furnish $7,000 bail.

During his examination before Commissioner Grinnell Willey was somewhat loquacious and self-assertive. It is said that he came from England a month ago and took quarters for the Summer on the fashionable North Shore.

When asked by Assistant District Attorney Garland as to his home, he replied:

"Now, really, I have no particular home; I'm on the move all the time."

He said he was a member of the firm of Francis Willey & Co. of America and England, and that his father was a large stockholder, although to what amount he could not say, in the Barre Wool Combing Company. The witness himself held one share of stock in the company and was its Treasurer.

Asked whether he had been notified by his father by cable that Saville was coming to America, he said he could not remember, but later he corrected this by saying that he heard in some way that Saville was coming, but could not remember who gave him the information.

Mr. Garland asked the witness if he had had any conversation with Saville after he arrived here, and he said he had had two or three, one at his office in Summer Street, but he could not remember that either of them had any reference to the importation of aliens to work for the Barre Wool Combing Company.

In regard to the supplying of funds for the purpose of giving bonds for twenty-three immigrants detained by the immigration authorities, he said he did not know about it himself, but approved of it, because he regarded it as the duty of one British subject to stand by and support another when in difficulties.

A message which was cabled from Boston July 12 to the firm at Bradford was shown to the witness, but he denied any knowledge of its having been sent. The Government alleged that this message was sent by the Willey firm here, but the stenographer in the firm's Boston office testified that she had no knowledge of such a message. The message, which was partly in code, referred to work people, as did a message from Francis Willey & Co. at Bradford on July 30, which was produced in court by Manager Boothby of the Western Union. The case will go on to-morrow.

SUES ARTIST FOR DIVORCE.

Mrs. Henry Hutt Charges Desertion in Action at Reno.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., Aug. 9.—Divorce proceedings were begun this afternoon by Mrs. Edna G. Hutt against Henry Hutt, a New York artist. The complaint only sets forth a charge of desertion, alleged to have occurred in New York in 1910, seven years after they were married. Mrs. Hutt also requests the court of give her the custody of their eight-year-old child, who is with her in Reno.

It is stated upon apparently good authority that all property settlements have been made and that the husband will not make a contest, but he will be represented by counsel.

When Henry Hutt was gaining fame as an artist, Mrs. Hutt was the model whose pretty face and graceful form were the incentive for some of the artist's best work. Mrs. Hutt came here with Mrs. Mechling of New York, who filed her suit for divorce last week.

Y. M. C. A. MAN ARRESTED.

Leonard Frost, a Young Englishman, Accused of Petty Larceny.

Leonard Frost, a young draughtsman, living at the Young Men's Christian Association in West Twenty-third Street, was arrested there last evening on a petty larceny charge. The arrest was made by Detective William Martens on a warrant issued by Magistrate McQuade in the Jefferson Market Court, and the young man was taken to the West Side Court.

It is understood that the members of the association have complained of some small thefts from their clothing in the gymnasium, and that the complainant against Frost was John Kerrigna, the athletic instructor. Frost is an Englishman who first registered at the Young Men's Christian Association several weeks ago.

CONFESSES HE FIRED THIRTY BUILDINGS

Firebug in Greenfield, Mass., Jail Says He Caused Reign of Terror in Waterbury.

"LIKES TO SEE THINGS BURN"

Property in Connecticut and Elsewhere He Damaged Estimated at $1,000,000—In Jail for Theft.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENFIELD, Mass., Aug. 9.—Bernard C. Murray of Hartford, Conn., confessed to Chief of Police Thomas Manning to-day, in the presence of witnesses, that he burned the Waterbury (Conn.) City Hall and was responsible for the series of fires which recently terrorized that city; that he was the incendiary who set fire to the Wilson House in North Adams, and that he started a dozen fires in Springfield one afternoon last month and is wanted in Greenfield and Turner's Falls.

Murray is 24 years old. He says he is the victim of an irresistible impulse. He is the son of a former Hartford Fire Commissioner. Murray has posed as a fire hero on several occasions.

Among the fires which Chief Manning says Murray admits having started are:

April 19, Waterbury, Conn., City Hall and Chelsea Hotel; May 23, Greenfield, Mass., Taylor Block and Hollister House; June 1, Turners Falls, Mass., Grand Trunk Hotel and Allen Block; June 8, Greenfield, Mass., Central House; June 22, Turners Falls, Vladish Hotel and Bartlett Block; July 2, North Adams, Mass., Wilson House; July 5, and within a few days after that, eighteen fires in and about Springfield.

Murray said, in explanation of the acts to which he confessed: "I could not resist an impulse to do it, although I realized the consequences."

The lives of hundreds of people, hotel guests, were placed in jeopardy by the fires which Murray declares he started, and the total property loss is estimated by local officials at about $1,000,000. In most cases his confession includes the setting of two fires at the same time.

According to Chief Manning he has received within the last two days independent information placing Murray in the vicinity of the scenes of the more important fires at the time they were started.

Murray, who was an employe of hotels and traveled extensively, changing his place of occupation frequently, declares he had set thirty fires in Connecticut and Massachusetts recently.

His confession, which was made at the Franklin County jail here, developed from his arrest on a charge of larceny of a gold watch and $50 on July 13 from a guest at a hotel here. He is now serving a sentence of thirty days on this charge, to which he has confessed.

Descriptions of him published in connection with this affair led several persons who were interested in property destroyed in fires to identify him as the man they thought responsible. Within the past two days Murray and Mrs. W. J. Russell of Waterbury, Conn., and other persons have told the police that they believed Murray was in Waterbury at the time of the fires there. Murray explained that he "liked to see things burn."

"I just had to do it," he added.

Murray said that he would go to the second or third floor of a hotel, open a closet, and light anything inflammable that might be inside, such as a mop, a dust rag, broom, or bed linen. After closing the door he would escape from the building and generally go to another hotel or building across the street or near by and do the same thing there, so that the two fires might be burning at the same time.

After setting fire to the Wilson House, in North Adams, Murray said he ran from the building and started another blaze, from which he returned to the Wilson House. Then he set to work with others and assisted in removing furniture and other contents of the hotel.

The town of Waterbury was stirred on April 22 last, when twelve fires, each of incendiary origin, occurred there between 1:55 o'clock in the afternoon and 9:35 at night. The old City Hall, which had recently been renovated at a cost of $50,000, was destroyed. As fire followed fire the excitement became great, and crowds thronged the streets in such numbers that three companies of the State Militia were called out to keep citizens from the danger zone. Many business houses closed as householders hastened home to guard their homes.

The first fire, for which an alarm could be sent in in the regular way, was in the janitor's closet on the top floor of the Platt Building, 95 Bank Street, a four-story brick building. It was put out with about $50 damage. The second alarm, at 2:30, came from the Hudson Building, a three-story frame building at 15 West Main Street. Here, too, the blaze was in a closet, and it was put out with slight damage. The firemen were still at work on this fire when a call came from the St. Patrick Building, owned by the Church of the Immaculate Conception. This fire started in the basement and was put out after $50 damage had been done.

At 3:58 o'clock fire broke out in the three-story frame tenement in Phoenix Avenue, opposite Jacques Theatre. The damage done amounted to $120. There came near being a serious stampede in the theatre, where the cry of fire was raised. The tired firemen were next sent hurrying to the Kilbridge Building, at South Elm and East Main Streets. There was but little damage done, and they were turning homeward when came the call to the City Hall, the most serious of the day's fires. Of the old building only the walls were left standing, and with it went the Police Headquarters, with its cells, and the Fire Department Headquarters, and the entire alarm system of the city was put out of business. There was no rest for the firemen, however, for there were calls to two more fires.

The next day Waterbury received another scare when three fires were started. All were put out before they caused material damage. In every case oil-soaked rags were found, showing that an incendiary had been at work.

The greatest monetary loss was caused by the Wilson House fire in North Adams, where several business blocks were also burned with a total loss of $500,000, but the most spectacular of the fires was in Waterbury, Conn., causing damage estimated at $200,000.

Many lives were endangered in the Wilson House fire and several persons had narrow escapes. Murray says that he first started a blaze in the basement of the hotel, then ran to another room and started another, returning to assist in quenching the first fire. Both fires got beyond control and the hotel was wrapped in flames, while Murray says he assisted, saving what he could of the hotel furniture.

WILSON'S $2,000,000 WANTED IN CHANGE

He Outlines Small-Contribution Campaign on Auto Ride with McCombs in Park.

TREASURER ARRIVES MONDAY

As for Corporation Gifts, There's Not "the Least Danger" of Getting Any, Says the Governor.

With the driveways of Central Park as a setting and two men in an automobile as the principals, plans were perfected between sunset and dark last night for the raising of $2,000,000 in small change for the use and benefit of Gov. Woodrow Wilson's campaign for the Presidency.

A cardinal point in the plan is that no corporation money will be sought for and no corporation money with the slightest string attached will be accepted.

The two men in the automobile which sped through the eastern driveway of Central Park while they talked over the money-getting campaign that is to open in earnest with the arrival of Rolla Wells, the campaign Treasurer, from St. Louis on Monday morning, were Gov. Wilson himself and Col. William F. McCombs, Chairman of his Campaign Committee. The presence of Gov. Wilson at the final conference on financial matters meant merely that, as the personal responsibility was his, so, too, was to be the consideration of the financial arrangements.

Rolla Wells will take charge as Treasurer to carry out the Governor's wishes at 9 o'clock Monday morning. At the same time Henry Morgenthau, Chairman of the Finance Committee, which very largely will raise the funds that Treasurer Wells will take care of, will throw open his desk in the Wilson headquarters, and will remain on duty for nine hours a day six days a week until the November ballots are all counted.

Gov. Wilson interrupted last night his conference awheel with Chairman McCombs long enough to meet the colony of Sea Girt reporters who had followed him to New York and last night followed him back to Sea Girt. The conference with the reporters was held in a room at the Hotel St. Regis, following a previous arrangement made with Gov. Wilson.

"How about money matters?" Gov. Wilson was asked.

"A telegram has been received," the Governor replied, "stating that Rolla Wells will be here Monday, and Chairman McCombs has informed me he will open his desk and headquarters on Monday morning, and will be prepared to give his time to the campaign for the rest of the season."

A question was asked about corporation contributions.

"Oh, but we have received no money whatever from corporations," said Gov. Wilson.

The next question brought out an answer in the Governor's characteristically humorous mood.

"Do you expect to be burdened with any big contributions from corporations?"

"Oh, there's not the least danger," Gov. Wilson replied.

The Plan to Raise $2,000,000.

The work of getting the money from the people in small bits was taken up yesterday in earnest by members of Col. Robert L. Ewing's committee on newspaper contribution funds. L. T. Russell, an editor from New Jersey, who had asked each of his readers to figure out his pro rata share of a $2,000,000 fund and send in the amount he thought was right, was summoned from his editorial office to write out for the benefit of the Campaign Committee his plan of action. Under it, in Union County, of which his newspaper, The Elizabeth Times, is the Democratic organ, Mr. Russell had been able to raise $500 a week for the campaign fund for the last several weeks.

The editor's plan was very simple. He merely published the amount needed for the Nation, the voting population of the Nation, the voting population of Union County, the Democratic voting population of the county, and the percentage of Democrats who read the paper. That set each man to doing a sum in figures, and the answers that arrived varied from 30 cents to $1 each as the proper sum to give.

Mr. Russell sent out several thousand letters yesterday to the editors of other country newspapers, telling them how fine the plan had worked in his county and urging them to give it a trial. The letters were authorized by Col. Ewing, and are expected to bring good results.

Col. Ewing himself, on his own newspaper, The New Orleans States, has advocated a plan by which $3,700 has been raised in nickels and dimes and quarters. He raised the banner total of all the Southern newspapers for the Bryan campaign fund, and he hopes to see the plan followed in the last Bryan battle extend this season from the South, until it covers the entire country. It is very similar to the plan followed by Mr. Russell in New Jersey.

To supplement the plan of having funds for the Wilson campaign raised through the Democratic newspapers of the country, Chairman Morgenthau of the Finance Committee addressed yesterday several hundred letters to prominent Democrats throughout the United States, calling upon them for volunteer work. His plan is to have a Finance Committee in every State, manned by volunteer workers, who will go out among the people and raise funds for the expenses of the next few months.

Gov. Wilson concluded last night the task of sitting for his portrait on which he has been engaged since coming here on Thursday morning. The completed sketch in the studio of Seymour Thomas is a three-quarter length portrait. Not all the details have been finished, but Gov. Wilson will not be required to give any more sittings.

Spends Day in Studio.

The Governor remained at Mr. Thomas's studio from 9:50 o'clock yesterday morning until 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, taking lunch in the studio with his artist host. In a stroll down Fifth Avenue from the University Club yesterday morning, Gov. Wilson had the novel experience for him of being recognised and stopped on the street by a real friend, who happened to pick him out in the crowd. The friend was William B. Hornblower and he strolled for several blocks with the Governor after greeting him. With that exception Gov. Wilson managed to move about the city, in two strolls on Fifth Avenue and a street car ride up Sixth Avenue, unrecognized.

He left for Sea Girt last night on the last train that would get him there, his purpose being to be on hand this morning to greet a number of political callers, including a Brooklyn delegation, whose members wish to have him open the New York campaign with a speech in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn.

Gov. Wilson would not say last night whether or not he would accept the speaking invitation. So far he has given no definite answer to any request for a speech.

The only condition that Mayor Fitzgerald imposed was that the race should be called at 4 o'clock.

BURDEN DESERTS NEWPORT.

Will Build Show Place in California Like Home of Henry E. Huntington.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 9.—I. Townsend Burden of New York, who is visiting Southern California with his wife and her father, Dennis Sheedy of Denver, renounced Newport and Bar Harbor today and declared he would build a Winter home here like those of Henry E. Huntington and William Howard Graham. Mr. Burden said:

"Eastern people are beginning to recognize that California furnishes the best natural setting for a superb home of any place in the world. The fashionable cities of the East, as Newport and Bar Harbor, have become so overcrowded and overrun with people of every class that the better class of folk are desirous of making some other place their headquarters."

QUADRUPLETS ALL THRIVING.

Began Crying Yesterday and Physicians Believe They Will Live.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Physicians regard as remarkable the vitality shown by quadruplets who completed their fourth day of life. They are all girls and were born to Mrs. F. H. Seely at Dorchester Hospital on Monday night. Until to-day they caused some worry by not crying, but they made up to-day for their previous silence by using their lungs lustily. Miss Flora Welch, matron of the hospital, said this afternoon:

"There is no record of any quadruplets ever living so long as these have, and they're on their fourth day and thriving. That in itself is quite unprecedented. The mother is also doing well."

FOUR IN AUTO HURT BY CAR.

One Man Loses Hand and Has Skull Fractured in Williamsburg.

John Martin of 153 Wythe Avenue, Williamsburg, had his left hand cut off and his skull fractured yesterday when the automobile in which he and three other men were riding along Rodney Street was struck by a Franklin Avenue trolley car speeding on its way to the Williamsburg Bridge. The automobile, which had just left the garage for a try-out, was reduced to splinters and the four occupants were pinned under the wreckage, while the trolley's passengers were greatly jolted by the impact.

The other three men, who were removed with Martin to the Williamsburg Hospital suffering many cuts and bruises, were Eric Samuelson of 121 Hull Street, James Kelly of 746 Herkimer Street, and Julius Silke of 107 Engert Avenue.

UNDER WHITMAN'S WINDOWS

A Three-Card-Monte Game Interrupts the Morning Peace.

Almost within shadow of the home of District Attorney Whitman, in Madison Avenue, so close that the words of the players must have floated in through his windows, a three-card-monte game was in progress early yesterday morning when Mr Whitman was preparing to go to his office.

One youth held a newspaper for a table and another held up two red queens and a nine of clubs, slid his hands back and forth, and finally deposited the cards on the newspaper table, with the urgent request to the crowd to make money rapidly by selecting the black card.

The game, which, it is said, is operated quite frequently in the early morning hours, is run by a gang of pickpockets, whose game is generally a cover to collect a crowd, from which more can be taken by skillful fingers than might fall to the gang on the luck of the cards.

MRS. CLOCK AND BABY DROWN

Mother Jumps Overboard to Save Son, Who Had Fallen from Yacht.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Mrs. Edward Clock of Passaic, N. J., lost her life in a brave but unsuccessful effort to save the life of her 2-year-old son in the harbor here this evening. Mr. Clock, an adjuster for the Fidelity Casualty Company of New York, came here last Tuesday with his family on the yacht Atlantic and anchored at the breakwall off the foot of Porter Avenue.

Mrs. Clock and the boy were alone on the boat this evening when the little fellow tripped on a rope and fell overboard. Mrs. Clock jumped into the water, but, hampered by her clothing, she was unable to rescue the boy. Men at the Buffalo Yacht Club heard the woman's cries and were alongside the Atlantic in a few minutes. Mrs. Clock was floating near the surface. All efforts to revive her were futile. The body of the boy was recovered an hour later.

'LIAR!' SHOUTS GOV. BLEASE

Denies That Judge Sease Was Mixed Up in $5,000 Bribery.

Special to The New York Times.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Aug. 9.—In reply to a charge that W. J. Massee of Macon, a millionaire, who was arrested here on a Tennessee warrant recently, had paid $5,000 to have the case sent to Judge Thomas S. Sease so that Massee could be turned loose, Gov. Cole L. Blease in a campaign speech to an audience of 4,000 here to-day said the author of the story was "as dirty and black-hearted a liar as ever disgraced a Christian State."

Gov. Blease told of the circumstances which led him to refer the case to Judge Sease, and asked Harry S. Stokes, a Tennessee attorney, who had requested him to extradite Massee, to corroborate what he said. Stokes answered that the Governor's account was correct.

Without directly declaring that Judge Sease was accused of receiving a share of the alleged bribe, the Governor intimated as much by saying "some cowardly scoundrel is trying to hurt me and Judge Sease by telling such a lie as no gentleman would let emanate from his mouth." The Governor defended the probity of Judge Sease.

BECKER TOOK HART TO ROSE IN HIDING

Personally Escorted His Lawyer and a Notary to the Pollok Home on July 17.

ROSE TALKED OF SURRENDER

Notary Heard Him Say He Was Willing to Go Before District Attorney at Once.

SULLIVAN WITH ASSASSINS

Bent Over Rosenthal, Said "He's Dead, All Right," and Rode Off in the Gray Auto.

BELIEVES SLAYERS ARE HERE

Whitman Suspects They Are Being "Protected" from Arrest—Becker Says He Has Nothing to Confess.

With no proceedings before the Grand Jury to occupy his time, District Attorney Whitman devoted yesterday to knitting more closely together the various skeins of evidence which have come to him in his investigation of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, and to weaving in other new strands which strengthen the mesh in which he is entangling Lieut. Charles Becker.

Most important of these new strands was one showing that Becker had not directed his lawyer, John W. Hart, to the home of Harry Pollok, where Rose was in hiding for the good reason that he escorted him there personally on the evening of the day following the slaying of Rosenthal. Richard G. Barter, a notary attached to the real estate office of Duff & Brown at 1,715 Amsterdam Avenue, called on Mr. Whitman yesterday, and was with him for some time. Barter, it was learned, was the notary before whom "Billiard Ball" Jack Rose swore to an affidavit that Harry Pollok, and not Becker, as had been charged, had advanced the $1,500 which he provided for Rosenthal. It was Becker who retained Barter's services, and who, with Hart, escorted him to Pollok's home in a taxicab. Rose, even then, was being sought by the police.

But the failure of Becker to cause the immediate arrest of Rose excited no surprise in the mind of the District Attorney, who, as a close friend declared yesterday, believed that no real effort had been made to capture either "Gyp the Blood" or "Lefty Louie," and who drew from this very belief the inference that these men, and these men alone, were the actual slayers of Rosenthal, the men who fired the shots.

Believes Slayers Are "Protected."

Mr. Whitman will not discuss his beliefs and theories, but it is known that he believes that protection was promised to the actual slayers of Rosenthal, and that they are now receiving it in their immunity from arrest. It is known also that he believes the men he so much wants have never left the city, and that were the police to desire their capture as much as he does they could be arrested within a very few hours.

If Mr. Whitman can bring it about, this is just what will happen, for it is known that his one desire now is to capture and punish the murderers of the gambler. Any investigation of conditions in the Police Department of graft and the intimate connection of some branches of the force with the gambling fraternity, may wait until he has completed so far as he may his investigation of the death of Rosenthal.

That is paramount in Mr. Whitman's mind, and he views the Aldermanic investigation and the calls for mass meetings of citizens as just so many devices to befog the mind of the public and to conceal beneath their glamour the main issue—the arrest and punishment of Rosenthal's murderers. It is known that the District Attorney believes in the integrity and singleness of purpose of the persons behind these extraneous meetings and investigations, but it is known, too, that he feels them all to be the natural outgrowth of the consistent attitude of a high city official always to decry the least reflection on the municipality.

Verifies 'Phone Calls for Becker.

But though it is known that Mr. Whitman feels he has not been receiving the assistance he had a right to expect in running down the slayers of Rosenthal, he nevertheless is continuing his work wherever he finds opportunity. Yesterday he came into possession of a complete record of telephone calls which had been made from the Pollok apartment from last June 27 to July 26. The records show five or six instances where a call was made from the Pollok home to the apartment of Lieut. Becker. These calls were made while Rose was an inmate of Pollok's home.

It also developed yesterday that the District Attorney has in Giovanni Stanish a witness of more than ordinary importance. This man, it became known, saw Jack Sullivan at the scene of the murder and heard him say to the assassins, after a hasty glance at Rosenthal as he lay on the sidewalk outside the Hotel Metropole: "He's dead, all right."

Stanish has been in communication with Mr. Whitman for the last week or ten days. His identity was kept a secret, for fear the police might get at him. It was he, however, and not Kreese, the waiter, who actually identified Jack Sullivan in Coroner Feinberg's court, when that young man suddenly found his status changed from that of a material witness out on bail to that of a prisoner without bail on the charge of murder.

To Investigate Miss Lund's Discharge

Mr. Whitman was much disturbed yesterday by the knowledge that Miss Harriet Lund, the girl cashier of a restaurant in Forty-second Street, had lost her place after appearing before him as a voluntary witness to tell of having overheard a conversation between three men outside the restaurant on the morning of the shooting. These three are believed to have been Becker, Rose, and "Bridgey" Webber.

Some effort will be made by members of the District Attorney's staff to find a new place for the girl. Meantime the manager of the restaurant where she was employed will be called before the Grand Jury to explain just why Miss Lund's services came suddenly to be no longer required.

The dismissal of Miss Lund is known to have strengthened Mr. Whitman in the belief that attempts have been made to thwart him on every side, and, it is believed, have done much to persuade him that whatever results he may obtain in the investigation of Rosenthal's death he must obtain for himself.

No word came yesterday from Jack Sullivan which indicated that the former newsboy was on the point of breaking down and adding his confession to that of Rose, Webber, and Vallon, and no such word came from the cell in the Tombs which Lieut. Becker occupies.

It is known that it is the belief of the District Attorney, if not his hope, that in time both Becker and Sullivan will see the advantage of entering into the confidence of the District Attorney, though not even the most sanguine member of the District Attorney's staff believes that Becker ever will be induced to reveal more than his connection with the gambling graft—certainly not whatever connection he may have had with the Rosenthal murder.

It is believed, however, that Becker is ready now to tell considerable of his connection with the gambling world, and that only outside advice has prevented him from doing so already. How much longer he will be amenable to these influences is a problem which is interesting the District Attorney's office.

There is one important piece of information the District Attorney's office believes Becker could divulge. That is the whereabouts of "Lefty Louie," "Gyp the Blood" and Sam Schepps.

It is said by persons familiar with the District Attorney's office that there is a belief current there that Becker has been and is in constant communication with all three of the missing men. It is known that Becker is visited daily by his wife and on the assumption that all the charges made against the police lieutenant by Rose, Webber and Vallon are true, it requires no great stretch of the imagination to see him, even from his cell, directing the movements of the men who are said to have been his tools. If this be true, it is the one piece of information which Becker could reveal that is desired above all others by Mr. Whitman.

So far as the work of W. J. Burns is concerned, it can be said that Mr. Whitman considers it negligible. Burns and his men have been on the case for some time, and so far, according to the reports in and around the District Attorney's office, they have failed to unearth a single item of interest to Mr. Whitman. They were credited with having verified the telephone call which Rose says he made to Becker's home immediately after the murder, advising him that Rosenthal was dead, and declaring that it was awful. It is known that this important bit of corroborative evidence is not in the hands of the District Attorney, and, so far as Mr. Whitman is concerned, he has only the word of Rose that the call was ever made.

BECKER TOOK HART TO ROSE.

The Two Picked Up a Notary on the Way, Who Tells What Happened.

For the first time since District Attorney Whitman undertook his investigation into the murder of Herman Rosenthal information reached him yesterday which accounted for the movements of Lieut. Charles Becker for a part of the time, at least, of the evening of the day following the shooting of Rosenthal. It showed that the Police Lieutenant, though knowing that "Billiard Ball" Jack Rose was wanted by the police because of the revelations of William Shapiro and Louis Libby, the operator and owner of the gray murder car, nevertheless actually conducted his lawyer, John W. Hart, directly to the apartments of Harry Pollok, where Rose was in hiding, and having conducted his attorney there, left immediately, with no offer to perform the duty of every policeman—to arrest Rose.

This information was conveyed to Mr. Whitman in the course of a long conference with Richard G. Barter, a notary, for whom search was made on Thursday, but whose identity had not then been revealed. Mr. Barter was in Mr. Whitman's office for some time, and just what he told the District Attorney the latter refused to say.

It is known, however, that he could have told him how he was loafing in a cigar store in Broadway, at 157th Street, about 10:30 o'clock on the evening of July 17 last, the day after Rosenthal was killed, and of how a taxicab drove up to the door, and of how two men alighted from it and entered the cigar store.

Of the clerk they inquired if he knew the address of a notary near by, and the clerk, a friend of Barter's, immediately introduced him. Barter, it seemed, would do, and the men invited him to accompany them in their taxicab, which had waited at the curb.

The men were Lieut. Charles Becker and his lawyer, John W. Hart. Barter did not know them then, but he knows them now. In the cab they went directly to the home of Harry Pollok, in the Riviera, at 157th Street and Riverside Drive.

Becker did not alight from the cab, but, telling Barter to accompany him, Hart ascended to the Pollok apartment. The door was opened by Mrs. Pollok, and when Hart asked for Rose, Mrs. Pollok said she was sorry, but Rose did not care to receive visitors and she could not admit them.

Then Barter went on to tell how Hart drew Mrs. Pollok to one side and whispered in her ear. The words which Barter could not hear proved to be an "open sesame," however, for Mrs. Pollok immediately ushered them inside the flat and into the presence of Jack Rose.

It was scarcely more than 10:30 o'clock when Hart and Barter reached the Pollok apartment. They remained there until 12:30. For much of that time Rose and Hart conversed in tones too low for Barter to overhear, though when they first entered he heard Rose declare to Hart that he would go to the District Attorney's office the next day "if I had better do so."

Hart's reply was too low for Barter to hear, and, wishing to make the conversation more general, Barter introduced himself into it gracefully with the remark:

"What an awful murder that was yesterday!"

The notary was overcome with confusion at the attitude with which his remark was received. Neither Rose nor Hart replied to him, and thereafter Mr. Barter refrained from any unsolicited remarks. When the time came he witnessed an affidavit which Rose made declaring that he had received from Pollok the $1,500 which he had turned over to Rosenthal, and which the gambler had declared came to him from Becker.

Before the affidavit was drawn, however, there was much discussion as to how it should be worded. Rose wanted to attribute the $1,500 to Pollok and to have Pollok make a corroborative affidavit asserting this to be true. Pollok was not at home, however, and after considerable discussion it was decided to take his acceptance to the agreement for granted and to go ahead with Rose's affidavit.

That Pollok never agreed to the proposal and that he never prepared the corroborative affidavit is said to have been part of his testimony before the Grand Jury on Thursday. He is said then to have made a very willing and frank witness, apparently being anxious to answer truthfully every question which was put to him.

But on the night of July 17 both Rose and Hart seemed sure that Pollok would substantiate Rose's affidavit, and it was drawn and signed, after which Barter left the house. He did not see the taxicab in which he had been carried to the Pollok apartment, and since that night has never seen Lieut. Becker.

Barter's information is of importance in that it is the only positive and direct evidence so far adduced to show that Becker knew of Rose's whereabouts from the very day after the murder, and thus throughout the period the police were looking for him until he gave himself up at Police Headquarters.

SAW SULLIVAN WITH SLAYERS.

Witness Stanish Also Identified the Four Assassins.

Little information of value to District Attorney Whitman came out yesterday from the West Side Prison, where "Bridgey" Webber, Jack Rose, Harry Vallon, and Jack Sullivan are confined, except a clue to the possible whereabouts of Sam Schepps, one of the men whom Mr. Whitman is most anxious to hear from in connection with the Rosenthal murder. Rose is credited with having imparted information which, it is said, was considered sufficient to warrant Mr. Whitman in sending Detectives Thomas and Leigh of his office staff to a town about a day's journey from this city.

It is said that Rose has been in communication either with Schepps or with persons who have knowledge of Schepps's whereabouts, and that yesterday he determined to put this information at the disposal of the District Attorney.

Such hopes as Mr. Whitman may have builded on a confession from Jack Sullivan were unfulfilled yesterday, for the ex-newsboy spent a calm day in his cell, and at nightfall had not broken the silence he has maintained since he was locked up.

Herman Reich, a brother of Jack Sullivan, whose real name is Jacob A. Reich, visited him yesterday. On leaving the prison he declared, in answer to a question whether Sullivan would confess:

"That's all bosh. Jack's got nothing to confess."

Sullivan will have much difficulty in making his known movements support his contention that he has nothing to confess. Jack Rose has said that Sullivan was with him directly after the shooting, and that he left Sullivan to telephone the news to Becker. Sullivan has denied this, but Rose is positive in his statement.

Another fact more damaging in its bearing on Sullivan came from Giovanni Stanish, the mysterious witness who appeared before the Grand Jury on Thursday, and it is nothing less than the charge that Sullivan was an eye-witness of the murder and a companion of the actual slayers.

Stanish's name was not introduced into the investigation until he appeared before the Grand Jury, and much speculation immediately arose as to his identity and what information he might have that was of value to Mr. Whitman. Both of these queries received partial answer yesterday.

Stanish, it was learned, is an old friend of an intimate friend of Mr. Whitman. He is an Austrian of good birth and excellent education. At present his occupation in this country has not become public. He chanced to be a witness of the shooting, and soon after it told his friend what he had seen and how he chanced to be in the neighborhood. This friend realized the importance of such information to Mr. Whitman and persuaded Stanish to place himself at Mr. Whitman's disposal.

How closely his identity was guarded is known to those who have followed Mr. Whitman's investigation closely, and who heard never a word of Mr. Stanish until his appearance before the Grand Jury. Just why this secrecy was maintained has not been divulged by Mr. Whitman, but it is understood that he wished Stanish not to be harassed by the police, and that even now his stopping place is being kept secret.

Stanish, however, has played an important though a silent part in the investigation, for it was he who brought about the arrest of Jack Sullivan. Stanish, it was learned yesterday, was standing in a doorway a few yards from the Hotel Metropole, when the murderers collected, and when Herman Rosenthal was called from the dining room to his death. He saw the four men surround the gambler, saw the revolvers drawn, and heard the shots fired. Then he saw the four men step back, and he saw a fifth man lean over the stricken gambler, peer earnestly into his face, and then heard him, straightening up, declare to the waiting gunmen:

"He's dead, all right."

Then the four gunmen and the fifth man ran toward the waiting gray automobile. The four men sprang aboard and the fifth man made as if to join them. He apparently changed his mind just as the automobile started, dropped from it, and disappeared around the corner.

What the police did after the shooting, according to Stanish, amounted to just nothing. By the time the taxicab bearing the three policemen started in pursuit, the gray murder car was out of sight, and prior to its departure no attempt had been made to capture the slayers, though Policeman William File, who was first brought up on charges and then exonerated, according to Stanish, simply stood in the door of the Metropole waving his revolver about his head and shouting:

"Show me the murderers! Where are they?"

Stanish never had seen the slayers nor the fifth man before, but so good was his memory that when he told his story to Mr. Whitman he gave descriptions of all five that tallied exactly with Jack Sullivan, "Dago Frank" Cirosici, "Whitey" Lewis, "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, and "Gyp the Blood" Horowitz. So remarkable was his description that the pictures of the last four of these men were instantly mingled with a number of other Rogues' Gallery photographs, and Stanish was asked to pick out the men he had described.

Without hesitation he selected the pictures of Lewis and Cirocisi. Each had been placed among a different lot of pictures, so that Stanish had many photographs to choose from. Then the picture of "Lefty Louie" was put with a new lot of photographs, and this time Mr. Stanish hesitated. He received no suggestion, no aid from outside sources, however, and presently he settled on "Lefty Louie's" picture as that of one of the men he had seen at the murder. He selected the picture of "Gyp the Blood" after a similar momentary hesitation, but once having picked on it he was certain in his identification.

Stanish saw no picture of Sullivan, but again his description of the man had been so exact that when Webber and Sam Paul were arraigned before Coroner Feinberg on July 26 Stanish was in court, his purpose unknown to all but Mr. Whitman, and it was he, before Louis Krese the waiter, who pointed out Sullivan sitting an interested spectator of the proceedings in the assurance which his freedom under $100 bail lent to him, as the fifth man in the murder party.

When indictments are returned on Tuesday next by the Grand Jury, the name of Jack Sullivan undoubtedly will be included in a blanket indictment charging seven men with murder. These seven, it may be said, will be the four gangsters, two of whom are under arrest, Schepps and Sullivan, and also Lieut. Becker.

ONE BECKER BANK ACCOUNT.

He and His Wife Put $3,000 in West Side Bank in Eight Months.

Within the last eight months Lieut. Charles Becker, who is under indictment for complicity in the murder of Herman Rosenthal, deposited $3,000 in the West Side Savings Bank, at 110 Sixth Avenue. The money was deposited in the joint names of Becker and his wife, and was made up by deposits on four different occasions of $1,500, $1,000, $400, and $100. On July 30, after Becker had been indicted, the entire amount on deposit was withdrawn.

The fact that the limit of individual deposits in a savings bank were made created the impression that other savings banks had been similarly favored and that a search would reveal other accounts. District Attorney Whitman began yesterday a thorough search of all the savings banks in this city and extended his work to take in the New Jersey cities of Newark, Elizabeth, and New Brunswick. Becker's salary as a Police Lieutenant is $2,200 a year, which is $800 less than he deposited in eight months.

Before Becker was arrested and indicted he was asked about his means. He made what appeared at the time to be a very frank statement concerning them. Also he mentioned especially the sum of $3,000 which he said he had borrowed from his brother, who is a broker at 80 Wall Street. He did not state whether he had received this money all at once or at various times and in different amounts. In his statement Becker explained that he had been a policeman for nineteen years, and that for eighteen years his wife had been a school teacher. For the last three years, Becker said, his wife had taught in a night school.

There was a good deal of talk about a handsome house Becker had built at 3,241 Olinville Avenue, in the Bronx, and how expensive the four lots were. In reference to this, Becker said that he had heard of the property and that it could be bought cheap. The lots cost $7,500. He said he told Commissioner Waldo about his intention to purchase this property, because he realized that the head of the Strong Arm Squad might be criticised if he acquired real estate. The inference was that Becker had spoken to the Commissioner about the matter when the property was taken over, but a few days ago the Commissioner said that Becker did not speak about it until after he became involved in the Rosenthal case.

An effort was made yesterday to get some information from Mrs. Becker concerning this $3,000 transaction, but she could not be found. She has moved to her new house in the Bronx, but the iron gates there were chained and locked and no one was in sight.

President C. O. Bigelow of the West Side Bank refused to say anything about the Becker account.

ALDERMEN GOING AHEAD

Though Some Officials Wish Whitman's Investigation Finished First.

Alderman Henry H. Curran, Chairman of the Aldermanic Committee that is to investigate police conditions, said yesterday that the full committee would meet on Monday or Tuesday and select counsel. There are a good many men in the city who would be better satisfied with the situation if the Aldermen would let the matter alone until District Attorney Whitman gets through with the investigation he is making. Alderman Curran knows that there is much active opposition to his committee, but he was of the opinion that this opposition came mainly from persons who were afraid of being caught in the dragnet that Mr. Curran expected to throw around the entire Police Department and its connections.

But it developed yesterday that officials working with the District Attorney were afraid that the investigation by the Aldermen would divert public attention from the principal issue in the scandal, which is the murder of Rosenthal. It was said that the District Attorney had a good deal more authority than any investigating committee would have. He had a Grand Jury at his service, the power to subpoena witnesses, and to compel witnesses to testify—three sources of great strength which Mr. Curran's committee would not have.

The men who are questioning the advisability of an Aldermanic investigation point to other investigating committees and the small results that came from them.

"The Lexow and Mazet Committees," said an attaché of the District Attorney's office, "were justified because there was then no crime of murder involved and no major investigation was being made. It is a fact that Mr. Whitman would rather have the matter left entirely in his own hands at this time. But he is not in a position to say so, because the moment he did some suspicious persons would jump at the conclusion that he was trying to protect some guilty persons."

Alderman Curran said that his committee was going right along with the investigation, and that no person would be permitted to interfere with or obscure the trail of any corruption the committee might strike. He also said that the committee would not do anything that would interfere in any manner with the work the District Attorney was doing.

"We want to work in accord with the District Attorney," said Mr. Curran, "and not against him. It is surely possible for us to aid each other as we go along. We are not going to rush the investigation. The idea is to work steadily and persistently.

"The immediate object of the inquiry will be to lay bare any collusion between the gamblers and the police. In doing that we will have to dig into the heart of the underworld and the influence that protects the big men who control it. There are such men as everybody knows who has ever studied the problem of life in this city. If we can drag these men into the light of day their power for evil will be broken.

"Conditions are very much alike in all big cities, and we intend to study conditions in other cities of this country and in Europe, and at the same time to avoid tinging our work with an academic color. How long will the investigation take? It might take a year, or we may be able to finish it in six months. We will see that our powers are sweeping enough to make our work effective."

Mr. Curran still continues to receive many letters from all sorts and conditions of men and women. While many of them were anonymous and were written evidently to satisfy a grudge, many of them bore real signatures and were written by persons deeply interested apparently in the making of a better city.

The fifty lawyers that were on Mr. Curran's list a day or two ago as good material to handle the investigation have been greatly reduced. Among the most prominent names that have remained are those of Magistrate Corrigan, Samuel Untermyer, John Purroy Mitchel, and James W. Osborne. Magistrate Corrigan is strongly favored. In the opinion of some members of the committee he is the ideal man for the job. Mr. Curran said that he had heard that Mr. Corrigan was able, honest, fearless, and ambitious, four requisites that the committee intends to insist upon.

Corporation Counsel Watson is preparing his work so that he can spare two of his assistants to be with him during the investigation. Mr. Watson says he intends to see that the investigation is aggressive and thorough. It is not unlikely that considerable friction will grow out of this determination. The Aldermen want their own counsel to be in absolute control of the work.

LAHEY AND HAYES CALLED UP.

Two Inspectors Have a Long Session with Waldo.

Inspectors Lahey and Hayes, in charge of the Third and Fourth Inspection Districts, were summoned to Police Headquarters at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and were shown into Commissioner Waldo's private office at once. There was a long consultation, and then the Inspectors returned to their commands. The Commissioner refused to say what the talk was about or to say anything at all for publication. Repeated requests for the list of gambling houses which it is said are still under surveillance have been steadily denied on the ground that its publication at this time would serve no good purpose.

It is known, however, that these houses are in the districts under the control of the two Inspectors. The Commissioner has said that the Inspectors were to blame if their districts were not kept clean, and it is known that District Attorney Whitman is conducting his inquiries on the assumption that the Inspectors are responsible.

Lieut. Dominick G. Riley, who is in charge of one of the raiding squads, was summoned to Headquarters, and after a talk with the Commissioner made an affidavit denying the published statement that he had said that this city "was never so wide open as during the past year."

WALDO EXONERATES FILE.

Witnesses Prove He Tried to Catch the Murder Car.

The charges against Patrolman William J. File, who was accused of neglecting his duty in not taking proper steps to obtain the arrest of the men who killed Herman Rosenthal, were dismissed yesterday by Commissioner Waldo. File was in the restaurant of the Metropole when Rosenthal was killed.

The evidence showed that he hurried to the scene of the shooting as rapidly as possible and that he had done all in his power to overtake the automobile that the murderers used in making their escape.

SPECIALISTS FOR HUGHES.

Called to Inspector's Bedside to Fight Threatened Pleuro-Pneumonia.

Conflicting reports were received at Police Headquarters yesterday concerning the condition of Inspector Hughes, head of the Detective Bureau. In the morning it was reported that his condition had improved, but later in the day word came that specialists had been called in to attend him, and that his condition showed no improvement. It is reported that the Inspector was threatened with pleuro-pneumonia.

The Inspector caught a heavy cold in the Catskills while directing the hunt for "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie." He had started hurriedly and without sufficient clothing. Exposure and anxiety prostrated him.

GIRL WITNESS LOSES HER JOB.

Grand Jury to Investigate the Excuse Given for Her Discharge.

Miss Harriet Lund, the girl cashier of Drake's Restaurant, in Forty-second Street, between Sixth Avenue and Broadway, visited the District Attorney's office yesterday to say that she had lost her place and believed it was because she had become a witness for Mr. Whitman in his investigation of the Rosenthal murder. The girl was much upset, and Mr. Whitman, when he learned of it, shared her concern.

Miss Lund did not see Mr. Whitman when she called, but was received by Assistant District Attorney Moss. She told him that everything had been all right at the restaurant until last Tuesday night, when she went there to begin her duties as usual. Then she found another girl cashier in her place.

The girl said she asked the manager, Henry Griffith, why she had been deposed, and was told by him that she attracted undesirable attention to the restaurant; that since it had become known that she had testified curious persons thronged the place just to catch a glimpse of her, and that this custom was not desired.

Mr. Moss declared that he would issue a subpoena for the manager at once and would try to find out what influence had been brought to bear on the restaurant management that it had decided so suddenly to dispense with her services.

Miss Lund was one of the first witnesses to come forward with some verification of Jack Rose's statement that after the murder he had telephoned to Lieut. Becker and that Becker had come down town at once from his home in Washington Heights and in the shadow of the Murray Hill Baths had reassured him and "Bridgey" Webber that they had nothing to fear because his influence was such that no one would bother them. Miss Lund was able to tell the District Attorney that she had heard three men, one of them Rose, conversing where Rose had said he held his conversation with Becker.

STATE CONSTITUTION BULL MOOSE TARGET

New York Platform to Make Chicago Document Seem Outworn Conservatism.

3000 CONVENTION DELEGATES

To Urge Constitution Changes for Woman Suffrage and Reduction of Executives to Two.

If any New York members of the Bull Moose Party feel that the party's National Convention programme was not sufficiently progressive, they may cheer up, for the State Convention programme this Fall will be radical enough to suit the most exacting. In fact, a tentative draft of what the New York State delegates are expected to vote for, as put out yesterday by William H. Hotchkiss, State Chairman of the Bull Moose Party, shows that the State platform will make the National platform look like an antiquated document.

The State Convention, which will be held in Syracuse on Sept. 5 and 6, will have 3,000 delegates.

Mr. Hotchkiss had his office force in the Metropolitan Tower at their desks long before Col. Roosevelt arrived in town, and they started in to send out instructions to County Chairmen all over the State regarding what they are expected to do to get out the vote this Fall.

Federalization of the State.

The Hotchkiss plan is to reduce the number of State elective executive and administrative offices to two, that of the Governor and Lieutenant Governor, and that the Governor have the appointment of heads of departments. Hotchkiss calls it "federalizing the State Government." He summed up the aspirations of the new party thus:

"The provisional State Committee of the party has to-day extended an invitation to Gov. Johnson of California to be its guest at the State Convention, and to address the delegates.

"That the wishes of the citizens of the State relative to the platform of the new party may be ascertained, a provisional Committee on Resolutions will be appointed within ten days or two weeks, and such committee will hold sessions at Syracuse for several days preceding the convention.

"It is the belief of the party leaders in New York that the sweep of the Progressive movement, as indicated within the last few days at Chicago, promises success in this State this Fall, and affords an opportunity for a programme of constructive constitutional and legislative proposals that will bring our State Government up to date.

"Among the suggestions already received are included:

The elimination of the State printing graft by the repeal of all laws relative to public printing and the establishing of a Bureau of Printing, which shall do all necessary work connected with legislation, publish all laws, and perhaps issue a daily report of legislative and committee proceedings for free distribution among the people.

Constitutional Convention.

A demand for a Constitutional Convention at the earliest possible day, which, under the present Constitution, seems to be in 1916.

A demand that New York's Constitution be so changed as to federalize our State Government by providing that but two of the executive and administrative officers of such government—namely, the Governor and Lieutenant Governor—shall be elected by the people, and that all executive or administrative governmental functions in the State of New York shall be co-ordinated and rearranged so that thereafter we will have from eight to ten great departments, as, of Corporations, Public Works, and Finances, each under a single Secretary, Superintendent, or Chief, the latter to be appointed by the Governor and to hold office at his pleasure, such chiefs together to constitute the Governor's Cabinet.

Legislation which shall prohibit executive sessions of legislative committees and compel all votes on bills to be cast at regular meetings of the committee and in public.

Legislative restriction of the power of the Rules Committee of the Assembly, particularly in requiring that all its proceedings be in public.

Legislation which shall result in the creation of a permanent committee or commission on legislative bills, sitting throughout the year, with the requirement that legislative proposals of recognized importance shall receive the sanction of such permanent committee before being introduced in the Legislature; such committee or commission to have power to subpoena witnesses and to take testimony and to be required to give notice to all interested persons or corporations or public departments of hearings on such bills.

The direct vote at all primaries and elections of all State and local officers; the Massachusetts ballot, and the simplification of the laws governing independent nominations.

A rigorous corrupt practices act, calling also for publicity of campaign contributions and disbursements during the progress of, as well as after, campaigns.

Chairman Hotchkiss said he expected adherents of the new party to throw away personal ambition and work for the success of the ticket this Fall.

ROOSEVELT TO MISS ADDAMS.

Thanks Her for Seconding Him—Appeals for Women's Aid.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Miss Jane Addams of Hull House received to-day the following telegram from Col. Roosevelt:

"I wished to see you in person to thank you for seconding me. I do it now instead. I prize your action, not only because of what you are and stand for, but because of what it symbolizes for the new movement. In this great National Convention of a new party women have thereby been shown to have their places to fill precisely as men have, and on an absolute equality.

"It is idle now to argue whether women can play their part in politics, because in this convention we saw the accomplished fact, and, moreover, the women who have actively participated in this work of launching the new party represent all that we are most proud to associate with American womanhood.

"My earnest hope is to see the Progressive Party movement in all its State and local divisions recognize this fact precisely as it has been recognized at the National Convention. Our party stands for social and industrial justice, and we have a right to expect that women and men will work within the party for the cause with the same high sincerity of purpose and with like efficiency.

"I therefore earnestly hope that in the campaign now opened we shall see women active members of the various State and county conventions. Four women are to be put on the National Committee, and I trust there will be a full representation of them on every State and county committee. While I am now addressing you, I desire that this shall be taken as the expression of my personal hope and desire by all members of such State and county committees, and I believe that I express the feeling of the great majority of the Progressives in making this request. I have Judge Hotchkiss's assurance that it will be done in the State of New York, and I very much hope that it will be done in the other States."

ROOSEVELT BACK, HAPPY.

Colonel Praises Gov. Johnson—Planning a Record Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Aug. 9.—"We are beginning to wake the people up, and we will wake them up a lot more before we're through," said Col. Roosevelt today upon his return from Chicago. At the train entrance of the Grand Central Station in New York Col. Roosevelt was greeted by a crowd of about 200 men and women, and when he and Mrs. Roosevelt reached the Forty-third Street entrance to take their automobile a bigger crowd was on hand. A dozen photographers climbed on the running board of the Roosevelt automobile and snapped the Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt a dozen times before there was any protest. To-day the Colonel made his entrance to New York as the nominee of a party for President of the United States, and he did not attempt to avoid the crowd or the publicity attending any demonstration, as he had done on several occasions when he returned from his primary campaigns.

There was no denying the fact that the Colonel was in high spirits as a result of the success of his third party convention in Chicago. Asked about what he thought of the nomination of Gov. Johnson of California for the Vice Presidency, he said:

"He is a strong, clean man, a tower of strength. Wait until the people hear him give his views."

The fact that the third party practically deserted the Democrats by giving them no important part in the convention was a subject Roosevelt and his leaders were not discussing to-day. Two prominent Democrats, Judge Ben Lindsey and John M. Parker of New Orleans, made nominating speeches, but that was all. The truth is that the Progressive movement is on the face of it Republican, although it is asking support of the Democrats.

Mr. Roosevelt said to-day that he expected to make a long campaign in September and October, covering practically all of the States in the Union, but that the plans which had been made up to this time were tentative. He is planning to make the most aggressive campaign ever made by a candidate for the Presidency. He will make a hard fight in Texas, Georgia, and North Carolina and other Southern States before the campaign comes to an end.

He gave out this statement about the situation in Illinois:

"Illinois is to be congratulated upon the results of the Progressive situation. The Illinois Progressives adopted a definite, sound, and progressive platform and nominated candidates whose character and capability are a guarantee that if they are elected they will bring a new era of promises fulfilled and progress achieved. I am glad to know that good judges of the sentiment of the people of Illinois are confident that the Progressive Electors and the Progressive State ticket will be elected next Fall."

FORMER COWBOYS PLEDGED.

Roosevelt's Friends of 30 Years Ago Call on Senator Dixon at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Western men who "ran" cattle with Theodore Roosevelt near Medora, N. D., thirty years ago, and who now are wealthy business men in Montana, Idaho, and other States, gave pledges to-day of fealty to the Colonel in interviews with United States Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana at Progressive headquarters. It was a neighborhood gathering for Senator Dixon. All the men called him "Joe" and talked of the folk at home.

Although the active campaign practically has been launched, Senator Dixon said that the Executive Committee would not be completed until after a meeting to be held in New York early next week. The Senator will remain here until Saturday, and probably will then go to New York. O. K. Davis, manager of the Publicity Bureau, leaves to-night for his home at Binghamton, N. Y., for a few days' rest before beginning work.

"No members of the Executive Committee," said Senator Dixon, "aside from Chairman Perkins and Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver have been named. The other seven will be named later, possibly in New York."

There were rumors that E. H. Hooker of New York tentatively had been decided upon as Treasurer of the Executive Committee, but this report could not be confirmed.

Illinois Progressive leaders made public a telegram from Col. Roosevelt, dated at Cleveland, in which the Progressive Presidential nominee expressed his pleasure with the Illinois State ticket and platform.

NEW HAMPSHIRE'S FULL TICKET

Gov. Bass Presides at Meeting of Progressive Executive Committee.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 9.—A State ticket, including, besides Presidential Electors, candidates for Governor and Congressmen, will be nominated by the Progressive Party of New Hampshire, according to a decision of the Provisional Executive Committee of the new party which met in Hooksett to-day.

Gov. Robert P. Bass, one of the seven Governors who signed the original call to Col. Roosevelt to become a Presidential candidate for the coming election, presided. The Progressives will make their nominations by petition, and committees were appointed in each county to effect permanent organization.

Provision was also made for a meeting in the future by representatives of the county organization to choose a permanent State Executive Committee.

BARNES TO COUNTY CHAIRMEN

Urges an Open Convention—Less Roosevelt Sentiment Up State.

Thirty-five Republican County Chairmen met at Republican headquarters in Thirty-ninth Street yesterday to listen to an address by State Chairman William Barnes, Jr., and discuss with him and Merwin E. Lewis, the new Executive Secretary, the condition of the party up-State. Most of the time was spent by Mr. Barnes in explaining to the committeemen the workings of the new Levy election law. Many also were befogged by the primary law passed last year, and some asserted that they were afraid the Roosevelt people might capture the primaries after putting up a State ticket of their own.

Many of the committeemen reported that conditions in their counties were normal, and that the Roosevelt wave, which threatened at one time to reach formidable proportions, was rapidly subsiding. Senator Frederick C. Stevens of Wyoming was one of those who said the Roosevelt sentiment was on the decline.

Chairman Barnes told the committeemen that they should work to nominate a candidate for Governor who couldn't be bossed and who wouldn't stand for bossism.

"If any Democrat, Socialist, Prohibitionist, or National Progressive thinks that the State Convention of the Republican Party, to be held on Sept. 25, will nominate candidates for office at the dictation of any individual he is grievously mistaken," he said. "There is no man in the Republican Party who possesses any such power, and if any one attempts to exercise such power I have not the slightest doubt that the delegates will thwart his purpose."

STUBBS SURE HE HAS WON.

Returns Indicate He Has Carried 100 of 165 Districts.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 9.—With returns from all of the 105 counties, friends of Gov. Stubbs to-day claim his nomination to the United States Senatorship in Tuesday's primary. Returns indicate that Gov. Stubbs has carried 100 of the 165 legislative districts.

The Governor issued a statement tonight, in which he declared he had easily won the Republican nomination from Senator Curtis.

William H. Thompson probably is the Democratic Senatorial nominee. Both Billard and Hodges claim the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination, with returns missing from nearly 40 counties. Billard's lead is being slowly reduced.

Returns have been slow from Western Kansas and definite results on several officers will not be determined until the official count.

PENROSE TO RUN CAMPAIGN.

Will Ignore Wasson, State Chairman, in Conducting Taft Canvass.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Aug. 9.—Word was received by workers of the Republican organization to the effect that, beginning about Sept. 5, Senator Penrose would take command personally of the Taft campaign in this State, ignoring the Republican State Committee proper under the direction of Henry G. Wasson, the State Chairman, who opened his headquarters yesterday in the old place in Broad Street, below Spruce. Senator Penrose will direct the Taft canvass from his offices in the Arcade Building.

These are the first tidings which the organization has received from Washington since the National Convention. Although Mr. Wasson publicly announced he would work faithfully for Taft despite the fact that he was chosen State Chairman through the influence of former Senator William Flinn, following the defeat of the Penrose forces at the State Convention in May, the organization leaders have felt that some one conspicuously identified with the Penrose régime should take charge of the Taft campaign.

RHODE ISLAND MAY LINE UP FOR WILSON

Third Party Likely to Split Republican Vote in High-Tariff Stronghold.

GREAT DEMOCRATIC CHANCE

Political Situation Throughout the State in a Hard Tangle—Friction Even Among the Progressives.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 9.—The political situation in Rhode Island was never in such a chaotic condition as at the present time. Neither of the two great parties, Republican and Democratic, has held its convention nor made any announcement as to a probable ticket, and the new third party, the Progressive, is to a considerable extent an unknown quantity.

Rhode Island is nominally a Republican State, notwithstanding its large number of mill operatives. These have been kept in the Republican voting line through aggressive methods bearing directly upon their employment. In last Fall's campaign the Tariff Publicity League, headed by United States Senator Henry F. Lippitt, placarded with posters all the mills and mill villages announcing that in case of Democratic victory one-fifth of the mills in Rhode Island would be shut down and a large number of operatives thus thrown out of employment.

At the Republican clambake at Gen. Wilson's place a few days ago Senator Lippitt said that the same campaign would be conducted by the league this Fall.

There is no doubt that the vote from the mill centres went far toward electing the Republican ticket last Fall, and what the outcome this Fall will be is problematical. As yet the Democratic leaders have made no move as to their campaign, and the only feature favorable to them over last year's conditions is found in the question as to just how far the Roosevelt Progressive movement is going to split the Republican ranks.

The Republicans have by far the best political organization and the strongest financial backing. The Progressives are counting much on the appearance here of Col. Roosevelt, who is announced to speak in Infantry Hall on Aug. 16. Their movement started well, but it was somewhat unfortunate in the early leadership. As soon as the meeting for organization had been held it became evident that there was dissension in the ranks, and today this was emphasized when some of those who were disgruntled because of their inability to control affairs went to the State House and took out nomination papers in the name of the Progressive Party without any authority from those who compose that party, and appointed the delegates who attended the Roosevelt convention.

If the requisite number of signatures is obtained to these papers, and they are filed first, the so-called Roosevelt "regulars" will find themselves in the unenviable position of not being entitled to use that party name. There are hopes by the Progressives, however, that the arrival of Col. Roosevelt on Friday next will go far toward reuniting these factions.

GIVE WEST VIRGINIA TO WILSON.

Gov. Glasscock Seems to Have Lost Interest Since Chicago Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

WHEELING, West Va., Aug. 9.—Leading Republicans of West Virginia concede the victory to the Democrats in the coming election as a result of the split in the party caused by the organization of the Progressives. Before the nomination of Taft at Chicago the Progressives were largely in the majority, but since that convention hundreds of leaders have recognized Taft as the regular nominee and declared their intention to vote for him.

Charles F. Teter, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor eight years ago, and recently defeated for the nomination for Congressman at Large, openly declared there was no doubt that Wilson would carry the State. Hundreds of Republicans are flocking to the Wilson standard, and the main efforts are now being made to save the State ticket, headed by Dr. H. D. Hatfield, candidate for Governor. The Progressives are demanding that he declare whether he is a regular or Progressive.

Gov. W. E. Glasscock has become extremely reticent since the Chicago Convention, and is taking no part in political discussions or activities, although he says he is as much a Progressive as ever and will support the Roosevelt ticket.

The followers of Roosevelt assert that many Democrats are aligning themselves with the third party. Joseph Handlan, an attorney and a Democratic leader, has announced he would support Roosevelt because the Progressive platform was the only platform with the new ideas necessary to meet new conditions.

The Progressives do not claim the State, but they say they will poll a heavier vote than the regulars. Unbiased views divide the Republican vote of the State evenly, half for Roosevelt and half for Taft.

built ships engaged in foreign trade only, and giving them free passage through the Panama Canal, in all probability will receive no opposition from the Administration.

PROTESTS ON FREE CANAL.

British Shipowners Are Indignant—London Newspapers Comment.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—British shipowners are indignant at the United States Senate's action with respect to Panama. They admit that a big trade is waiting to be done as soon as the canal is opened, but are inclined to think that the great preferential treatment accorded to American ships will lead traders to adhere to the old routes.

Representatives of prominent firms have expressed the opinion, however, that much might happen before the canal is opened, and that the protests of foreign powers might induce a change in the American policy. The amendment permitting the registration of foreign built vessels as American, it is thought, may likely give impetus to British shipbuilding.

The editorial comments continue to display strong feeling. The Spectator says:

> The Senate decision is a violation of the clear sense of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty and an example of the sort of policy the United States should studiously avoid if the Monroe Doctrine is permanently to commend itself to peace-loving nations; it must be honored and respected if it is to remain an instrument of peace. If the Senate persist in its present course, Great Britain must direct its strongest efforts to getting the tolls question referred to arbitration at The Hague.

The Daily News says that the question of exempting coastwise vessels may admit of argument as to foreign vessels allowed to engage in the American coastwise trade, but the other proposed preferences would knock the bottom out of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and certainly presents a case for arbitration.

The Daily Express says that nothing heretofore has been done or attempted under the pretenses of diplomacy that has been quite so frank in its repudiation of a solemn covenant between great powers, and adds: "We still hope that the President will see the necessity of safeguarding his country's honor, and we decline to believe that the United States can be so blind as to refuse arbitration."

High Tide

The flood of Summer visitors which every year sweeps over New York City is reaching a high water mark. Over 100,000 people from all parts of the world are spending some of their vacation days and much of their vacation money in the world's greatest Summer resort—New York.

These visitors are aware that they are in the greatest shopping centre of the country, far famed for its richly varied, cosmopolitan field of purchase. "You can buy anything you want in New York."

That factor which determines for the most part where the visitor will spend his money is the daily newspaper.

The stranger in New York plans his day with the help of the daily newspaper which he buys at the hotel newsstand in the morning. It is to the newspaper that he must turn for the most of his information as to what to see, where to dine, what to buy and where to buy it. The newspaper is his Baedeker and he consults it for many things.

It does not take the tourist long to select the newspaper which offers him the most complete and reliable information. His choice is illustrated by the figures below which show the newspaper sales at the newsstands of some leading hotels.

WOOL BILL VETOED; DEMOCRATS ANGRY

Taft Is Unwilling to Sign Any Democratic Measure, Says Underwood.

USELESS TO PASS ANOTHER

President Declares the Bill Is Not Based on Tariff Board's Report and Imperils Protection.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—President Taft vetoed to-day the La Follette-Underwood compromise bill for the reduction of the tariff rates on wool and its manufactures. This is the second time within a year that he has rejected identically the same bill. The veto last year was based on the statement that the Tariff Board had not reported. The President now objects to the bill on the ground that it does not conform to that board's report and that it would undermine the citadel of protection. Chairman Underwood and the Democratic leaders join issue with the President's declaration that the vetoed bill did not fairly meet the recomendations of the Tariff Board.

"I urge upon Congress," said the President's veto message, "that it do not adjourn without taking advantage of the plain opportunity thus substantially to reduce unnecessary existing duties. I appeal to Congress to reconsider the measure and to adopt a substitute."

The President's appeal to Congress to linger longer on account of the wool schedule amused the leaders of both parties. Floor Leader Underwood asserted that this would be useless, because the President was unwilling, in his opinion, to sign any Democratic Wool bill.

"In my opinion," said Mr. Underwood, "it is not possible to write a tariff bill that will meet with the President's approval.

"The issue will go to the American people in the elections this Fall. They will determine whether they want an honest revision of the tariff downward. If they do want such a revision of the tariff, they will put a Democrat in the White House who will sign the next Democratic Wool bill to be passed by a Democratic House.

"The Democratic programme as to legislation will not be changed on the request of the President that we remain here to give him what he wants. Our tariff bills have been passed by the House. I think that the Wool bill was a most conservative bill. There were some things in the bill that I did not agree with in the main, but it was better than the existing law. The President should have signed it.

"The President criticised the bill because it carried 29 per cent. duties, yet the Tariff Board report shows that 29 per cent. ad valorem is in excess of the difference in the cost between American-grown wool and foreign competition, except in respect to the merino sheep raised in Ohio.

"The President admits there is a net protection, after making allowances for the cost of raw wool, of from 29 to 34 per cent. When it is recalled that, according to census figures, the total labor cost in the woolen industries of this country is only 21 per cent. of the value of the product, and the 10 or 11 per cent. covers the difference in labor cost with that abroad, it is hard to determine how the President could veto a bill that gives the woolen manufacturer an average of 22 per cent. protection after deducting the tax paid on raw wool."

The President's disapproval of the Wool bill is to be followed with similar vetoes of the Steel bill and the Cotton bill. The Sugar bill is likely to be vetoed, as is the Excise Tax bill, the latter probably on the ground that the President believes it unconstitutional.

"I shall stand by my pledges to maintain a degree of protection necessary to offset the differences in cost of production here and abroad, and will heartily approve of any bill reducing duties to this level," wrote Mr. Taft.

"Most of the rates in the submitted bill," wrote the President, "are so low in themselves that, if enacted into law, the inevitable result would be irretrievable injury to the wool growing industry, the enforced idleness of much of our wool combing and spinning machinery, and of thousands of looms, and the consequent throwing out of employment thousands of workmen."

It was predicted to-day that the Wool bill might be passed by the House over Mr. Taft's veto, but there was some doubt as to its fate in the Senate. Republican leaders are inclined to believe that it would fail of passage there, as it did twelve months ago.

The President found it impossible, he said, in view of the platform on which he was elected, to approve the submitted measure, but declared one agreeable to his views had been drafted by minority members of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"I strongly desire to reduce duties," read the message, "provided only the protective system be maintained and that industries now established be not destroyed. It now appears from the Tariff Board's report, and from bills introduced in the House and Senate, that a bill may be drawn so as to be within the requirements of protection and still offer a reduction of 20 per cent. on most wools, and of from 20 per cent. to 50 per cent. on cloths.

"Despite the efforts that have been made to discredit the work of the Tariff Board, their report on this schedule has been accepted, with scarcely a dissenting voice, by all those familiar with the problems discussed, including active representatives of organizations formed in the interest of the public and the consumer."

FINDS HOTEL BOOM IN BOTH AMERICAS

Chairman of Ritz-Carlton Hotels Says Demand Is Keen in Southern Continent.

NEW YORK BUSINESS HEAVY

His Company Will Soon Begin an Atlantic City House and Plans Further Extension of Operations.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—William Harris, Chairman of the Ritz-Carlton Hotels, reached London to-day after a tour of America, looking after the company's interests. In an interview he said:

"The hotel business in America is growing tremendously. There is a great demand for hotel accommodation in North America, while in the Southern Continent especially the demand is growing, owing largely to the increasing numbers of Americans who are going South for business purposes.

"Business in New York is splendid, and continues to grow. We are adding 100 rooms to our hotel there, and these will open Oct. 15. In Philadelphia our new hotel is so far advanced that we see our way clear to open it Dec. 3. I have no doubt that it will be successful from the beginning.

"Our new hotel in Montreal promises to be one of the most beautiful and comfortable houses in America. It is a little uncertain about the opening, but we hope it will be ready in December. Regarding the Atlantic City hotel, we are giving final study to the plans and hope that they will be finally passed within a few weeks, and contracts for building will be given out, and it should be ready by Easter, 1914.

"We are also busy organizing the Ritz-Carlton restaurant which will be found on the new Hamburg-American steamer Imperator on her maiden trip in April.

"Regarding South America, our hotel at Guaruja, a seaside resort, near Sao Paulo, which was opened in June, is already a great success, so much so that we are about to build a hotel at Sao Paulo itself with 400 rooms. Meanwhile, in order to meet the demand, we have acquired the best hotel there, the Sportsman Rotisserie, until the Ritz-Carlton opens in 1914.

"We are also building a hotel of 500 rooms at Rio de Janeiro. This also will be open early in 1914, and will be without question the finest hotel in South America.

"There are other projects under consideration for hotels in America, and some of these will take definite shape soon, but just at the moment I cannot make an announcement in regard to them."

Jean Facon, who for the last nine years has been the orchestra leader at the Carlton Hotel, where his fine violin playing has entertained hundreds of Americans, was married at Amiens to-day to Miss Frida Mentha, sister of James Mentha, for many years the Carlton restaurant manager, but now proprietor of the Hotel Durhin at Amiens.

M. Escoffier, the famous Ritz-Carlton chef, went to Amiens specially to act as Facon's best man.

URGES LIBERAL TO DROP OUT.

English Party Whip Fears Loss of Midlothian Seat.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Depression in the Liberal ranks, caused by eight defeats in by-elections, has been increased by the resignation of the Master of Elibank, who organized the successful party campaigns, and the attitude of the Labor Party, which threatens to put 150 candidates in the field at the next general election.

So serious is the labor attitude that on the appearance of a strong miner's candidate to-day to contest the Midlothian seat vacated by the Master of Elibank, the latter to-night issued a manifesto advising Midlothian Liberals to withdraw their own candidate and support the Labor candidate.

The shock drove all the inhabitants of this city into the streets, but little damage was done.

ORGAN GRINDER SEES PRINCE.

Now I Can Die Happy, Says Aged Man, Weeping Over Future Kaiser.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

DANZIG, Aug. 9.—As the Crown Prince was arriving at the Danzig railway station recently, an old organ grinder with his organ tried to force his way through the crowd. The police turned him back, but he persisted, crying:

"I wish to see the Crown Prince."

The Prince, hearing the old man's cry, walked over to him, saying:

"Here I am. What do you want?"

"Oh, your Royal Highness," said the old man, with tears in his eyes, "I fought in three campaigns with your great-grandfather. I fought with Crown Prince Fritz, afterward Emperor Frederick, at Königgrätz and Worth. I have seen the Kaiser, your father. Now I wish to see our future Kaiser, and then I can close my eyes in happiness."

The Crown Prince and his party were moved to tears.

USES HATCHET ON PAINTING.

Suffragette Tries Smashing Tactics in the Glasgow Art Gallery.

GLASGOW, Aug. 9.—A Suffragette today smashed with a hatchet the glass of a valuable painting hanging in the Glasgow Art Gallery. She escaped without being identified.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The Women's Social and Political Union, headquarters of the militant Suffragette movement, issued a statement to-day regarding the sentences pronounced by the Dublin Court on Mary Leigh, Gladys Evans and Lizzie Baker.

The Union defies the authorities, calling the sentences an outrage, which was not devised as a punishment to fit the offences but to terrorize other women.

The Judge's hint that the sentences would be remitted, if the women's militant tactics were abandoned, constitutes, says the statement, a bribe which could not be accepted without disloyalty to the cause. It continues:

"Coercion may prove effective in dealing with the Unionist leaders and other rebels of the present day, but it will never subdue the members of the Women's Social and Political Union. While demanding the release of their comrades, they reserve the right to continue the use of militancy until the Government abandons its present policy of trickery and evasion."

SWISS CORRAL ANARCHISTS.

Arrest of Louis Bertoni Thought Connected with Kaiser's Coming Visit.

ZURICH, Aug. 9.—Louis Bertoni, editor of The Reveil, and leader of Swiss anarchists, was arrested to-day, nominally on account of a recent speech in which he justified regicide. It is conjectured, however, that his detention is more likely to be connected with the attendance of the Germany Emperor at the Swiss army manoeuvres.

The Swiss police are said to be in deadly fear of anarchists and take advantage of every opportunity of trying to corral all the militant "comrades" before the arrival of Emperor William.

WATER-AIRSHIP TO LONDON.

Andre Beaumont Reaches Boulogne on Novel Journey from Paris.

BOULOGNE, Aug. 9.—Ensign Jean Louis Camille Conneau, (Andre Beaumont), of the French navy, reached here at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon on a journey from Paris to London in a hydro-aeroplane.

Starting from Paris July 26, he followed the Seine and landed on the seafront at Havre to-day. He came along the coast to Boulogne and from here will cross the English Channel and then fly up the Thames from its mouth to London.

He was prevented from continuing his journey from here owing to his machine colliding with a fishing boat, which carried away one of its wings.

The hydro-aeroplane is undergoing repairs and supplies are being replenished in readiness for the resumption of the journey.

WIRELESS BILL IS PASSED.

Law Gives Government Supervision of All Stations and Operators.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The Administration bill for Federal control of radio-communication, placing all wireless stations under Government regulation, was passed by the House to-day with a number of amendments inspired by the action of the recent international radio conference in London.

The bill will go to the Senate to-morrow for consideration of these amendments, the main provisions of the bill having been approved by the Senate last May. The Senate is not expected to interpose obstacles, and Chairman Alexander of the House Merchant Marine Committee is anxious to have the bill go to President Taft for his approval next week, in which event it would become effective in December.

The bill requires all persons within the United States operating commercial radio stations in inter-State commerce, or with foreign nations, or upon any American vessel engaged in inter-State or foreign commerce, to take out Federal licenses. All operators must likewise obtain Federal licenses, and the bill will give the President plenary power to close down or take control of any American radio station in time of war, public peril, or disaster.

No radio station shall hereafter be licensed to be established within fifteen nautical miles of the naval or military wireless stations at Arlington, Va.; Key West, San Juan, San Diego, Cal.; North Head and Tatoosh Island, Wash., and those established in Alaska and the Canal Zone, but these Government stations are to arrange for handling commercial radiograms under the provisions of the Berlin Convention at rates subject to Congressional control. The bill provides an elaborate series of regulations and penalties for their violation by any wireless station.

The most important amendment made by the House to-day relates to secrecy of wireless messages. It provides that no person engaged in or having knowledge of the operation of any radio station shall divulge the contents of any message transmitted or received by that station except to the persons to whom directed, or their authorized agent, or to another station employed to forward the message to its destination, unless legally required to do so by a court of competent jurisdiction or other competent authority. Persons guilty of "divulging or publishing" messages in violation of this prohibition are to be fined not more than $250, or imprisoned not more than three months, or both fined and imprisoned, in the discretion of the court.

Interior Chinese City Is Looted.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—A cablegram announcing that the city of Yachoffu, in West China, has been looted, was received today by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society from Roy D. Stafford, its business agent in Shanghai. The cablegram said that the missionaries there were well, that the mission property was not damaged and that the danger was considered over. Mr and Mrs. H. J. Openshaw and Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Humphreys are the missionaries of the society at the station.

Bill to Jail Trust Heads Advanced.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Senator Kenyon's bill to compel Federal courts to impose jail sentences instead of fines upon convicted violators of the Sherman anti-trust law came out of committee today and was placed on the Senate's calendar. Mr. Kenyon will work for its passage at this session.

EXILES HELPED TO KILL LECONTE

Jamaica Refugees, Jubilant Over the President's End, Talk of Return to Island.

WARSHIP AT PORT AU PRINCE

Auguste Assumes the Presidency Without Disorder, but Washington Fears Turmoil.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Aug. 9.—The Haitian exiles here are jubilant over the turn of events in Haiti. For months plans were being laid in Jamaica for the overthrow of Leconte, and it is said that his death is the direct result of an intrigue between a group of Haitians now in Kingston and compatriots in Port-au-Prince.

The Haitian colony is preparing to return to the republic. Among the number is Gen. Tribonien Saint Just, leader of the Progressive Party and an aspirant for the Presidency. He is preparing to make a bold bid for that office.

The British cruiser Aeolus is expected to leave here at any moment for Port-au-Prince.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Aug. 9.—The body of Gen. Cincinnatus Leconte, President of the Haitian Republic, who perished in the fire that destroyed the National Palace yesterday, was found to-day lying on the iron bed on which he had slept. It was burned to a crisp. The authorities are arranging for a National funeral.

The transfer of authority to the new President, Gen. Tancrede Auguste, who was selected yesterday by the Senate and Chamber meeting in National Assembly, was carried out to-day in perfect tranquility. All the Ministers and other authorities seem inspired with confidence in Gen. Auguste, and the Army accepts the accomplished fact in good spirit.

Firemen continue to search the ruins of the Palace and the adjacent powder magazine for bodies of victims of the fire. The force of the explosion is indicated by the fact that all houses within three-quarters of a mile of the Palace were damaged by the shock. The roof of the National Bank was almost destroyed, while those of the various ministries were shattered by the dèbris flung up by the explosion and the numerous projectiles which burst.

An American warship arrived this afternoon and anchored in the roadstead.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Col. Frank McIntyre, Acting Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, which has charge of the system of collection of customs and revenues in San Domingo, has asked the officials there to report any situation that may threaten the safety of Americans. To-day's reports were altogether pacific, but it is known that affairs in Haiti are ominously unsettled, and there is every prospect of general disorder, especially along the boundary between the two countries.

The efforts of malcontents in Haiti to stir up trouble in San Domingo are being watched closely. The Petrel and the Nashville will remain in close touch with the situation.

A dispatch from H. W. Furniss, Minister to Haiti, to-day, gave details of the explosion by which President Leconte lost his life. The belief is strengthened that it was not an act of assassination, but that some of the explosives, which Leconte kept stored in the cellars under the palace, exploded spontaneously.

Among the 100 persons killed was Leconte's son, who was Minister of Public Works.

SAYS TRUSTS ARE NATURAL.

Not Dissolution, but Drastic Control, the Remedy, Says Gardner.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Trusts were not the deliberate creation of man, but the natural development of industrial and competitive conditions, Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, ranking minority member of the House "Steel Trust" Investigating Committee, told the House to-night in discussing his report. He advocated Federal licenses for all concerns whose capital exceeded a fixed amount, and the creation of an Inter-State Commission of Industry with regulatory powers over corporations and prices.

"If we wish to dissolve the trusts, the time has come to say so," said Mr. Gardner. "If we wish to recognize the trusts, the time has come to be definite about it. Don't misunderstand me as adversely criticising the bills presented by the Democratic majority of the committee. In my opinion, substantially all the practices at which those bills are aimed are unfair, and ought to be suppressed. But if every one of the majority's bills were to be enacted into law, we should be no nearer the settlement of the trust question."

Mr. Gardner declared that he did not believe in dissolution as a remedy.

"What we need," said Mr. Gardner with emphasis, "is good drastic recognition of large industrial units. We have fooled too long with gentle dissolution."

HOUSE MAY AGREE ON ONE BATTLESHIP

Representative Ayres Obtains Pledge of 26 Democrats for Caucus on Wednesday.

TO BE SUPER-DREADNOUGHT

Padgett and Fitzgerald Sign Petition—Burnett, Leader of Opposition, to Attend Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—One battleship, larger and more powerful than anything afloat, probably 30,000 tons displacement, armed with twelve 14-inch guns, and of superior speed, will be the result of the struggle among the Democrats of the House over the naval increase programme if plans of the leaders do not miscarry.

The Democracy of the House is about evenly divided between those who want some battleships, one or two, and those who desire none at this time. Approximately half of them are against battleships, and less than half of those who favor these units are for two.

This caucus will be held next Wednesday afternoon. The petition for it was circulated by Representative Ayres of New York to-day. Already 26 Democrats, one more than necessary to call the caucus, have signed. Among them are Chairman Padgett of the Naval Committee and Representative Fitzgerald, Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee. Only battleship men are signing it. The call for this caucus followed a conference between certain House members, during which Representative Burnett of Alabama, leader of the no-battleship movement, agreed to advise his followers to enter a caucus for the purpose of having the caucus decide whether it wants to rescind its former action, and authorize one battleship only.

Before the petition for the caucus was circulated Mr. Burnett delivered to Representative Ayres a letter, as follows:

> Dear Mr Ayres—I hand you a call for a caucus, which, if your friends will sign, I agree to attend, and wil advise those who have been with me on the battleship question to attend. I agree to support a resolution framed in conformity therewith.

The call handed by Mr. Burnett to Mr. Ayres reads:

> Hon. A. S. Burleson, Chairman Democratic Caucus:
>
> We, the undersigned Democratic members of the House, hereby request you to call a caucus for the Democratic members of said House to meet at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 14, for the purpose of determining whether the previous action of said caucus shall be so modified as to permit all Democratic members who desire to do so to vote in the House for one battleship only, and to permit the Democratic members of the Conference Committee on the Naval Appropriation bill to agree to one battleship. Said caucus is called for no other purpose than as above stated, and no member is bound or shall be bound by said caucus to vote for battleships if he does not desire to do so.

Under this call the caucus would not have authority to authorize more than one battleship. Mr. Burnett and his followers are willing to abide by the caucus resolution if a majority attending the caucus bind the party in favor of one vessel.

AQUEDUCT EXPLOSION KILLS 5, INJURES 6

A "Missed Hole" Is Set Off by Air Drill 250 Feet Underground.

100 MEN AT WORK IN SHAFT

Superintendent Who Inspected Previous Blast Not Blamed—Similar Accident Killed Three on July 29.

Twenty minutes before they were to have been relieved by another shift coming on at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, fifteen men in the north heading of Shaft 12 of the Catskill Aqueduct, 250 feet underground at 106th Street and Central Park West, were working briskly to complete the thirty or more drillholes required for a blast. As many laborers were tunneling in the south heading, and altogether there were 100 men rushing the work at the shaft, so as to leave the way clear for the coming shift.

The Night Superintendent, James Cullen of 13 West 183d Street, who had inspected the heading after the last blast was made, at 10 o'clock Thursday night, to see that no charge had been unexploded, directed the workmen as they set the last drill. He then started to the top of the shaft in the elevator just as he heard the drill begin working.

When Cullen reached the top of the shaft he heard a heavy detonation, which shook the earth, followed by the muffled shrieks and groans of the men in the excavation. With several men of the night shift, he descended in the basket to the bottom of the shaft. They found the drillers and helpers lying in the excavation, some of them mangled and bleeding and almost covered with broken rocks.

The rescuing party cleared away the débris and removed the bodies of the dead, the dying, and the injured. They were placed in the elevator basket and carried to the top of the shaft.

Sergt. Myers of the Arsenal Station and Patrolman Barry of the West 100th Street Station had sent in hurry calls for ambulances to the J. Hood Wright and Polyclinic Hospitals. The arrival of the ambulances and the excitement among the hundred workmen about the shaft attracted hundreds of persons from their apartments, among them many women, who volunteered assistance. All the injured were attended by Dr. Brady of the J. Hood Wright Hospital.

Two men were killed instantly by the explosion, two died of their injuries soon after being removed to hospitals, and a fifth died after several hours. Six others who received injuries more or less serious will recover.

The Dead.

BOSIA, ISDORE, 37 years, Italian, married, laborer, 154 East 110th Street, contusions, lacerations, fractured jaw, died in J. Hood Wright Hospital.

CURTIE, CHARLES, 36 years, Italian, married, 142 Cherry Street, received fractured skull, died in J. Hood Wright Hospital.

KUSLYAK, JOHN, 23 years, Pole, single, laborer, 213 West Second Street, killed instantly, body removed to the Morgue.

MANDOLINA, PEPO, 30 years, Italian, driller, single, 109th Street and Third Avenue, killed instantly, body removed to the Morgue.

SEVELA, TONY, 26 years, Italian, single, foreman, 206th Street and Jerome Avenue, internal injuries, died at Bellevue Hospital.

The Injured.

AVISO, ANGELO, 27 years, Italian, laborer, married, 229 East Seventy-fifth Street, scalp wounds, attended at shaft and sent home.

BINIDICK, MIKE, 24 years, Austrian, married, laborer, 3,167 Jerome Avenue, lacerations and wounds of scalp and body, suffering from shock, removed to J. Hood Wright Hospital.

BUIKNELLO, ERNEST, 37 years, Italian, laborer, married, 115 East 110th Street, scalp wounds, attended at shaft and sent home.

CAPIDIRA, CHARLES, 26 years, Italian, laborer, married, 355 West Fifty-fifth Street, lacerations and shock, removed to Bellevue.

GUATANO, LEO, 37 years, Italian, married, laborer, 109 First Avenue, contusions of right thigh, attended at shaft and sent home.

SEVELA, PETER, 28 years, Swede, single, foreman, 206th Street and Jerome Avenue, lacerations, attended at shaft and removed to his home.

Do Not Blame Superintendent.

Immediately after the explosion Michael Quinn, General Superintendent for the Pittsburgh Contracting Company, which has the contract for digging the aqueduct from 106th to 190th Street, besides two other contracts for work in Westchester and Orange Counties, was summoned to the scene of the accident, and after an investigation he stated that the explosion had been caused by the drill striking an old charge. He said that Supt. Cullen, who had inspected the heading following the blast, was not to blame for the accident. J. A Goodwin, attorney for the company, likewise was at the shaft shortly after the explosion. He stated that the company was making every effort to locate the families of the workers and give them relief. The company, he stated, carried no insurance for the workers in its employ.

Cupt. Cullen, who has been with the company four days, according to Mr. Goodwin, was arrested by Patrolman Filer of the Arsenal Station on a charge of homicide. He was arraigned in the Yorkville Court before Magistrate O'Conner, and remanded without bail to the Coroner. When he appeared before Coroner Holzhauser he was given into the custody of his attorney to await the inquest.

An explosion due to exactly the same causes as that yesterday occurred on July 29 at Shaft No. 13, Central Park West and Ninety-third Street, in which three men were killed and five seriously injured.

Col. Alexander Would Go to Congress.

Archibald Stevens Alexander, Colonel on the staff of Gov. Wilson, and scion of the noted Stevens family of New Jersey, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic Congressional nomination in the new Eleventh District of New Jersey. This district takes up the northern part of Hudson County. He has served two terms in the lower branch of the New Jersey Legislature, and is a graduate of Princeton University. His wife, who was Miss Helen Barney of New York, and a niece of the late William C. Whitney, is one of the organizers of The "Women's Wilson Club."

WOULDN'T 'SQUEAL' ON YATES

Convict Ross on Stand in Bancroft Case Denies Previous Statements.

Charlie Ross, known as No. 5,011 at Sing Sing Prison, having been brought to this city to testify against Chester Yates as to his alleged complicity in the robbery of aged Aaron Bancroft, broker, in the Produce Exchange Building, in March, 1911, suddenly recalled what sometimes happens to "squealers" while in Part II. of General Sessions yesterday, and completely denied his previous statements to Assistant District Attorney Buckner made the night before.

His eyes narrowed and his prison pallor seemed to deepen as he braced himself for the story he was to tell.

"Do you know this man?" queried Mr. Buckner.

"I never saw him before in my life, that's honest," he replied, while his eyes sought the ceiling. He scratched his close-shaven head, and glanced at Judge Mulqueen on the bench.

"Didn't you tell me," shouted Mr. Buckner, "that this man was the one who engineered the whole robbery, and who later arranged the sale of the bonds, that you and the others were mere figureheads, and that he was the leader and brains of the whole plot?"

Again the convict's eyes sought the ceiling. For several seconds he paused, then weakly answered, "No."

Somewhat nonplused, the Assistant Attorney continued:

"Didn't you tell me that two 'squealers' were nearly killed in Sing Sing a few weeks ago with a pair o fscissors, and that another had had molten lead poured on him, and didn't you ask me to see to it that if Yates was convicted that he be sent to Dannemora instead of Sing Sing, as you were afraid that he might get you killed for squealing?"

"Not that I remember," stolidly answered the man, shifting nervously on his feet, his fingers opening and closing repeatedly.

In disgust Mr. Buckner ordered him from the stand. He was then taken back to the Tombs and locked up.

Musician's Wife Gets Court Order for Unpaid Alimony.

An order of execution was issued yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Lehman against John M. Spargur owns stock to the extent of $358 in the New York Philharmonic Society, and by Justice Lehman's order Sheriff Harburger is instructed to attach this for the benefit of Mrs. Spargur.

MLLE. LE CLERE'S WILL IS ADMITTED AT LAST

Daughter of a Napoleonic Guard Left Fortune of $250,000 to Charity and Education.

ONE BEQUEST REJECTED

Academic Francaise Refused $20,000 on Ground That France's Moral Standard Was Not Low.

After nearly five years of litigation in the various State Courts of New York, Surrogate Cohalan decreed yesterday that the will of Miss Louise H. Le Clere, disposing of $250,000 among various charities, should be admitted to probate.

Miss Le Clere died in New York in 1907, at the age of 82. She was the daughter of Louis Le Clere, one of the younger guards of Napoleon. At the age of 60 she came to this country and attained considerable fame because of her bitter attacks on what she termed the moral obloquy of her native land. When she died it was found that she had left practically her entire estate to Protestant charities in France and to French charities in America.

Her one lay gift was a legacy of $20,000 to the Académie Française, to be employed toward "raising the low moral standard of the nation at large." After considerable debate, the Académie decided that to accept her legacy would be tantamount "to acquiescing in the testatrix's opinions," so that the sum was rejected and included in the residuary estate. Most of her other legacies were contested because of various technicalities of international law.

By her will Miss Le Clere left $20,000 to the Faculté de Théologie Protestante de Montauban for the issuance of scholarships to needy candidates for the Protestant ministry. This provision was contested because of the fact that the Montauban Seminary was officially legislated out of existence by the French Government shortly after the writing of the will, in 1886. The spiritual successor of the Protestant College was an institution still supported by the French Evangelical Church, but it was doubted whether this organization could inherit legally.

Uncontested legacies of the will were $5,000 to the Presbyterian Home for Aged Women in New York, and $1,000 each to the French Benevolent Society of New York, and the American Bible Society. The residuary estate, amounting to about $240,000, was to have been divided equally between the French Evangelical Church of New York, and the "Société Protestante pour l'encouragement de l'Instruction primaire en France."

The executors of the estate, former Mayor Seth Low, the late John Joseph Townsend and George Macculloch Miller, were unable to discharge these legacies because of the restrictions of the international inheritance code.

A judicial construction of the estate was brought in the Supreme Court, and it was decided that the legacy to the French society for the encouragement of primary instruction was illegal. Similarly, the provision for the French Evangelical Church of New York was nullified, since it depended on a residuary division inclusive of the foreign society. This organization through its attorneys, Coudert Brothers, and the French Church of New York, through its attorney, Rush Taggart of 195 Broadway, thereupon carried the contest to the Appellate Division, and it was on the reversal by that court of the lower court's decision that Surrogate Cohalan decided to admit the will with all of its provisions, barring the rejected one for the Académie Française.

Mr. Miller, the active executor of the estate, was directed yesterday by Surrogate Cohalan to settle the long-delayed claims upon notice of his decision.

ROGER POCOCK
Author of A Man in the Open

A Man in the Open, a new novel from the press of The Bobbs-Merrill Company, is so utterly, so amazingly different from the run of current fiction that it is a genuine phenomenon.

✳

The author, Roger Pocock, has done a large and masterful work. He has delineated a man and a woman who are living entities, who are recognizable as breathing human beings; he has presented them in circumstances almost unbelievable and made them wholly consistent.

✳

Marvel of marvels, A Man in the Open is a "Wild West" tale. It comes from that worked-out region whence countless carloads of literary banalities have emanated. It bears on its very face a label calculated to frighten away the discriminating reader. It is really a tale of cowboys, of cattle thieves, of life in the wilderness, of gun play, of hangings, of squirting gore. This is the truth. Take it or leave it.

✳

The book is none the less a fine and worthy literary production. The facts seem incongruous. The author has indeed done the impossible. He has gone into a field whence has sprung little but nauseating trash, and has brought forth a large and laudable book.

✳

And, all in all, A Man in the Open is a book that is essentially not "high brow." It has nervous excitement in every chapter. There is no let down. It is a book, then, for every one; for the superficial reader who yearns for thrills, and for the more discerning who seeks literature. Literature makes thrills more thrilling; thrills assuredly do not mar literature.—Carl T. Robertson, in The Cleveland Plain Dealer

When two of the St. Louis Cardinals were out in the eighth inning at the Polo Grounds yesterday, Charley Herzog, the Giants' third baseman, made a wee little error of Magee's grounder. When Michael Mowrey came to bat the wee error began to grow and it soon took the form of a colossal misplay. You see, if Herzog had picked up the simple grounder, as he should have done, and made a nice throw to first base, St. Louis would have been retired.

But to get back to Mowrey. He hit one of Wiltse's curves without consideration or favor and sent it singing into the left field bleachers for a home run, driving Magee in before him. The Giants lost the game right then and there, and the final reckoning was 4 to 2.

This visit of the brethern from St. Louis did not begin quite the way Manager McGraw planned to have it. The last time the New Yorks were in St. Louis this same crowd of Bresnahan's beat the Giants three out of four games. So the present sojourn was to be taken as a grand opportunity for revenge. But St. Louis beat New York and did it well, and if it happens many more times New York will begin to worry about the 1912 pennant, if they are not worrying now. New York's defeat and Chicago's victory over Boston cuts down the Giants' once great lead to seven and a half games. The Giants had better buck up—now.

It's a long time since any baseball performer looked so sprightly on the Polo Grounds as Hauser, the St. Louis shortstop, did yesterday. He was easily the very busiest man in this part of the country and accepted twelve chances without an error, some of his stops of swift grounders being brilliant. Hauser kept the short field and the distance on each side of it "spic and span." Hauser's a little fellow, but he covered ground like a shadow.

The Giants were foolhardy on the bases and by taking long chances they cheated themselves out of opportunities to score. In the first inning, Larry Doyle crashed a long hit to deep centre, sending Snodgrass home. It was a safe three-bagger, but Doyle, through McGraw's instructions, kept right on in a bold attempt to complete the circuit. He was thrown out at the plate easily. Again in the sixth inning, Becker smashed a hit against the right field wall that was a two-bagger, but he "died" trying to stretch his way to third.

These long hits constituted most of the destruction the Giant batsmen were able to bring about against the pitching of Rube Geyer. He kept the Giant attack at a minimum, and had a spin on the ball which caused most of the Giants to roll it along the ground within reach of Hauser. Geyer kept up his good twirling from beginning to end and was especially effective when Giants got on the bases.

Wiltse pitched just as well as his opponent until the eighth when Mowrey's home run completely changed the condition of affairs. In the ninth, the Giants made a desperate rally, pinch-hitter McCormick lending much encouragement with a three-bagger which bounded off Evans's shoe in right field. One run was all the rally was worth, for Geyer refused to allow any more hits.

Evans contributed the real bit of fireworks of the afternoon when he made a wonderful catch of Jack Murray's liner in the fourth inning. The hit was sailing between right and center fields, traveling due east. Evans started to run due north and it was a question whether man and ball would ever come together. Just as the sphere was about to shoot its way into home run territory Evans stuck out his right hand and the ball glued itself to his glove. That catch caused almost as much commotion as Larry Doyle's smash into the right field stand in the eighth inning. The crowd was in a state of uproar and Doyle was jogging serenely around the bases, with Snodgrass ahead of him, when Umpire Johnstone played the rôle of Mr. Killjoy and informed everybody concerned that the ball dropped foul by a few inches.

Geyer got a bad start. Snodgrass greeted him with a two-base hit to left and he scored on Doyle's long smash to deep centre. Doyle was out at the plate when Oakes relayed the ball to Hauser, who shot it home just before Doyle arrived. Hauser threw out Becker at first and Huggins tossed out Murray.

St. Louis tied the score in the second inning. After Konetchy went out at first base, Evans beat out a hit to second, and Hauser was safe on an infield hit which splashed in the direction of third base. Oakes flied to Snodgrass and Wingo sent a single to left, which scored Evans. Geyer flied to Murray and ended the trouble.

The teams battled along on even terms until the eighth inning when a flaw appeared in the Giant defense. Both pitchers worked so well that there was no chance for a score, backed up as the boxmen were with excellent fielding. In the first half of the eighth Geyer was thrown out by Doyle and Huggins raised a foul fly to Merkle.

Magee's grounder to Herzog was an easy, inoffensive looking thing, but Charley tried to field it too quickly and fumbled it a few seconds before he dropped it. Then Mowrey jumped at the chance and won the game for St. Louis with his home run over Snodgrass's head. The Giants' outfielder backed up against the fence and only wished that he had a ladder so that he could climb up into the bleachers for the ball.

In the Giants' half of the eighth, Fletcher beat out an infield hit. Shafer, batting for Wiltse, was called out on strikes and then Snodgrass rolled a grounder to Hauser, who threw to Huggins, forcing Fletcher. Huggins and Fletcher collided at second when Huggins tried to throw to first to double up Snodgrass. The throw was wild and Snodgrass went to second. Huggins said that Fletcher had intentionally prevented him from making the double play, but Umpire Eason would not allow the protest. Doyle then came within a few inches of making a home run, but when he came back to bat again he hit the ball inside the lot and Evans caught it.

With one out in the ninth Hauser made his third single of the day, stole second and scored on a two-base hit to right by Oakes. Becker began the final round for the Giants by flying to Konetchy. Murray sent a grounder to centre and stole second. Merkle flied to Mowrey, who made a good catch of a foul fly near the field boxes. McCormick, batting for Herzog, smashed a hit to right field. Evans ran in to get it and the ball bounded off his shoe out of reach. Murray scored and McCormick went to third. There was much rejoicing when Chief Meyers stepped up to bat, but it didn't last long, because the Indian was thrown out at first base by Mowrey.

PITCHERS IN PRIME FORM.

Another southpaw pitching duel, the second in two days, was staged at Washington Park yesterday, when Pittsburgh hooked up with Brooklyn in the first clash of a four-game series. Brooklyn was defeated, 2 to 1, the score being the same as in the Sallee-Rucker duel of the previous day. The Superbas made a rally in the final chapter, but went out one run short after filling the bases with only one batsman out.

Rube Robinson opposed Frank Allen in the box, and each had one bad inning. The second inning proved the undoing of Allen, when the Pirates touched him up for a single and a double and drew the lone pass which he issued. In the other chapters the Brooklyn southpaw held the visitors so tightly in his grasp that they did not get a runner beyond second base and only three traveled so far as the midway sack.

Robinson's work up to the ninth inning was even better than that of Allen. Brooklyn got five hits off the Pirate flinger up to the ninth inning, but they came in five different innings, and the Superbas did not get a glimpse of second base until the ninth inning, when Red Smith opened with a double along the left field line. This started a rally which produced three more hits, but two of these were of the scratch variety and the four safeties netted only one run.

Eddie Phelps and Tex Erwin had opportunities to become heroes in the ninth inning, but both of Brooklyn's leading pinch hitters failed to do what was expected of them. Smith opened the ninth inning with a drive past Bobby Byrne and anchored on second base. Jake Daubert fanned, but Johnny Hummel revived the fading hopes by hitting safely to centre and scoring Smith. After Cutshaw had beat out a hit which bounded off Robinson's glove, Otto Miller batted for Fisher and beat out a hit which Wagner fielded in deep short. This filled the bases with one out. Fred Clark left the bench and started toward the box, then changed his mind, told Robinson to stick and returned to the bench. Eddie Phelps popped to McCarthy for the second out. Tex Erwin, despite the fact that he bats from the off side of the plate, was sent in as a pinch hitter, and he went out on an easy foul fly to Miller.

Robinson won his own game in the second inning with a double to left field, which scored Miller from second and Gibson from first. Miller opened the inning with a single, and Gibson drew a pass after Wilson and McCarthy had been retired.

Catches by Donlin, Northen, and Fisher were the fielding features. The score:

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 9.—Gregg and Jackson did the work necessary to hand the New York Yankees their second defeat of two days this afternoon. Gregg had the Yankees at his mercy in all except one inning, when Stump and Hartzell managed to get the two hits that netted one run. Jackson sent one of the Naps' runs in on a bunt with a man on third base, and drove the other across with a double at the right time. The Yankees seem to be Jackson's particular prey, as he did most of the successful hitting Thursday.

That Manager Harry Wolverton is determined to make the Yankees a winner next season if possible is evidenced by his efforts on this trip to get players who have already made good. He has had some long conferences with President Navin of the Detroit Tigers, and it is rumored that Sam Crawford will be with the Yankees next season. If that is the case Sam will play centrefield with Wolter and Cree, the other outfielders. Buck Weaver of the White Sox is said to be a possibility for shortstop, as Wolverton says he has other deals under way that he believes will quickly change the New Yorks from a cellar team to a first division fighter.

To revert to to-day's game, the tale is soon told. For two innings both Gregg and George McConnell pitched air-tight ball. But in the third Mack wobbled. O'Neil started off with a single that nearly took the tip off one of Martin's digits. Gregg sacrificed, and Ryan lammed a single that should have scored Steve, but the catcher fell down rounding third base and had to hustle back to safety, while Ryan got to second. Turner fanned, but McConnell lost control at this juncture, and a wild pitch scored one runner and advanced the other to third. Jackson then surprised the Yankee infield by laying down a bunt that went for a hit and scored Ryan. Daniels prevented further scoring by a pretty catch of Lajoie's line drive.

The Naps got two hits in succession with none out in the fourth inning, but good pitching and fielding kept them runless.

The Yankees in the meantime could not find the key to Gregg's delivery until the seventh inning, when Stump doubled and Hartzell singled in rapid fire order, netting one run. This Gregg deemed enough, and from then to the finish the Yankees went hitless. Just as Gregg struck out for the Naps' first up in their half of the seventh inning, rain came down in torrents, and the game was held up for twenty-four minutes. At the end of that time Umpire Egan decided the game could be finished, and the Naps quickly annexed their third and final run when, with two out, Turner was walked, and scored on Jackson's double.

White Sox Batsmen Earn Victory.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Chicago defeated Philadelphia, 7 to 6, to-day, in a slugging match. The visitors took the lead as a result of two passes, an error, and two hits, but were overtaken when bunched hits, a wild pitch, and an error netted five runs and caused the retirement of Brown in the second inning. Philadelphia hit opportunely thereafter, but could not overcome the lead of Chicago. The score:

DETROIT, Aug. 9.—Boston pounded Mullin for seven hits in the fourth and fifth innings and defeated Detroit to-day, 6 to 1. Stanage's great throwing broke up several other chances for Boston to produce runs, he retiring would-be base stealers. President Johnson of the American League, in behalf of Detroit fans, presented Bill Donovan with a gold watch. Donovan soon leaves to manage the Providence team. The score:

GIANTS ON WORLD TOUR.

Company Incorporated to Promote Foreign Invasion of Ball Teams.

The New York Giants and All-American Around-the-World Tour Company was incorporated at Albany yesterday, with a capital stock of $60,000. The purpose of the company is to make a tour of the world next Winter, and play exhibition games in foreign countries between the Giants and a picked team of players from both major leagues. The plans for the tour have not been made, and the incorporation of the company is the first move to arrange for the world tour.

The names of the incorporators of the company are Frank Locker, Benjamin Locker, Joseph Jacobson, Isadore Klein, and Julius Locker.

It is probable that, in the event of the Giants winning the pennant, that the most of the New York players will go, in charge of Manager McGraw. It has also been suggested that Roger Bresnahan, the former Giant catcher, and now manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, will have charge of the other baseball aggregation. Such a tour will take several months, and it will take some time to decide on the make-up of the teams.

Keating Will Come to the Yankees.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—The Directors of the Lawrence Baseball Club of the New England League have the authority to sell Pitcher Ray H. Keating of that club to the New York team of the American League for $5,000. Judge Morton in the equity session of the Superior Court to-day refused to issue an injunction asked for by the plaintiff in the suit of Joseph Sullivan against Louis Pieper and Daniel A. Moon. The defendants are Directors of the Lawrence Club, and as such had agreed to sell Keating to the New York Americans for $5,000. Sullivan, who is a stockholder in the Lawrence team, sought to have the defendants restrained from holding a meeting of the Directors on Aug. 13 to ratify the contract. Sullivan claimed that Keating could be sold for more than $5,000.

MOTOR CYCLE STARS TO RACE

Chapple in Match with Fleckenstein—Five-Mile "Pro" Contest.

A real line on the ability of Arthur Chapple, the daring New York speed king, as compared to Eddie Hasha of Dallas, holder of the one-mile record of 0:38 2-5, can be had from the showing that Chapple makes in his match with Larry Fleckenstein at the Stadium-Motordrome at Brighton Beach to-night.

Hasha holds a record over the Salt Lake City marvel, and unless Chapple can dispose of him in straight heats he will lose much of his prestige. Fleckenstein is the hardest opponent that Chapple has faced this season. His work against Hasha was of high order, and he can be depended upon to give the New Yorker a hard fight.

In the five-mile professional event with Shields, Lochnar, Wray, Mercier, Hofstetter, and Leroy in the running the fans will see one of the best contests that has been staged at the Stadium-Motordrome this season. Shields and Lochnar have shown wonderful speed in their last contests and have forced Wray and the remainder of the talent to show their best to beat them to the flag.

Albright at scratch in the handicap event should prove a strong competitor for the field.

DON DENMORE'S STAKES.

Captures Free for All at Pittsburgh—Three Wins for Driver Cox.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Aug. 9.—Walter R. Cox, the New Hampshire driver on the Grand Circuit, had a field day of it today, the closing of the Pittsburgh meeting, winning every race in which he drove, which was three out of four on the card. Cox won the 2:18 trot with Arona McKinney, the 2:15 pace with Baron A., and the 2:20 pace with Myrtle Baron, all of them in straight heats.

The free-for-all pacing championship, the only one in which Cox had no entry, brought out the best field of the week, which went to Don Densmore after Vernon McKinney had taken the first heat in 2:01½, the fastest time of any heat on any track this year. Densmore took the second heat in 2:02¼, making two of the fastest heats on any track this year, and clipped off the third heat in 2:05¾.

Sir R. was on his bad behavior to-day and cut up so badly that after the second heat he was ruled out. The finish of the last heat was so hot that when the judges announced Don Densmore won the heat over Evelyn W. the crowd hooted and jeered the decision. But it was no easy race for Don Densmore, as Evelyn W. crowded him hard in both heats. Vernon McKinney, in the first heat, practically ran herself off her feet, for the best she could show afterward was second and fourth. The summaries:

WINNIPEG CREWS WIN FOUR BOAT RACES

Duluth Club Sets New World's Mark for 1¼ Miles in 6:16 in National Regatta.

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 9.—Winnipeg crews won four of the six regular events on the opening day's programme of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen here to-day, while the Duluth Boat Club's eight set a new world's record by taking the intermediate class event from Detroit in 6:16 for the one and one-fourth miles straightaway, 3 1-5 seconds faster than the mark made by the New York Athletic Club some years ago.

A. F. Culver of Winnipeg won the senior single scull event, one and one-fourth miles straightaway. The starters were John B. Kelly of the Vesper Boat Club, Philadelphia; G. W. Smith of the New York Athletic Club, Thomas J. Rooney of the Ravenswood (Long Island City) Club, A. E. Culver of Winnipeg, George Allison of West Philadelphia, and R. F. Loerke and Oscar Wolff of St. Louis.

Smith jumped to the front at once, with Kelly, Rooney, and Culver trailing. Culver took the lead from Smith half a mile from the start, Rooney pulling alongside, with Kelly trailing close. At the finish Culver had two lengths on Smith. Rooney, in a desperate effort, beat Kelly for third place by a few inches in the time of 7:26, or 45 2-5 seconds faster than the mark made at Saratoga, N. Y., last season, and 6 3-5 seconds slower than Merjof's world's record, made in New York in 1909.

Five crews entered the intermediate eight event, one and one-fourth miles straightaway. The St. Louis R. C. was debarred at the line, leaving four starters. Duluth caught the water first, took a slight lead, and was never headed, but Detroit forced a terrific pace. Duluth won by an open length, with Detroit second, Grand Rapids third, and Peoria fourth.

H. H. Phinney of Winnipeg won the intermediate singles, Grand Rapids took the intermediate four-oared shell event, and Winnipeg the intermediate double sculls.

In the international senior four-oared shell event Winnipeg's crew defeated the veteran Arundels of Baltimore. The Lincoln Park (Chicago) crew and the two St. Louis crews finished far behind. The summaries:

TRAVIS IN GOLF FINAL.

H. W. Stucklen Will Be His Opponent at Ekwanok To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Aug. 9.—Walter J. Travis of Garden City, and H. W. Stucklen of Braeburn will play in the final round to-morrow for the first prize cup as a result of their victories in the semi-finals on the Ekwanok links to-day. Travis defeated B. W. Corkran of the Batimore Country Club in a match full of good play. Corkran led during the early part of the game, but on the homeward journey his poor drives lost him the match. Stucklen had a hard match with T. M. Sherman of Yahundasis, but the steadiness which has characterized the Braeburn man's game all week brought him a victory one up. Summary:

First Division, Third Round.—H. W. Stucklen, Brae Burn, beat Ray Gorton, Brae Burn, 5 and 3; T. M. Sherman, Yahundasis, beat D. W. Houston, Jr., Brae Burn, 7 and 5; B. W. Corkran, Baltimore, beat C. H. Gardner, Agawam, 4 and 3; W. J. Travis, Garden City, beat F. A. Martin, Ekwanok, 3 and 2.

Semi-Final Round.—Stucklen beat Sherman, 1 up; Travis beat Corkran, 3 and 1.

CURLEW LEADS FLEET.

Bayside Yacht Club Cruise from Hempstead Harbor to Oyster Bay.

The tars of the Bayside Yacht Club, who are on their annual cruise with a fleet of twenty yachts representing the new bird and one-design classes of the club, sailed into Oyster Bay Harbor early last evening, after a fast run up the Sound from Hempstead Harbor.

Charles L. Willard's Curlew again led the fleet, and is now regarded as an almost sure winner of the trophy offered for the victor in the bird class. The yacht was cleverly handled by Lawson Willard, the 14-year-old son of Mr. Willard, who took great pride in showing the stern of the boat to the older skippers. Struggling along behind came the Do Do, with its owner, Arthur Andrews, at the helm, and Walter Dayton's Skylark.

In the race of the one-design class, William Banks and Henry W. Medicus again finished close together, the latter this time winning by a narrow margin.

To-day the cruise extends to Stamford, Conn., where the Bayside yachtsmen will take part in a water carnival. They expect to return home Sunday evening.

Marshall Knocks Out Mango.

After a number of tiresome preliminary boxing contests, several of which were stopped by the referee, the final event at the St. Nicholas A. C. last night, scheduled for ten rounds, lasted less than two sessions. Battling Marshall and Willie Mango were the principals and after a slow opening session Marshall brought over two straight rights to the jaw, which ended the event. The first blow sent Mango to the floor for the count of nine, and after regaining his feet and realizing his position he immediately sought a soft spot and took the full count with the next right smash.

Marshall weighed in at 133 pounds, while Mango tipped the beam at 130, although he appeared heavier. In the semi-final of six rounds Bob Mitchell gained the honors over Frankie Conlin in a loosely fought session. The best contest of the entire card was that between "The Fighting Parson" and "Battling" Alabama, which resulted in a draw.

Phelan and Sheppard Draw.

Carey Phelan, the Harlem featherweight, and Young Sheppard, struggled through ten rounds at the Olympic Athletic Club of Harlem last night, and finished with honors about even. The boys are so evenly matched that neither could show to decided advantage over the other at any stage. In the early rounds Sheppard had a slight lead, but Phelan soon evened matters, and in the last half of the battle there was little choice. Phelan weighed 123 pounds ring side, and Sheppard was one pound lighter. Sheppard was warned several times for striking Phelan on the back of the head in the clinches, and in the last round Phelan was warned for "butting." The bout was put on before the scheduled semi-final to conform with the 10 o'clock rule of the State Athletic Commission.

CALIFORNIA TENNIS PAIR WIN DOUBLES

McLoughlin and Bundy Beat Behr and Inman for New York State Title.

Maurice E. McLoughlin and Thomas C. Bundy, the Pacific Coast lawn tennis pair, won the doubles titles of the New York State championship tournament yesterday on the turf courts of the Crescent Athletic Club, at Bay Ridge, defeating Karl H. Behr and Frederick C. Inman by the score of 6—4, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4. The match was fought out at a furious pace. It was closer than the Pacific Coast challengers for the National titles had expected, for the total of the games' tally stood at 20 to 18, while the points totals were 133 to 127, a narrow margin of 6 points.

The day was unsuited to the best performance on the part of McLoughlin and Bundy. There was a strong wind and slight showers. This served to slow down the courts, and it likewise diminished the gallery, as scarcely a thousand spectators fringed the court. Relatively McLoughlin played better than his partner. He was often askew on his low backhanders, but he made up for his mistakes by flashing into the breach at critical times, bringing off well-placed smashes for needed points. Inman and Behr each had spells of brilliancy, but the latter had rather the best of it, especially in the second set

The surprising thing was that the Eastern pair outplaced the Pacific Coast champions by a total of 46 placed shots to 35. It was on the outs and nets of Behr and Inman that the match hinged. They piled up 56 nets to 44 for McLoughlin and Bundy, while the Californians tallied 31 outs to 30 for their opponents. During the contest McLoughlin scored on five service aces, and was excellent in this department.

The championship match in the singles will be played this afternoon, McLoughlin, the playing-through champion, who defeated Pell in the final last year, meeting R. Norris Williams.

POLO SURPRISE AT PIER.

Kansas City Defeats Philadelphia C. C. in Junior Championship Game.

Special to The New York Times.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 9.—There was an upset of the favorites in the first game for the junior polo championship at the Point Judith Polo Club to-day when Kansas City Polo Club four, after a contest that had many points of interest and in which the Missouri ponies appeared to advantage, defeated the Philadelphia Country Club team by 7¼ to 6. There was excellent supporting work by the winners, and the losers, although playing E. Lowber Stokes in place of P. S. P. Randolph, Jr., who was out of the game from a polo hurt, were not lacking in this respect.

It may be termed a thoroughly well-played game in which the Kansas City outfit had the better fortune at the critical times. The goal getting was very well divided, T. A. Valie leading for the winners, and M. G. Rosengarten for Philadelphia.

The second game for the junior championship was won in a sweeping fashion by the Piping Rock combination after being behind until the half time, who defeated Myopia by 11 to 4¾. Raymond Belmont scored six goals, and all the Piping Rocks scored besides aiding the others by playups and passes to get the ball between the posts.

In the special match without handicap between the Black River and Point Judith teams the Canadians played Capt. Long as No. 1 instead of No. 3, and the change seemed to rejuvenate the visitors, for they won by 15 to 1. Rumsey made the only count for the Americans. The line-up and summaries:

FAST POLO AT NEWPORT.

Meadow Brook Defeats Freebooters in Match, 7¼ Goals to 3½.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 9.—By far the best polo seen here this season was this afternoon's game between Meadow Brook and the Freebooters, won by the former by a score of 7¼ to 3½. The team play of Meadow Brook told heavily throughout, and the Freebooters, handicapped by the lack of this quality, though stronger individually than their opponents, were easily defeated.

There were two accidents. In the second period Mr. Crane was hit in the abdomen by the ball, and in the sixth Mr. Keene accidentally hit Lawrence Waterbury a glancing blow on the forehead with the mallet. Neither accident was serious.

Mr. Crane played a brilliant game, but the star of the contest was "Larry" Waterbury, he making four goals and being in every play. The contest was witnessed by a large crowd, the largest number of people who have seen a match this season being out. Applause was frequent and well merited. The line-up and summary:

Meadow Brook—E. S. Reynal, J. M. Waterbury, Jr., Lawrence Waterbury, William G. Loew.

Freebooters—A. Balding, Joshua Crane, Foxhall Keene, R. L. Agassiz.

Summary—Meadow Brook, 8 goals; lost by safety, J. M. Waterbury, ¼; lost by foul, W. G. Loew, ½; net score, 7¼. Freebooters—Earned goals, 4; lost by safeties, Balding and Keene, ½; net score, 3½. Referees—M. Stevenson and F. H. Prince, Jr.

KIRKBY AND STURGES

To Battle for Shinnecock Hills Golf Championship To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Oswald Kirkby of Englewood, the New Jersey champion, and E. E. Sturges of Wykagyl, will be opponents in the 36-hole final round for the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club to-morrow. It was announced yesterday afternoon that this method of deciding the winner of the principal trophy would be substituted for the 18-hole decisive circuit, scheduled originally for this afternoon. This change, however, applies only to the first two divisions for the remaining divisions were finished to-day.

Kirkby's path to the final was obstructed by Robert C. Watson of Garden City, and the New Jersey title holder settled the matter by a 2 and 1 margin. Sturges found himself arrayed against James A. Tyng, the Baltusrol veteran, and it was the younger man's match by 3 up and 1 to play.

To-morrow there will be a 36-hole handicap as originally planned. The summary:

First sixteen, semi-final round—Oswald Kirkby, Englewood, beat Robert C. Watson, Garden City, 2 up and 1 to play; E. E. Sturges, Wykagyl, beat James A. Tyng, Baltusrol, 3 up and 1 to play.

Beaten eight, first sixteen, semi-final round—J. N. Steele, Jr., Maidstone, beat Lucien H. Tyng, Baltusrol, 1 up; G. C. Stanley, Yale, beat A. G. McIlvaine, Shinnecock Hills, 1 up, (19 holes.)

Final round—Stanley beat Steele, 4 up and 3 to play.

Second sixteen, semi-final round—Owen Winston, Shinnecock Hills, beat Hoagland Gates, Nassau, 5 up and 4 to play; C. T. Richardson, Shinnecock Hills, beat D. P. Kingsley, Shinnecock Hills, 4 up and 2 to play.

Beaten eight, second sixteen, semi-final round—W. P. Harding, Jr., Shinnecock Hills, beat James A. Stillman, National, 1 up; G. A. Dixon, Jr., Shinnecock Hills, beat D. M. Marvin, Maidstone, 3 up and 2 to play.

Final round—Dixon beat Harding, 7 up and 5 to play.

American Balloon Pilots Named.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 9.—George H. Myers, President of the Kansas City Aero Club, whose two balloons, the Uncle Sam and Kansas City II., finished first and second, respectively, in the National elimination race two weeks ago to-day, was notified by the Aero Club of America that Capt. H. E. Honeywell and John Watts had been named to pilot the bags in the international race in Germany next Fall.

Albert Holtz of the Cincinnati Aero Club, who took third honors in the elimination race with the Drifter, is the third pilot to represent America. The pilots will select their own aids.

Dionne a Winner at Woodmere.

G. A. L. Dionne, the playing-through cup holder, continued his victorious progress through the Woodmere Country Club singles yesterday on the courts at Woodmere, Long Island. In his third-round match Dionne Defeated Henry Schomburg at 6—0, 6—3. He then took the measure of Paul Foerster by the same score. The doubles were also begun, and in this part of the tournament Leonard Beekman, the Pawling School star, paired with A. F. Latimer, defeated Wood and Brown at 6—3, 6—0.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, AUG. 10, 1912.

WILL THEY MAKE THE SACRIFICE?

Mr. ROOSEVELT will open his campaign in Providence, R. I., next week. Will his candidacy, his oratory, and his Socialistic principles sweep the Republicans of that State into the third-term fold? Will they trust themselves to the precarious footing of his platform, and follow him in his exceedingly doubtful venture, at the risk of losing control of their State and the possession of its offices? The question is worth considering.

The Republicans of Rhode Island have for years been very comfortable. They have elected their Governor and their State officers by sufficient majorities. They have enjoyed themselves in the security of local power. They have been little disturbed by talk of Aldrichism and the interests. Last year the Republican candidate for Governor had 37,969 votes, against 30,575 for the Democratic candidate. Four years ago Mr. TAFT had 43,942 votes, against 24,706 for Mr. BRYAN. Mr. ROOSEVELT insists upon the nomination of Progressive candidates for State offices in every State. On the basis of the Gubernatorial vote of last year the Progressive candidate for Governor in Rhode Island would defeat the Republicans if he got no more than 4,000 Republican votes; on the basis of the Presidential vote four years ago, 10,000 Progressive votes would give the State to the Democrats. It is a pretty serious question for the Republican admirers of the third-term candidate.

There are like conditions in other States. Kansas will elect a Governor this year. Two years ago the Democratic candidate had 146,104 votes, the Republican candidate 162,181. On that basis, as few as 8,000 votes for the Roosevelt Gubernatorial candidate would make Kansas Democratic. In 1908 Mr. TAFT had 197,216, Mr. BRYAN 161,209. Less than 20,000 Republican votes cast for Mr. ROOSEVELT would give Gov. WILSON the Electoral vote of Kansas.

West Virginia also elects a Governor. At the last Gubernatorial election the Democrats cast 118,909, and Gov. GLASSCOCK, the successful Republican candidate, received 130,807. If the Progressive candidate for Governor should get 6,000 Republican votes, Gov. GLASSCOCK's successor would be a Democrat. On the basis of the last Presidential vote in that State 14,000 votes cast for Mr. ROOSEVELT would make the State Democratic. Is it possible that the intense silence of Gov. GLASSCOCK since the first Chicago convention is due to a sober examination of these figures? Like conditions are found in Indiana, Illinois, and Missouri, in all of which States Governors will be elected. Gov. DENEEN and Gov. HADLEY took early account of the dangers involved in a commitment to the third-term candidate. Pennsylvania does not elect a Governor. Mr. FLINN of Pittsburgh, therefore, has less to lose, and greater freedom of action. That explains his continued devotion to Mr. ROOSEVELT.

What are the probabilities? Will the Republicans in the States we have mentioned, and in many other States where the local offices are at stake, offer up their fingers as a burnt sacrifice to the Colonel in the futile attempt to pull his chestnuts out of the fire?

THE LATEST VETO.

The President has vetoed for the second time a bill reducing duties on wool and woolens. It was passed avowedly to "put him in a hole," and, as politicians reason, that was a shrewd thing to do. We do not like this sort of tariff legislation; it is too much on the order of the old "truck and dicker," with a slight difference in methods.

The device, however, is a sign that the politicians realize the existence of a deep popular desire to have the tariff reduced, and that is important. The issue having been made up, the President's veto will be considered in deciding it. We do not think the message will strengthen the protectionist party. In it, in substance, Mr. TAFT says: You can have no reduction of the tariff on wool that does not meet my notion of what the Tariff Board's report recommends. But the report of the Tariff Board is so vague, confused, and pointless that no two persons are likely to have the same notion of it. The voters who want a real reduction of the tariff will not consent to be put off until a majority of the Congress and the President can interpret alike a report of this sort. The impression on the public mind will be that the position of the President is an excuse for not seriously reducing the tariff.

This impression will be confirmed by Mr. TAFT's insistence on the absurd principle of tariff duties equal to the difference in costs at home and abroad. It is entirely impracticable to fix any such difference correctly. The Tariff Board does not do it, and cannot do it. It admits that there is no definite cost here or abroad. That costs differ widely as between different parts of the country, as between different factories or farms in the same section, as between the product of the same farm or factory in one year and another. No uniform or accurate or complete record of costs is made, and manufacturers and growers do not know what real costs are. In the great body of cases they could not find out. Foreign costs are equally difficult to ascertain. Now, to say that the consumer shall be taxed to meet the difference between two unknown quantities is, logically, an absurdity and morally impudent.

Mr. TAFT could not very well help vetoing the Wool Tariff bill again. When it was first presented to him he might have signed it with credit to himself and without injury to business or industry. Such action at that time would largely have taken the tariff out of politics, which is, of course, desirable. But he did not see his way plain to take that action. He must suffer the consequences. His second veto does not strengthen him. It rather weakens him. But in our judgment it will tend, on the whole, to bring nearer a real and sound reduction of the tariff.

THE BUMPER CROPS.

In interpreting the August crop report—the first one to give a quantitive estimate at a time when the season is so far advanced that harvesting is already proceeding—it is necessary to remember that this is an improving year, and that the improvement is on a scale as unusual as the fact itself. During July it is true that corn only maintained its promise, but that means that it did not suffer the customary deterioration. The promise of wheat has improved during a critical month by 51,000,000 bushels and oats by 68,000,000 bushels.

On comparison with the August figures last year the gain in these three crops is 191,000,000 bushels of corn, 16,000,000 bushels of Spring and Winter wheat, and 390,000,000 bushels of oats. Here is almost 600,000,000 bushels of gain on three crops, with rye and barley not considered, and with gains since the date of the report. It is still necessary to add 20,000,000 tons of hay, a trifle which stands for a lot of beef and butter. The break in cotton prices this week is disheartening to the pessimists.

This is a billion-dollar year for a billion-dollar country, and it is a fair chance that our crops will exceed ten billions in value for the first time. Who would not be a farmer? Not only does he sell his crops dear, but for every dollar he puts in his pocket from his crops he adds something to the value of his land. That is all right; but won't the farmers please give the railways a chance? Without the railways the farmers could not sell their crops, and their farms would be worth hardly more than they gave for them, if they gave anything, as is not always the case. The railways are not asking any more than they used to get. They would be delighted to get old rates, and even might be satisfied if the downward movement were merely checked, provided they were allowed to control their costs by paying no more than fair market prices.

HONORABLE ARBITRATION OR COMMERCIAL WAR.

The Senate has now definitely taken its stand upon the position that when the Hay-Pauncefote treaty says "all" it means "all other." The result of this construction of a contract intended to impose equality upon the world's commerce through the Panama Canal is that the United States exempts itself alone from the rules which it makes for all other nations. The Senate applies this both to coastwise and foreign commerce, leaving no possible defense in the argument advanced at first that discrimination in favor of our coastwise commerce was a purely domestic matter, and no more the business of the rest of the world than our railway rates. The Secretary of War, in charge of Panama affairs, has publicly professed adhesion to this view, and it is said, we believe without authority, that the President is ready to sign the bill if the House shall approve the Senate's amendments, including those aimed at the railroads. He should veto it. It is necessary to face the fact that the official opinion of the United States is prepared to take action which is not approved by a considerable body of unofficial opinion of this country, and which is condemned by the rest of the world.

Apart from its obviously unjust anti-railroad features, which are a matter of domestic policy, even those prepared to take this action cannot like the situation. However strongly they believe that their action is correct, they cannot face with composure a threatening outlook. However indifferent they may be to appearances that the United States is prepared to accept a reputation of perfidy for profit, they know that this cannot be the end of the matter. The world will be as ready to defend itself as the United States would be, and has countless means of doing so. On terms of friendly rivalry under equality of opportunity only profit to all would result from the opening of this new facility of commerce. Under terms of discrimination in favor of the United States, over the protest of all other nations, only loss to all can result, and greater loss to the United States than to any other nation. The loss to the United States is disproportionate to the pitifully small stake for which the game of deceit and defiance is played. The exemption of tolls amounts only to about a lighterage charge in New York Harbor. This is a considerable addition to the credit side of the marine balance sheet, but is a grain of sand in the Nation's commerce.

The offset will be commercial war in the world's markets, waged in ways difficult to defeat, and costly even if eventually they should be defeated. The very same word equality is used in the contract for the American use of the Canadian canals, and the same construction as is applied to the Panama Canal will exclude our ships from the lakes, disorganizing our iron trade, or putting it and all other commerce over that route at a disadvantage. We have no shipping which can be prejudiced via the Suez route, but we have a large commerce which will be discriminated against. There will be a cabal of tariffs against us. The world will despise us, and will have reason, in the opinion of many of ourselves. Not in years shall we cease to regret our course, whether it be right or wrong, for we assume to be judges in our own case, and expect others to accept our judgments. And this for thirty pieces of silver.

There are two ways out. One is to do what we engaged, cost what it may, or frankly ask for release and pay the price. The other way is to propitiate the opinion which we are offending by deference to it, in the same manner that would be adopted by two honorable men of business disagreeing upon the interpretation of a contract. They would ask for an interpretation of it by disinterested authorities, and abide the result. We have our option about the first method, but there is no escape from the second. We have agreed to arbitrate arbitrable matters, and this is arbitrable if ever there were anything arbitrable. It is a matter of money under a written contract. There is also a question of our National dishonor. We shall be doubly dishonored if we decline to arbitrate the matter. If this shall happen there are Americans who will blush for their country, and take the shame to themselves. Since we should arbitrate, why not do so freely, of our own motion? Instead of being dragged to The Hague like a nation of pickpockets, why should we not state our case and ask for an opinion? If it supports the case made by Congress no nation can disagree. If it declares that Congress is wrong, we shall still be as free as we are now to take, as highwaymen, what we want.

JUGGLING WITH LIFE FOR PROFIT.

> The fact is that at least 25 per cent. of the druggists in this country buy their most important drugs—the things that are used in making up the most delicate prescriptions—from men they have never seen before, and probably will never see again. They don't know the sources of the things they buy in many cases. Heart stimulants and the like will be bought without any maker's name back of them.—HERMAN A. METZ.

Ex-Controller METZ, who is at the head of a large importing drug company, declares that in this city "no "man can be sure he is getting the "right ingredients in having a pre-"scription filled." Several drug importers have joined with Mr. METZ in gathering evidence against the fraudulent dealers in New York, and he hopes for "the arrest and conviction of at least 500 of them."

The Federal pure drugs law permits to be sold in inter-State commerce unbranded drugs which may consist wholly of adulterations, as well as drugs with brands differing from the standard. But the law of this State makes it a misdemeanor to sell fraudulent drugs, or to hold them for sale, prescribing a fine of $50 for the first offense, imprisonment for the second. Some of the adulterated medicines are extremely poisonous, others are ineffective at the critical moments of disease. The druggists who buy unbranded and unstandardized drugs are juggling with men's lives.

THE SUFFRAGISTS' POSITION.

The letter which THE TIMES prints this morning from IDA HUSTED HARPER, bitter toward Mr. ROOSEVELT and chagrined at the part taken in the founding of the Third Party by Miss ADDAMS, the Vice President of the National Suffrage Association, presents a study of mingled emotions. "If all the "suffragists in the country should go "into this new party and utterly re-"pudiate the Democratic and Repub-"lican Parties, they would be fully "justified," Mrs. HARPER says—but "from one standpoint." That standpoint is of the suffragists' "just claims," which the leaders of the old parties have treated with contumely.

Doubtless the resentment which Mrs. HARPER says the rank and file of the suffragists feel prompted Miss ADDAMS and the Chicago organization to violate "the unbroken tradition and unwritten law" of the National Association since its founding in 1869, "that its "members must be absolutely non-"partisan." Mrs. HARPER argues that the National Progressive Party would have acted after the manner of every new party, at its birth, to "promise the millennium" and with it woman suffrage. The Chicago suffragists would have gained as much without committing themselves. Now their influence, become partisan, will not be felt so widely. Moreover, they make enemies of Democrats and Republicans. The grant of suffrage in the various States must come from one of those parties if it comes at all.

TURKEY.

The latest reports from Turkey are somewhat more encouraging. The organ of the Young Turk Party in Constantinople promises conditional support to the present Government until its ability to deal with the situation is tested. The commission visiting Albania is reported to have found the restless people of that province inclined to accept the concessions which the Government can offer. Reports come of informal but serious steps toward an armistice with Italy preceding a settlement. These are the two most threatening points for the general policy of the Government.

Much importance, however, is attached to the meeting of Young Turk leaders at Salonika and the attitude of the army. The Government is practically the creation of the Military League, which began its operations by mutiny and secured the dissolution of the Parliament by threat of insurrection. If the league can control the mass of the army, it will go still further, but it will be fiercely opposed by the Young Turks, whose power was also derived from the army. The chief hope of avoiding civil war lies in the chance that the army will be pretty equally divided and a compromise will be effected.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Another Election in Haiti.

Nothing could better illustrate the state of affairs existing in Haiti or the ideas of government that prevail there than the fact that the President of the little republic deemed it judicious for himself and his family to keep the larger part of his country's ammunition in the cellar of his "palace." As he was, by all accounts, a man of considerable intelligence and ability, as well as of education, he doubtless knew the danger which this curious practice involved, but obviously he preferred to run the risk of just such an explosion as the one that cost him his life rather than not to have his munitions of war under his personal supervision and control, and where he could put his hands on them at a moment's notice.

An experienced revolutionist himself, and hardly yet settled in the office he had seized by force of arms, President LECONTE could have had no delusions as to what his tenure of power depended upon and must have been well aware that any one of a dozen ambitious "Generals" would take the first opportunity to remove him, either to the other world or to the pretty little park in St. Thomas where a group of Haitian statesmen can be seen on most pleasant days, busily conspiring to bring about a new revolt at home. Whether the explosion that killed President LECONTE was the result of some such plot or of unassisted chance seems to be at present undecided, but the one explanation is as likely to be true as the other.

Yet in its way the Government of Haiti is a stable one, for only a few existing republics are older. Not once since the French were driven out has there been even an attempt to change the form of administration. All the revolutions have been against men, not against insitutions. Each of them was, in effect, an election—an expression by means of rifles instead of ballots of the popular will. Incidentally, the successful rebel, after capturing the capital, always observes the form of submitting to the people his claim to the Presidency, and of course he takes good care that the verdict shall be in his favor.

From our point of view the consequences of such republicanism as this are extremely bad, but the Haitians evidently like them, and until our interests suffer too much the thing will probably go on. There is no indication that native initiative will ever change the fashion.

Another Concrete Dam Fails.

When the Austin dam "went out" and swept away a little city, drowning most of its inhabitants, the explanation given by the engineers was that for reasons of economy their plans had not been fully carried out by the owners of the plant. These statements were generally accepted, though perhaps a few people may have had their doubts whether a big corporation, however soulless, would have been apt to risk a great investment by saving money in this particular way if its officials had been authoritatively advised as to the probable consequences.

The doubts may be strengthened by the fact that a million-dollar dam across the Ohio River near Gallipolis, built by the Government and just completed, has repeated the Austin episode in everything except the destruction of life. Government engineers, as is well known, do not have any motive for sacrificing safety to economy, nor is there any interference with the carrying out of their plans. They therefore will have to find a different explanation for what has happened. That they will confess to incompetency is hardly to be expected.

Both at Gallipolis and at Austin the material used in dam building was concrete, a substance regarding which, according to some—especially those interested in making walls in the old-fashioned way of stone and brick—not quite everything is yet known even by the most up-to-date engineers. If a few more big concrete dams break the criticisms of concrete are likely to increase.

Poet Finds His Limbo.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was glad to read in THE TIMES this morning that a magazine devoted exclusively to poetry will soon be launched in Chicago. It seems to me that there ought to have been one long ago. I am a poet, or rhymist, of increasing ability, but the editors here seem to be blind to the fact, for they return my productions just about as fast as I send them in, without even a printed note of thanks. Am now going to try my luck in Chicago, thanks to your timely information. GRATEFUL.

New York, July 31, 1912.

Colorado Fuel and Iron Failed to Tell Assessors About It.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 9.—In a report to the State Board of Equalization certain officials of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company are accused either of misrepresenting to stockholders the property holdings of the corporation in this State or of attempting to evade $103,936 in taxes.

The report sets forth that a reappraisement was made in 1910, whereby more than $19,000,000 was added to the valuation of the property holdings of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company in Wyoming, that this valuation was used by the company in making a report to the stockholders, and continues:

"When the company came to list its property for taxation we did not get an increase of 19 per cent. On the contrary, counsel for the company asked that the output for 1910 be placed at a figure 10 per cent. lower than the preceding year."

PROF. ARCTOWSKI HONORED.

Austrian University Confers Doctorate on Public Library Official.

The University of Lemberg, Austria, as an incident of its recent 250th anniversary, conferred upon Prof. Henryk Arctowski, chief of the science division of the New York Public Library, the honorary degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

Dr. Arctowski achieved scientific distinction for his work as meteorologist of the Belgian Antarctic Expedition and later for world-wide researches looking to predictions, years in advance, of weather and its effects on crops and food supply.

COLOMBIA AND PERU.

The Latter's Consul General Acts Upon a Letter to The Times.

The Peruvian Consul General informs THE TIMES in reference to the letter published yesterday over the signature of the Consul General of Colombia at New York, "imputing to the Peruvian Government and people the commission and encouragement of acts of savagery and cruelty against the Indians of the Putumayo," that the matter has been referred to the Minister of Peru at Washington for such action as may be considered desirable or necessary.

The Peruvian Government, however, does not permit its Consular representatives to enter into international controversies or to make attacks on other nations through the medium of newspapers.

Mrs. James Terry Gardiner.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Eliza Greene Doane Gardiner, wife of James T. Gardiner of this city, who died at Northeast Harbor, Me., July 31, was born Oct. 22, 1854, in Burlington, N. J. From her early years there in the home of her grandfather, the first Bishop Doane, throughout her girlhood in Albany as the daughter of the present Bishop Doane, she was used to the wide hospitality and large interests of public life. Her own great gifts of personal charm, tact, graciousness, and utter unconsciousness of self, her quick understanding of others, her desire always to give pleasure, her affectionate remembrance of all who she had ever known, made her a powerful leader in Albany, and enabled her to carry out in a wonderful way the Bishop's work in building and starting the Cathedral, St. Agnes's School, where she was among the first graduates, the Child's Hospital, and St. Margaret's House.

She married in 1881 James Terry Gardiner, then Director of the New York State Survey. Their home in Albany and Northeast Harbor, was, in even greater measure than her girlhood's home, the expression of her vivid personality.

There was hardly any good work in Albany thirty years ago that did not owe much to the generous energy that worked and the magnetic charm that drew others into the work.

This helpful spirit was so much a part of her that, when Mr. Gardiner's position as Vice President of the Erie Railroad Coal Companies removed their home to New York, she became at once a much-valued leader in church and charitable work there, always spending her strength and her organizing ability with generosity for others.

Among her many interests, too many to dwell upon, perhaps the nearest to her heart was the spreading of the Gospel of Christ, and as a missionary organizer and speaker she was to many a beloved leader.

New York, Aug. 6, 1912. A FRIEND.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I cannot resist the impulse to express to you my deep appreciation of your fairness in printing the splendid Chicago Progressive Convention reports. Their literary completeness enabled the reader almost to see with his own eyes the various proceedings which were making history and precedent, while the running comment on moral and sentimental lines gave a delightful zest to the story.

A sincere Roosevelt man may hesitate to adopt the slogan to "follow anywhere" he may lead and yet believe that the success of Theodore Roosevelt and the Progressive Party at the polls in November means as much the emancipation of all the people from the domination of political bosses as did the Chicago Convention of 1860 mean the ultimate freedom of the slaves of that period.

Where Is Roosevelt Leading?

From The Brooklyn Eagle.

The attention of serious readers is called to some extracts, printed on this page to-day, from a letter by Victor L. Berger, the Socialist Congressman from Milwaukee, to THE NEW YORK TIMES. Mr. Berger is probably the leading Socialist in this country. It was his political skill that made possible the election of Seidel, the Socialist Mayor of Milwaukee, and his own election as the only avowed Socialist in Congress. Nobody doubts that Mr. Berger knows Socialism when he sees it, and he recognizes it in chunks in Mr. Roosevelt's "Confession of Faith." Mr. Berger traces the "Confession of Faith" straight to its source in the works of Marx, and thus shows where the Knights of Labor, as well as Roosevelt, acquired their principles.

The most significant part of Mr. Berger's letter is that in which he speculates upon the position of these ideas, not to-day, but in the next generation. He says that Mr. Roosevelt "has not learned that one cannot throw ideas into the masses and then expect that these ideas should not take root and grow. Mr. Roosevelt, after accepting so much from the Socialists, cannot expect the American people to stop thinking where he wants them to stop."

In one generation these ideas have grown from the platform of a secret revolutionary organization into the "Confession of Faith" of a candidate for President of the United States. If by any cataclysm of popular feeling that candidate should again become President, what is to prevent this State Socialism from incorporation in the Constitution?

HER PET.

The elephant he waves his trunk
  And trumpets for the old
Republicans who still refuse
  To leave the party fold.
The donkey for the Democrats
  Lifts up his voice and heels,
And kicks the platform in his joy,
  And wags his ears, and squeals.

The bull moose with the Roosevelt clan
  Is marching now, you bet,
And everybody has a pet
  Except the suffragette.
She, too, when she goes forth to vote,
  Will want a mascot, maybe,
So get the baby carriage out
  And let her take the baby.

DRIVES AWAY NOISY BIRDS.

Roman Candles and Shots Fired Into Montclair's Trees Scatter Pests.

For three evenings now the people who live in the Crescent, in the residential district of Montclair, N. J., have been able to sit on their porches and make neighborly calls in peace, for the pest of birds, which long inflicted the Crescent is at an end temporarily at least. The efforts of the State Game Wardens, who have been spending the evenings firing blank charges into the trees and entertaining the Crescent small boys by setting off Roman candles, have met with success, and the feathered colony has sought another roosting place.

The Crescent is two blocks long, running cross town from Trinity Place to Fullerton Avenue. Great shade trees line both sides of the street and the houses, set back, look out at the passerby across well kept lawns. Folk who live there are offended because the Crescent was spoken of in a newspaper as being "aristocratic." They say that "restricted" is the word that should have been used for it conveys the impression of exclusiveness without snobbishness.

It was this restricted street that was selected by a flock of grackles or blackbirds and starlings some years ago as their night resting place. At first folk of the Crescent were interested in the coming of the birds at nightfall. The bird colony grew into a bird city and then, the residents say, there were enough to populate a respectable rookery. Last year they became such a nuisance that the town undertook to frighten them away by shooting, but this method did not appeal to the Audubon Society, and such a storm of protest was aroused that the people had to bear conditions as best they could until November when the birds migrated.

Early in June the birds again made their appearance and sought the retreat of the Crescent to make their home. Their habits were bad and they were noisy. So this Summer residents of the Crescent planned to get rid of the nuisance whatever public opinion had to say. As one of them explained yesterday, grackles, and starlings are not protected by law, and those who talked of the lack of bird love in the Crescent spoke without knowing conditions and from a great distance. Nearly every one in the street put an electric bell or some other noise maker in the trees, but the birds only moved over a bit so that the ringing of the bells would not disturb their slumber.

Some cut the limbs of the trees in order to curtail roosting space. This did not help matters and the game wardens were appealed to. For several nights now a systematic attempt has been made to clear out the birds. The street presented a war time scene. Men patroled it with guns over their shoulders, and every once in a while they would fire upward. Then Roman candles were shot into the trees to the evident discontent of the birds. Finally the grackles complained to the starlings that the neighborhood was getting so noisy that they could not sleep of nights. Many of them sought other resting places and then still more deserted until last night not more than twenty-five of the birds returned to their accustomed resting place.

But the people are not confident enough to take down the bells from the trees.

A large colony of the birds have moved to Midland Avenue, Glenridge, and there the residents are facing the same conditions that existed in the Crescent.

AID FOR HARLAN FAMILY.

Leading Lawyers Start $40,000 Fund for Justice's Widow and Daughters.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Prominent members of the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States have started a movement to raise $40,000 for the relief of the widow and two daughters of the late Associate Justice John M. Harlan. They have sent a letter to members of the bar, asking for $500 contributions. The signers of the letter are Joseph H. Choate, Lewis Cass Ledyard, Elbridge T. Young, William D. Guthrie, Victor Morawitz, Francis L. Stetson, John L. Cadwalader, William Nelson Cromwell, John G. Johnson and Elihu Root.

Justice Harlan, after a long and distinguished career, died leaving his family unprovided for. The letter states that the writers are informed that the Harlan home in Washington has been mortgaged to its full value.

DEPORT MOTHER AND SON.

Senator Hitchcock Unable to Prevent Separation of Stewart Family.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 9.—Nine-year-old Stanley Stewart and his mother, appealing for permission to enter the United States to join other members of their family and become American citizens, were ordered deported to-day.

A special medical board at Quebec pronounced the little fellow feeble-minded. The mother must return to England with him as an accompanying alien, but three other children were admitted to go to their father at Omaha, Neb.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska made the thousand-mile trip from Washington to Quebec to see if the mother and child could be admitted.

WILL VETO SALARY BILL.

Taft Expresses His Attitude to Measure Abolishing Commerce Court.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—President Taft told friends to-day that he expected to veto the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation bill, which carries an amendment abolishing the Commerce Court. The President indicated clearly in his veto of the Army bill, several weeks ago, that he was opposed to legislation attached to appropriation bills. In addition to his objection abolishing the Commerce Court, Mr. Taft is said to be opposed to the proposal to limit the Civil Service employes to seven-year terms.

The Cotton Tariff bill framed by the Democratic House of Representatives, and also facing a veto, was made the unfinished business of the Senate to-night, and will come up for consideration early to-morrow.

Santo Domingo Wants Loan to Fight Haiti—We May Dissuade Them.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The Dominican Minister here, Dr. Don Francisco J. Peynado, has been instructed by his Government to arrange for a loan of $1,000,000 to enable the Dominican Republic to war upon Haiti.

The State Department will try to dissuade the two republics from their present warlike intentions.

VOTING MACHINES FAULTY.

Only 300 of State's 1,000 Adapted to Amended Law.

ALBANY, Aug. 9.—Only 300 of the 1,000 voting machines in use in this State are equipped to carry out the provisions of the amended election law which provides for a separate ballot for Presidential Electors, according to a letter received to-day by Attorney General Carmody from Superintendent of Elections Voorhis.

The later machines can be adjusted to carry a separate ballot and have space for the insertions of names at the top, while 700 of the old machines are ill-adapted to adjustment.

Cleveland Butcher's Will Cuts Disobedient Children to $25 Each.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 9.—Added inducement to the Scriptural promise for obedience to parents is offered the children of Feliks Majewski, wealthy butcher, whose will was filed for probate today.

To each of his five daughters and four sons was left $1,000, on condition that they obey their mother, with a provision that they shall receive only $25 if disobedient. A part of the will provides that any child who leaves home before attaining majority without the consent of the mother will forfeit his or her inheritance. Friends say that the absence of one son just before the father's death inspired the unusual provisions of the will.

ASKS IF ROOSEVELT SET SUFFRAGE TRAP

Many Women, but Few Suffragists, at Bull Moose Convention, Says Ida Husted Harper.

ONLY 9 STATES REPRESENTED

With Illinois Women Chiefly Under Colonel's Spell—Criticizes Miss Addams's Part in the Convention.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Did Col. Roosevelt set a trap for the suffragists, and did they all fall into it? This is the inference to be drawn from the newspaper accounts of the convention held in Chicago this week, which have had it practically in control of the suffragists. Let us remember first that to the reporter nowadays every woman is a suffragist, whether she commits a murder, runs off with somebody's husband, or interferes with a case in court that is none of her business. Every woman who gets into the limelight, voluntarily or otherwise, does it in the name of suffrage, and so, naturally, it is made to appear that the suffragists of the entire country have joined in the stampede of the Bull Moose Party.

"Scores of them sat as delegates," it was said. The Chicago Tribune named less than a score, and credited them to but nine States, only two in the East—Massachusetts and New York. In the former Mrs. Maud Wood Park, the only representative suffragist appointed, declined to serve, and Mrs. Washburn Child accepted with the understanding that she was "not a suffragist."

Of the New York delegates, Miss Dreier represented the Women's Trade Union League; Miss Goldmark and Miss Kellor, social work; Mrs. William Grant Brown the City Federation of Clubs. They, with their alternates and the Buffalo delegates, are all believers in woman suffrage, but the only one officially connected with a suffrage society was Mrs. Robert H. Elder, President of a club in Brooklyn. As Mrs. Elder a few weeks ago organized a club of Democratic women and took them to the convention in Baltimore, it is a little difficult to tell just what she represents.

In three of the other seven States women vote, and those at the convention were there as political delegates and not as suffragists. Michigan, Tennessee, and Georgia had one delegate each, in no way representing the suffrage movement. Mrs. Longstreet, widow of the Confederate General, appointed from Georgia, and a strong suffragist, refused to attend.

So much for the capture of the suffragists by the Progressive Party! What it really did capture were the women of Chicago, and, while in the big crowd that met the conquering hero at the railroad station and the parade of several hundred that marched into the convention hall were members of women's societies of all sorts, it must be admitted that suffragists were to the fore. They were represented officially, socially, and every other way, and seemed to be as completely under the influence of the great spellbinder as the Rpublican men of Illinois were at the convention which met there in June. It was this crowd which created the impression that the suffragists of the entire country had gone into the new party.

In taking this action the Chicago suffragists violated the unbroken tradition and unwritten law of the National Association since its founding in 1869—that its members must be absolutely non-partisan, that they must not indorse candidates or parties further than to express appreciation of favorable action toward woman suffrage. Why should the suffragists rush en masse to this new party and candidate on account of their indorsement of woman suffrage when it has been just as strongly indorsed by the Presidential candidates and platforms of the Prohibition and Socialist Parties ever since they existed?

What is the difference between the following planks? "We demand unrestricted and equal suffrage for men and women," adopted by the National Socialist Convention, May 12, 1912; "We favor suffrage for women on the same terms as men," adopted by the National Prohibition Convention, July 10, 1912; "The Progressive Party pledges itself to the task of securing equal suffrage to men and women alike," adopted Aug. 7, 1912. For many years it has been the custom of all new parties to declare for the enfranchisement of women, because they promise the millennium and have to grasp at straws. Why, then, should the Chicago suffragists fall into the outstretched arms of the Progressive Party? Far be it from any one to say it is because in that section of the country this party is believed to have a good chance of winning.

The suffragists of Illinois can settle their own questions of politics and policy, but what deeply concerns those of the country at large is the part taken in this convention by Miss Jane Addams, First Vice President of the National Suffrage Association. Unquestionably she believed that candidate and party were raised up to usher in that era of social justice for which she had so long striven—indeed, she made this perfectly clear in seconding the nomination—and it was said that throughout the convention "her face appeared as if a light were burning behind it and shining through," and she exclaimed repeatedly: "Oh, this platform, this whole thing, this fight for human welfare—it is so grand, so grand!" Believing thus, it was her right to take the prominent part she did, but she should first have resigned her National office. Miss Addams doubtless will find that she has aroused much antagonism throughout the country, and that her influence when appearing before bodies of men especially will not be so strong as heretofore.

And yet let it be remembered that only six weeks previous, in that same city, this woman, to whom the highest possible honors were accorded by the distinguished men of this new party, appeared before the Resolutions Committee of the Republican Convention, was asked to confine her remarks to two minutes, and her plea that they would recognize the political rights of women was contemptuously ignored. If all the suffragists in the country should go into this new party and utterly repudiate the Democratic and Republican Parties, they would be fully justified, from one standpoint, because of the way their claims have been treated. At the present moment they extend to both of these parties, with interest, the same contempt as they have received.

On the other hand, what did Miss Addams secure from this Progressive convention that it would not have given if she had maintained a non-partisan attitude? The woman suffrage and all the humanitarian policies were foreordained and predestined before the party was born, and she lost her contest for the rights of the negro. The reason the latter was excluded from the general programme of uplift was given by Col. Roosevelt just before going to Chicago. He would lose some votes in the South among the negroes because of his stand, he said, but he would get more votes in the North on account of it than he possibly could lose in the South. There in a sentence is expressed the political character of the man. Women were included in the programme because a million and a half already can vote, and the number is pretty sure to be at least doubled this Fall. They have shown themselves to be excellent political workers; "Votes for Women" has become a popular slogan; the two dominant parties in the blind pride that goes before a fall have repudiated the movement for woman suffrage, and the men and women who are flocking into it can be attracted by the open door of the new party.

How well this party will keep its pledges is yet to be proved. With the rapid advance in public sentiment toward woman suffrage it is now the highest wisdom for its advocates to remain strictly non-partisan and seek for support from the most advanced men in all parties.

BIG SCHOONER ELENA MAKES RECORD RUN

Morton F. Plant's Yacht Averages 13.6 Knots in New York Y. C. Cruise.

FLEET REACHES NEW LONDON

Strong Breeze from South Drives Craft Across Sound at Fast Clip—Thirty-nine Racers Compete.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 9.—Morton F. Plant's big schooner Elena, heroine of more than a few marine contests in her comparatively short career, did her greatest trick to-day when she pranced into this harbor at the head of the big fleet of yachts making this year's cruise of the New York Yacht Club.

Elena in a splendid breeze from the southward made a record for the Sound, sailing the fifty-four miles from Smithtown Bay in 3 hours 57 minutes 57 seconds, showing an average speed of 13.6 knots.

Thirty-nine racers made their bows to the Regatta Committee this morning, piling out of Smithtown Bay for the long run across the Sound, and on account of the splendid breeze, which held from start to finish, probably 90 per cent. of the yachts counted to-day's effort their best performance. While Elena won a noteworthy race, she only beat Enchantress 45 seconds.

Elena's owner and skipper were not a bit prouder of her feat than was Harold S. Vanderbilt, whose schooner Vagrant won the challenge cup offered by the Alumni Association of the United States Navy. Vagrant beat George Scott's schooner Miladi by 8 seconds more than a minute.

The contest among the Class K sloops was one of the real features of the run. Cornelius Vanderbilt, at the wheel of his Aurora, and Winsome, owned by E. Trowbridge Hall and sailed by Capt. Ed Willis, had a beautiful struggle all the way across. First one then another would get a bit of good weather, which gave them each alternate spurts. Winsome passed Aurora a few minutes after the start, and from then to the finish no more than a few lengths separated them at any time. Winsome finally won from Aurora by 17 seconds and from Istalena by 2 minutes 13 seconds.

The new Cuthbert sloop Cara Mia beat a class of fifteen sloops and one yawl in her race, though R. A. Monks's Windward gave her all she could do.

The other class winners were the schooners Taormina, Vagrant, Intrepid, and Rival, the sloop Avenger, which defeated the Shimna 2 minutes 37 seconds, and the Rowdy, which beat the Phryne 1 minute 21 seconds.

A picturesque feature of the day's sport was the first appearance of the bark-rigged auxiliary Aloha, owned and navigated by Arthur Curtiss James, former Commodore of the club. With upper and lower topsails, topgallant sails, royal staysails, jibs, and spanker set and drawing finely, she made as pretty a picture as has been seen on the Sound in many a day as she rolled off twelve knots and better at times in the strong breeze. She was sailing "full and by" most of the way. Intrepid, however, owned by Lloyd Phoenix, which joined the fleet to-day, got too big a start for the Aloha to overhaul her. Intrepid won in 1 hour 15 minutes 35 seconds.

The weather sharps are to-night predicting nasty weather for to-morrow's forty-mile run to Newport.

In the boat races at Smithtown Bay on Thursday evening for the Owl and Game Cock colors the winner of the latter was the boat from Elena, and the Owl colors were won by Taormina, Elsana second. The launch race was won by Irolita's tender, with Maspeth II. second. A special launch race was won by Diana, with Narada second.

With a fifty-four-mile run in prospect, an early start was imperative, even with such a fine, fair wind as was blowing when the harbor start signal, two guns from the flagship, was made at 7 o'clock. An hour and ten minutes later the actual start was made from a point off Crane's Neck, the Sound schooners being sent away first, as on Thursday. F. R. Coudert's Alys II. led them across the line in the weather berth. She was quickly followed by Algol, Vandalia, Alicia, Rival, and Moira, in that order. Then came the P Class boats at 8:15, led by Corinthian, with Windward, Joyant, and Cara Mia close under her lee, and six of the "thirties" on the same signal led by J. P. Morgan, Jr.'s, Phryne, with Carlita, Juanita, Alera, Banzai, and Marian, following close together.

Nine sloops and the yawl Phantom crossed on the signal at 8:20, led by H. L. Maxwell's Avenger in the weather berth, with R. T. Paine's Shimna close under her lee.

Demarest Lloyd's Princess led the schooners in Classes D and F, with Muriel, Vagrant, Miladi, and Taormina following in that order.

The auxiliaries, Venona, Iris, Intrepid, and Aloha were the last away at 8:35, the first two crossing soon after the gun, with the others far astern.

Two hours after the start of the little schooners those nifty little vessels close hauled on the starboard tack were widely separated. They made up their divisions of the squadron in which were also the Class P boats and the New York Yacht Club "thirties."

J. Pierpont Morgan's big steam yacht Corsair came plowing a broad, white furrow through the fleet shortly before noon. She was going along at a fifteen-knot clip, or better, hurrying to catch the leaders, which from the decks of the accompanying steam yachts of their division were "hull down" to the eastward.

The flagship Diana, having aboard the Regatta Committee, had all she could do at full speed to reach Sarah's Ledge Buoy and establish the finish line before the first schooners arrived. The summary:

STORM FOILED PROF. PARKER.

Explorers Only 300 Feet from Mount McKinley Summit When Snow Came.

SKAGWAY, Alaska, Aug. 9.—Discovery of a new pass through the Alaska range, exploration of sixty miles of country which has been a blank on the map, and verification of the statement that the ascension of Mt. McKinley can be made along the northeastern ridge, were the results of the Parker-Browne Mt. McKinley expedition, which arrived here last night on the way home.

The expedition, headed by Prof. Herschel Parker of New York and Belmore Browne of Tacoma, left Seward Feb. 20 with ten dogs, traveling 400 miles over a rough country to the northeast ridge of the mountain, where the ascent of the south peak was begun. An altitude of 20,200 feet was reached.

"The most difficult part of the climb was in the zone between the 12,000-foot and the 17,000-foot altitudes," Mr. Browne said to-day. "Above 17,000 feet the work was not difficult. Three of us—Prof. Parker, Marl Lavoy, and myself—made the last 3,000 feet of the climb, Arthur Atten, the fourth member of our party, remaining in our camp at 17,000 feet. We got within 300 feet of the top, and could have made the summit easily within an hour but for a blinding snowstorm, driven by a cold wind, that forced us to retreat. The top of the mountain is unbroken, and would not be difficult to surmount under favorable weather conditions."

The new country mapped out by the expedition is rough and contains many glaciers.

The party left the mountain on July 4, after having spent twenty-eight days on its slope.

Prof. Parker and Mr. Browne will sail on Sunday for Seattle.

NEW HIPPODROME SPECTACLE

"Under Many Flags" and Ballet to Open Season on Aug. 31.

The season at the Hippodrome will begin on Saturday evening, Aug. 31, with a production and ballet that are promised to be even larger and more spectacular than before attempted at this playhouse. The spectacular and musical play which will form the main portion of the entertainment will be called "Under Many Flags," and will be presented in sixteen scenes. The new ballet has for its title "Flowers of All Nations."

Several changes have been made in the stage to accommodate the new show. The tank, for example, which formerly had a capacity of 300,000 gallons of water, has been enlarged to contain 512,000, and is now wider and deeper than before. The new entertainment was originated by Arthur Voegtlin and written and staged by Carroll Fleming. William J. Wilson will stage the ensemble and the musical numbers. Mr. Voegtlin also designed the scenery and suggested the color scheme for the costumes. The costumes for the ballet have been made by Landorff of Paris from sketches by Alfredo Edel.

The ballet rehearsals have been under the direction of Signor Romeo. The circus features of the show will be placed in their natural environments, as was done last year.

SHOOTS WIFE, SLEEPS.

Broker O'Callaghan Too Intoxicated to Tell Why He Did It.

Matthew B. O'Callaghan, a 60-year-old cotton broker of New York and New Orleans, was lodged in the Raymond Street Jail yesterday, charged with felonious assault. His wife, Lillian O'Callaghan, 28 years his junior, occupied a bed in the Swedish Hospital, with three 38-calibre bullet wounds, one in her head and the others in her neck and shoulder. Neither was able to give any coherent account of the incidents which led up to the shooting.

When O'Callaghan was arraigned in Gates Avenue Court before Magistrate McGuire he was intoxicated and could hardly stand up. He could not tell what day of the week it was. Magistrate McGuire remanded him to jail until Monday.

Supt. Man and Dr. Vinicombe of the Swedish Hospital said that Mrs. O'Callaghan would recover. From statements made to the hospital doctors by her, and an examination of the premises, the police pieced out this story of the shooting:

About a quarter after 5 o'clock yesterday morning, O'Callaghan got so boisterous that his wife, alarmed by his actions, ran into a private hallway inside the apartment and closed the door after her. This door had a panel of wire glass. When her husband subsided, Mrs. O'Callaghan rapped cautiously to learn if all was well.

The answer to her raps was three bullets from an automatic revolver. One of these struck her in the right temple, plowed its way down along the skull, and lodged in the joint of the jaw bone. The second struck her in the neck, and the third lodged in her shoulder.

After the shooting, O'Callaghan went into the bedroom of his apartment, laid the revolver down beside him, and went to sleep. The shots had been heard by a milkman, and by the motorman of a passing Franklin Avenue car. The men notified the nearest policemen, Archer and Starr of the Grand Avenue Station. The groans of Mrs. O'Callaghan directed the policemen to the apartment on the second floor. They found O'Callaghan fast asleep with the revolver beside him.

"What do you mean by shooting your wife?" demanded Archer.

"I didn't shoot anybody," protested O'Callaghan, in a stupor.

"What about this?" the patrolman insisted, picking up the revolver.

"Oh," said O'Callaghan, with dawning intelligence, "I shot at a burglar and he went away from here."

"You shot your wife," insisted Archer. And, as O'Callaghen began to lapse back into inattention again, he shouted, "Your wife it was you shot."

The patrolman's manner carried conviction. O'Callaghan became hysterical. "Poor Lillie, poor Lillie," he moaned, "She was always so good to me."

She is O'Callaghan's second wife. They were married six years ago. According to their neighbors, they seemed happy.

NEW HUDSON BRIDGE PLANS.

House Committee Favors Extending Franchise if Changes Are Made.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Without reviving the conditions granted by either of the void original acts for the construction of bridges across the Hudson at New York City, the House Committee on Inter-State and Foreign Commerce favorably reported to-day, through Representative Goldfogle, the O'Gorman bills extending for ten years the time for the completion of these proposed structures and requiring new bridge plans.

One bridge was to be built by the New York and New Jersey Bridge Company, under act of June 7, 1894, between Fifty-ninth and Sixty-ninth Streets; the other under the act of July 11, 1890, was to be built connecting Twenty-second Street, New York, with Twelfth Street, Hoboken.

The original plans provided that each bridge should have a clear height of 150 feet over high water. At the suggestion of Secretary Stimson a proviso was inserted in the bills stipulating that new drawings and plans for both structures must be submitted to the Secretary of War for consideration and approval before construction is begun.

Secretary Stimson insisted upon this because he had been told by the army engineers that the conditions affecting navigation in the Hudson opposite New York had been changed materially.

"The size and draught of ships," says Secretary Stimson in a letter to Chairman Adamson of the House Inter-State Commerce Committee, "have been very greatly increased. All large vessels of the passenger traffic, especially, are now equipped with apparatus for wireless telegraphy.

"Within the past two years an exhaustive investigation as to the clear height required below any bridge to permit the passage of these large vessels has been made by the Isthmian Canal Commission and has shown that the clear height heretofore deemed sufficient below a bridge, namely 150 feet, was found to be too little."

JUDGE SWANN UPHELD.

Supreme Court Declares Sentencing of Jennie Sullivan Was Proper.

Judge Edward Swann of th eCourt of General Sessions, who was charged last week by John T. Little, a lawyer, with having committed a misdeameanor in connection with the sentencing of Jennie Sullivan for petit larceny, was vindicated yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Lehman. Justice Lehman dismissed Little's writ of habeas corpus and ruled that Judge Swann had acted perfectly within his rights and entirely with discretion in removing the woman from the House of the Good Shepherd on a bench warrant, and imposing his suspended sentence of one year in State prison.

When Jennie Sullivan pleaded guilty of petit larceny last August, after she had been indicted for grand larceny, Judge Swann sent her to the House of the Good Shepherd on her own consent, after suspending sentence. Learning later that the woman had been misbehaving and was planning her escape, the Judge issued a warant on Aug. 1 and imposed his delayed sentence. Meanwhile Mr. Little swore out a writ of habeas corpus, which was nullified because the woman had been removed to the Tombs. It was his second writ which was dismissed yesterday for lack of cause. Mr. Little alleged that the Judge had no right to sentence his client after sending her to the House of the Good Shepherd, and that he deliberately attempted to conceal her after the issuance of the writ.

WATCH ON WIRELESS PLANT.

Station at Sayville, L. I., Arouses Government to Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—A powerful wireless station at Sayville, L. I., practically commanding New York Harbor, and controlled by a corporation reputed to be under the influence of the German Government, is being observed by the Navy Department and the Department of Commerce and Labor.

Officials here have been watching its progress and trying to determine if it comes within the provisions of the Lodge resolution recently adopted by the Senate declaring that the United States could not see without grave concern the actual or potential possession of any harbor or other place on the American continents by any Government not American, when possession would give to such a Government practical power of control for naval or military purposes.

Another feature affecting the situation is contained in the radio-communication bill for the control of wireless, which passed the House to-day. It contains a provision to prohibit the operation of any private wireless plant within "fifteen miles of certain Government stations." Officials who have been concerned over the erection of the new tower, which is even taller than and fully as powerful as the great Government plant now being erected near here at Fort Myer, have been awaiting the action of Congress on this provision.

Notice of the generally supposed foreign-owned wireless plant came to the attention of the Government officially through a prominent member of the New York Club, near whose country place at Sayville the tower has been erected. He complained that his landscape was being defaced. But other and more important considerations of National policy moved the Navy Department to dispatch quietly an officer from the New York Navy Yard to Sayville to examine and report upon the structure.

The Department of Commerce and Labor, being charged with general supervision of that means of communication so far as it affects the navigation of vessels, took a hand and made a quiet investigation of its own. It was thought at first that operation of the station might be prevented upon the ground that, like a cable station, it could not be established and operated without a special license from the United States Government. This consideration, however, may now give way to the means provided by the Radio-Communication bill.

The plant at Sayville, L. I., referred to in the dispatch, is owned by the Telefunken Wireless Telegraph Company of the United States, with head offices in Philadelphia. The New York manager is Richard Pfund, with offices at 111 Broadway and 54 Stone Street.

HELD FOR JEWELRY ROBBERY

A. Dumont Had Salesman's Suitcase with $20,000 in Gems.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Jewelry and precious stones valued at $20,000 were found in a barn at 1,711 Carroll Avenue by detectives last night and Adolph Dumont was arrested on a charge of having stolen them.

The jewelry was identified as that stolen under the eyes of Patrick McDermott in front of the Silversmith Building on July 18. McDermott had been employed to carry a suitcase containing jewels for a salesman for an Eastern manufacturing firm. The salesman left McDermott outside of the building while he went inside to call on a customer. When he returned the suitcase was gone and McDermott could offer no explanation for the disappearance of the valuables.

Dumont was suspected of being one of gang of thieves who have rifled several railroad freight houses recently and stolen nearly a million cigars. Detectives followed him and saw him enter the barn late last night. When he came out he was placed under arrest. A search of the place uncovered the suitcase, containing the gems and about 75,000 cigars. Among the recovered jewels were six pearl necklaces and a number of unmounted cut gems.

BUY CHICAGO CLEARING YARD.

Terminal Company Will Control Exchange of Cars of All Roads.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—An important step in the development of the Chicago plan for a rearrangement of the city's growth in the interests of the "city beautiful" idea was announced to-day in the sale of the property of the Chicago Union Transfer Railway Company, known as the Chicago Clearing Yards, to the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad Company, (a terminal company.) It will be used by the following roads:

Grand Trunk, Wabash, Erie, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific; Illinois Central, Pennsylvania, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, Chesapeake & Ohio, and the Pere Marquette.

The clearing yards now comprise about 100 miles of track, which it is planned to increase to 600 or 700 miles. The property is at the southwestern city limits, and now comprises about 4,000 acres. It will be used as an exchange for cars by the railroads, substantially in the same way as the banks of the city exchange their checks through the Clearing House.

The plan is expected to expedite traffic and relieve congested districts of the city. The amount paid for the property was not made public, but it is said to have been several million dollars.

PRESIDENT DRINKER DISCUSSES NEW PHASES OF EDUCATION

Colleges Should Not Only Train Scholars but Men and Women Who Will Become Strong, Self-Reliant, Intelligent Citizens.

By HENRY STURGIS DRINKER, LL.D.,

President Drinker.

Lehigh University was founded nearly half a century ago—in 1866—by a typical American—one of the people—a man of sterling force and integrity, great persistence of purpose, and marked individuality and strength. Asa Packer was one of the great developers of Pennsylvania's transportation and mining interests. He achieved deserved success, and, moved by a desire to make a return to his State and country for what had come to him, he founded, at South Bethlehem, in the Lehigh Valley, adjoining the old Moravian Community of Bethlehem—in a region of great metallurgical, mechanical, and mining industry—at a railroad centre, and within easy reach of the great coal regions of the State, and in the centre of what has since been developed as the home of the newer cement industry, an institution largely devoted to technical education. In doing this, and in donating for this purpose over $3,000,000, Asa Packer not only made a valued contribution to the educational resources of our country, but he was a pioneer in the line of the men who, by great gifts, have, in the last fifty years, done so much for the advancement of higher education in our country.

The earnestness and persistence of purpose characteristic of Asa Packer appear to have been impressed on the institution he founded, and to have remained, and when I am asked now to speak of some phases of public education, I will refer to those which have been rather marked at Lehigh.

To achieve deserved and continuing success an educational institution must be so endowed financially that its work and attention can and shall be absolutely concentrated on and devoted to the character of its product, and not led away into any relaxation of standard by desire to increase the size of the student attendance, either for the prestige of numbers or for financial considerations; the fact should always be in the minds of those in charge that the fees paid by students at colleges and universities charging even the highest rates never equal the actual cost of educational service honestly rendered, the difference between the actual cost and the receipts for tuition being made up by income from endowment; and that efforts to increase the size of a student body beyond the number which the resources of the institution are adequate to thoroughly train are bound in the long run to disastrously reflect on the institution's standards and product.

Above all things educators should bear in mind that they are not only training scholars. Their more important duty is to train up men and women—strong, self-reliant, moral, intelligent citizens, not mere bookworms or doctrinaires. Their duty is as great to see to the body and soul welfare of their students as to train minds and develop brain power, and the development of sturdy manliness and true womanliness is their highest duty. Lehigh is not co-educational, but we appreciate the great work that is being done by our sister institutions, and we pay our tribute of appreciation to them for their work in this regard.

We men and women do not always remember that our younger brethren and sisters are but ourselves of years ago. We fight our life battles, and rarely win out by our own exertions or merits alone. How many would have fallen by the wayside but for the kindly and sympathetic, helping hand of friends at critical periods? Why should we set a higher standard of effort and achievement for our boys and girls? A wise alumnus of Lehigh, some years ago, in commenting at an alumni gathering on the condition and needs of the university, expressed the hope that in addition to maintaining our standards, and seeking to attract good students, and to turn out well-trained graduates, we should see to it that a man, once entered at Lehigh, was given every reasonable aid and opportunity to stay there, and that our pride of achievement should rest not only in the maintenance of a high standard, but in the exercise of care and sympathetic oversight of men who, but for such care, might be dropped.

There is, as we all know, at all institutions a more or less developed system of outside coaching, intended to aid deficient students. At some places regularly organized coaching schools have grown up; the cost of this supplementary instruction is generally high, and its results seldom permanently beneficial, where it is applied as a cramming process to fit a student for passing a quiz or examination. It may enable him to meet the one test, but the stimulant is only temporary, and in the long run weakens the student's study power, and is absolutely in antagonism to the steady study habit which alone can really avail. To meet this need we established at Lehigh what is termed our Conference Department. It is under the control of a teacher holding the rank of a full professor in the Department of Mathematics, who is assisted by competent teachers in physics, chemistry, and modern languages, our main underlying subjects. In this Conference School a sophomore or freshman who, from illness or other cause, has fallen back in his work, can obtain special instruction from a teacher who is teaching the subject in regular course, and who knows how it should be taught, and who can, and does, judiciously so extend aid and advice as not to weaken by overhelp, but stimulate the student's study power, and forward him in his work in the way the department in question wishes the subject studied. The work of the Conference School teachers, in regular classes, is lessened, so that this conference work is not an addition to, but a part of, the regular proper amount of service a teacher should be called on to render. The Conference Department sits from 7 to 9 on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday nights, at a charge of $1.50 for the four sessions, and sits from 2 to 4 on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, (half holidays,) free of all charge. There is some similarity in purpose between this system and the preceptorial system at Princeton, where the students are placed in squads under the care of designated tutors, and each system has its advantages. That at Lehigh has now been in operation for three years, and excellent results have been attained by this system of supervision and sympathetic aid extended to men who require it.

The proper management of athletics is a highly important duty. Mens sana in corpore sano should be uppermost in the mind of the educator. The health, comfort, and play of our students are all matters of vital concern. It is often difficult, especially with students taking strenuous courses in engineering, involving much work in the drawing room and laboratory, to induce the hard-working student to take enough open-air exercise and to spend enough time in play to insure health and strength. On the other hand, there has been at some colleges the undoubted and existing abuse of overattention to gladiatorial intercollegiate contests, with the attendant evil of the maintenance in college of men desired for their athletic ability, and held as students for that reason, despite the fact that their scholastic ability and standing do not warrant their admission or retention in college.

The game should be played for the game's sake, not solely for the credit of winning. Of all our American colleges, probably Haverford has been consistently first in the lead as the exemplar of pure athletics and the pursuit of pure sport for sport's sake. I say in the lead because, while in the number of her student body Haverford is one of the smaller colleges, she has maintained a prominent position in cricket, football, gymnasium, and track events, with absolutely no taint of professionalism, and withal with the maintenance of a high standard of culture and scholarship. Lehigh has never been accused of professionalism, and the problem of how to better her athletic record, and to maintain her reputation for honest sport and a high standard of scholarship, has been a serious one. We believe that a logical solution has been found in a recent action, jointly taken by the Faculty and student body, as the result of a careful study of the situation by committees from both bodies. Lehigh is wholly committed to the theory and practice of student self-government, a student governing board, chosen by the student body, having jurisdiction and control of the operation of the honor system in recitations, and of all student matters involving the reputation and good name of the university, with power of inflicting punishment (subject to the approval of the Faculty) to the extent of one year's suspension.

The above committees united in the view that what was required was to bring out the material in college rather than to seek for it outside, and recommended that a reasonable amount of gymnasium or open-air exercise weekly be made compulsory on all students, and that scholastic credit be given for compliance with regulations so established. This recommendation was adopted, and now, in addition to the usual requirement for systematic exercise from the freshman class, the three upper classes are required to take regular exercise, and are credited on its proper performance with one term hour scholastically of the minimum number of term hours required to be accomplished to remain in college. This exercise may be taken, as provided by the regulations recommended by the joint committee and adopted by the Faculty, in gymnastic work, fencing, wrestling, basket ball, handball, bowling; all forms of out of door sports, such as tennis, baseball, football, lacrosse, track and other field sports, cross-country runs, walks taken solely for the sake of exercise, skating, coasting, golf, boating, swimming and other sports, and the result has been most satisfactory. The system appeals to those of us who have passed the active athletic period by the thought that our young men are voluntarily taking systematically as a body the open-air and the gymnastic exercise required for their health and for their maintenance in good physical condition to support their study power. It appeals to the student body, and naturally so, in that it unquestionably develops and brings out athletic proficiency in many a man who but for this system, with its scholastic credit, would not take part in athletic sports, and it thus supplies legitimate and welcome candidates for interclass and intercollegiate teams.

I trust that I have not been too prolix or personal in these notes. I have not written of our scholastic work at Lehigh, for I am justified in assuming that it is known to be honest and strenuous. I have written rather of what I have personally deeply at heart, the care of the health, moral and physical, and the comfort and well-being of the young men whom it is the privilege of the educator to watch over and guard—a privilege as great as it is a pleasure beyond all estimate or price to those to whom this life duty is given.

A DOUBLE-DECK CAR TO RUN NEXT WEEK

OF THE STEPLESS CAR TYPE

The Top Will Be Reached by a Climb of 5 Ft. 2 In.—Can Be Used in Summer and Winter.

The New York Railways Company will give a trial next week of a double-deck street car, designed by Vice President Frank Hedley and Superintendent of Car Equipment J. S. Doyle. The new car is an attempt to solve the problem of a traffic which has far out grown street car facilities. The new double-deck type has a capacity of eighty-eight passengers the year around. At present the long, open car used in Summer carries sixty persons and the long, closed car carries thirty-six. The single-deck stepless car, now in use, has a capacity of fifty-one.

The new double-deck car is like the the stepless car with an upper deck added. The main car floor is only ten inches from the street. There is a single entrance in the middle of the car.

The greatest difficulty which the designers faced in planning a double-deck car was that of eliminating danger and loss of time in loading and unloading upper-deck passengers. It has been necessary to make the climb to the second floor as short as possible. The designers have contrived to leave head-room for passengers on the main floor and to reduce the climb of the upper deck to five feet two inches. This was accomplished by building longitudinal, back-to-back seats facing outward for the upper deck. The ceiling of the main floor is constructed to make use of all the space under the seats of the upper deck. In the centre of the car the distance from the main floor to the ceiling is seven feet six and one-half inches. From the sides of the main floor to ceiling, under the walk around the seats of the upper deck, the distance is five feet two inches, except at the entrance. Here the ceiling is higher to allow passengers to board conveniently.

The stairways to the upper deck are at each end of the car. The climb is not much greater than that which is necessary in mounting one of the old-style cars. From the rail to the floor of the ordinary car is a distance varying from three feet to three feet four inches. The stairway to the upper deck of the new car is only two feet longer than the distance persons are climbing at present to enter cars of the old type.

Ample standing room is provided for passengers on the first floor, and the stairways are commodiously built in order to prevent crowding and delay in descending and ascending. An electric gong will sound just before a corner is reached, for the purpose of hastening unloading.

In Winter the car will be fully inclosed and made comfortable by the most modern heating and ventilating system. During warm weather it will be made an open-air car by the removal of its sides. For at least seven months of the year the upper deck will be sufficiently open for smoking to be permitted.

The car, which is to have a trial next week, is now at the car barn at Ninety-eighth Street and Third Avenue. The company has not yet picked the day for the trial. The run will be made on the Broadway and Fifty-ninth Street line.

The stepless car, which is the work of the same designers, has proved an entire success and 150 new cars of this type are being built by the St. Louis Car Company and will be put in use this Fall.

PROPOSES TO LEASE FEDERAL COAL LANDS

Secretary Fisher Submits Plan to House Committee to Benefit Cities Situated Thereon.

MINING INTERESTS TO FIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Walter L. Fisher, Secretary of the Interior, a progressive member of the Cabinet, submitted to the House Committee on Public Lands to-day a proposal to lease Government coal lands to cities which will operate coal mines under regulations making it possible for consumers to enjoy the use of fuel at reasonable prices. The cities of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, and Montana and other States west of the Missouri River would be most vitally benefited by the measure.

The proposal undoubtedly will cause much comment in Congress. It will be considered a limited form of socialism in certain quarters, and will certainly be fought by the mining interests of the country.

Secretary Fisher believes cities situated in States which contain Government coal lands, desiring to mine coal to supply municipal needs and the needs of their citizens, should receive limited areas of Government coal land, provided that the coal be mined and disposed of under proper regulations. Following this principle and a tentative grant, Secretary Fisher has recommended that Congress enact a bill to grant to the City of Grand Junction, Col., 640 acres of coal land under conditions imposed in the bill.

The general bill suggested would authorize the Secretary of the Interior to patent 640 acres of Government coal land for each city and 160 acres for each town under conditions providing for prompt and continuous development of the coal, the prevention of any assignment or transfer of the land, the safeguarding of the health and safety of laborers mining or handling the coal, the prevention of undue waste of mineral resources, and the procuring of full report and publicity as to the mining and disposal of coal mined under the patent, including cost of construction, maintenance, and of operation, use for municipal purposes, sales, and receipts from sales.

The Secretary believes that any such patent should be safeguarded by the provision that the title of the land patented shall revert to the Government if any city or town to which coal land shall be patented shall at any time fail to perform any of the conditions of the patent.

This policy, he insists, is in conformity with conservation principles and is not inconsistent with the principle of governmental leasing of coal lands for private development, which he advocates, is due to the distinction drawn between municipal corporations and commercial corporations. Secretary Fisher maintains that the aim of the Federal conservation policy with respect to Government-owned coal lands is to insure for the public an abundant supply at prices which will yield a fair return and no more upon the capital invested in mining and handling the coal. This is impossible when a fee simple patent is granted to private persons or corporations for the commercial exploitation of the coal deposits.

When title passes from the Government its control ceases and the patentee is placed in such a position that he can exact from consumers the highest price for the coal mined from the lands that their necessities may compel them to pay.

The leasing system, says Mr. Fisher, is the only method for the private exploitation of Government-owned coal lands which can protect the public. By retaining the title in its own hands and properly conditioning the lease it will be possible to protect the public from extortion.

It is desirable to retain in the hands of the Federal Government a certain amount of supervision to make sure that the city will actually develop the coal without waste, and with due regard to the health and safety of the miners; also that all the transactions of the city be given the fullest publicity to prevent any opportunity for corruption and abuse, and to keep the Federal Government and the general public fully informed as to just how legislation of this character is operating in actual practice.

Upon the request of Representative Taylor of Colorado, Secretary Fisher has directed that the coal lands desired by the City of Grand Junction shall be held withdrawn from entry. The right of the Secretary to make withdrawals by executive order in the absence of express authority previously conferred by statute has been a subject of controversy, but Secretary Fisher says he has no doubt of executive authority in this matter, and he therefore sent the following wire to Mr. Taylor as soon as Mr. Taylor's letter was received:

"Glad to find you an advocate of executive withdrawals. Grand Junction coal land already under general withdrawal, which will be maintained as you request."

TAFT DISREGARDS SENATE.

Conant's Naming in Knox Smith's Place Didn't Need Its Approval.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—President Taft formally appointed to-day, without the confirmation of the Senate, Luther Conant, Jr., of New York, as Commissioner of Corporations to succeed Herbert Knox Smith, who resigned to join the Progressive Party.

The President withdrew Mr. Conant's nomination because it was discovered that the law does not now require the Senate's approval of such an appointment. Previous Commissioners of Corporations were appointed with the advice and consent of the Senate.

SENATE OBLIGES BULL MOOSE

Allows Roosevelt's Speech to be Printed with Taft's and Wilson's.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The Progressive Party made its formal bow to-day in the Senate. Senator Poindexter, as a member of the new party, asked that Col. Roosevelt's speech at Chicago on Aug. 6 be printed as a public document.

The request followed one by Senator Brandegee that Senator Root's speech of notification and President Taft's speech of acceptance also be printed as a public document.

Senator Culberson had asked that Senator-elect James's notification speech and Gov. Woodrow Wilson's acceptance be printed as another document. All three requests were granted.

Senator Jones of Washington then asked the Senate to print the platform of the three parties as a document.

"I don't want to object," interrupted Senator Gallinger, "but has Debs been nominated yet?"

Senator Overman did object, however, and the platforms will not be printed.

Taft Names New District Judge.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—President Taft to-day sent to the Senate the nomination of James M. Morton, Jr., to be United States District Judge in Massachusetts to succeed Frederick Dodge, elevated to the Circuit Court bench. Mr. Morton is the son of Judge James M. Morton of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court and is 45 years old.

SPEED REBUKE TO PUBLIC.

Demand for Fast Trains One Cause of Chicago Wreck.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—The Illinois Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners to-day made public their findings in the investigation of the wreck on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad at Western Springs, July 14, when thirteen persons were killed. The Commissioners declare against the manual block system and for the automatic block system.

The Commissioners attribute the wreck to three contributing causes:

First—The demand of the general public for through trains at a rate of speed dangerous to the traveling public.

Second—The demand made by the Government for a similar fast rate in the carrying of mail to appease the demand of the public.

Third—The acceding of the railroads to the prevailing demands by which trains are scheduled to run close together at a highly dangerous speed.

SHADY GLEN HOTEL BURNS.

New York and Brooklyn Patrons Lose Wardrobes in Catskills Fire.

Special to The New York Times.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Shady Glen, one of the best-known hotels in the Catskills, was destroyed by fire late last night. While a majority of the guests were attending a masqurade in the amusement hall fire was discovered in the laundry.

There is no fire department at Cornwallville, a mile from the house, and in a few minutes the building was burning so fiercely it was impossible for those who had been at the masquerade to save their belongings. Among the hotel patrons who lost their wardrobes were Miss E. M. Lavergne, Miss Mary Kelly, Mrs. J. W. Comstade, Miss Edna Cook, and Edward Goemog of New York, and Miss Sullivan, Miss Helen Bradford, M. L. Russell, Max Custer, Miss Frances Johnson, and Miss Emily Wehgan of Brooklyn.

The house was under the management of M. T. Applegate, formerly of the Hotel Monmouth, Asbury Park, N. J. He carried no insurance and loses between $20,000 and $30,000.

F. Thompson Trenton City Clerk.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 9.—Frank Thompson, a former newspaper reporter, and recently an attaché of the State Adjutant General's department, was sworn in to-day as City Clerk of Trenton, succeeding Major Harry B. Salter. It is said that Mr. Thompson is the first Bull Moose man to take office since the birth of the Progressive Party at Chicago this week. He was one of the original Roosevelt men in this County.

PREDICTS BIG GRAIN CROPS THIS YEAR

Agricultural Department Says Corn Will Be the Largest Except 1906 and 1910.

OATS SURPASS ALL RECORDS

Yield of Barley and Rye Greater Than Usual, and Wheat Crop Fifth in Size in Twenty Years.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—This year's grain crops in the United States will be far in excess of last year's yield, it was estimated to-day by the Department of Agriculture. They will be better than the average crops for the last ten years, and in the case of a number of products will make a new record if present estimates are not overthrown by conditions at present unforeseen.

The corn crop, estimated at 2,811,000,000 bushels, will be the largest in the Nation's history, with the exception of the years 1906 and 1910, the former being the banner year, with 2,927,000,000 bushels.

The oats crop will be the largest the country has gathered, surpassing by 21,000,000 bushels that of 1910, the previous record. In barley, too, this year will establish a new record, the estimated yield of 202,000,000 bushels being 24,000,000 bushels greater than that of 1906, the previous best year. The yield of rye, 35,000,000 bushels, will equal that of 1910, the former record year.

Details for important crops in the principal States follow:

GIANTS' GIFT TO SHERIFF.

Signed Baseball to Harburger for His Kindness to Rube Marquard.

Sheriff Julius Harburger received a gift of appreciation yesterday from the Giants in the form of a brand new baseball with the signatures of the entire team written on every available spot of the sphere. Prominent on the ball is the bold handwriting of Rube Marquard, and it is because of the Sheriff's having stretched a point in delaying an attachment on the great pitcher that the gift was bestowed.

Some weeks ago an execution was sworn out against the Giant twirler for an unpaid debt of $140. Escorted by three of his assistants the Sheriff sallied forth to the Brush stadium to get his man. The Giants were playing the Cubs that particular day, and when the Sheriff's retinue reached the field Rube was warming up for the game.

The Sheriff, who is a fan, saw immediately that to serve the writ before the game might mean the loss of a victory to the New York Nationals.

"I guess we'll see the game first," he said to his assistants. Rube walked from the mound victorious in the ninth inning and then the Sheriff came forward with his paper. Five minutes later the Sheriff left the field with the amount of the debt in his pocket.

CAVE UNDER BRIDGE PLAZA.

Filled-in Ground in Long Island City Has Slipped Into a Swamp.

A cavity more than 20 feet in diameter and several feet in depth, through which a team of horses might be driven, was discovered under the south side of the plaza of the Queensboro Bridge at Jane Street, Long Island City, yesterday by contractors, who immediately reported the situation to President Connolly in the Borough Hall. It may cost more than $10,000 to fill in the breach.

No sign of danger is shown on the smooth pavement of slag, brick, and concrete which is holding the roadway above in place, and over which there is continuous automobile traffic.

The greater part of the bridge plaza is above the old Ravenswood swamp, and is filled-in ground. The cavity was caused by the sinking of the new earth deeper into the ooze of the old swamp and also by the bottom of the fill shifting out into the swamp beyond. This swamp is now being filled in with the dirt and stone taken from the new subways in Manhattan.

In order to fill in the excavation under the bridge plaza the roadway of brick and concrete will have to be torn up. Engineers are making an investigation to see if any more cavities exist in that vicinity. Fearing a cave-in, traffic over the underground cavity has been stopped.

City of Boston Calls Dr. White.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Dr. Joseph White of the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service has been asked by Mayor Fitzgerald to come to Boston as chairman of the Board of Health, or to act as an expert in the Health Department as long as the Government could spare him. Dr. White successfully directed the campaign against yellow fever in New Orleans in 1905.

Finds Fossil of Two-Toed Horse.

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Aug. 9.—Prof. Richard L. Hull, Professor of Paleontology, Yale University, has reached here after ending a successful fossil hunt in Briscoe County. Prof. Hull reports finding the fossil remains of a two-toed horse, something long sought, and for which his trip to Texas was made. Among his finds were the bones of a camel and ground sloth.

$300,000 SHORTAGE SHOWN.

Continental Building and Loan Association of San Francisco Wrecked.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—The Continental Building and Loan Association did not open its doors for business to-day. An investigation conducted by John S. Walker, State Building and Loan Commissioner, with the aid of President Edward Sweeney of the association, resulted in Walker's throwing the concern into immediate liquidation.

Sweeney is Superintendent of the San Francisco mint. Walker in a statement to-day says of the institution that an expert's report showing a shortage of $300,000 "is not far out of the way." The shareholders are mostly persons of small means.

"This report," Walker adds, "shows that investors not only have been defrauded in the past, but this has continued up to the present time. To-day the accounts show, according to the report, that the borrowers also are being mulcted, and the amounts placed to their credit on retainments are short more than $50,000. People have been 'fined out' without any authority of law, liabilities have been concealed, and assets have been padded.

Gavin McNab, attorney of the association, said: "A majority of the Directors, including myself, have had no financial interest in the Continental Building and Loan Association, but have remained as Directors with the idea of working it into a more prosperous condition. They decided themselves that it would be wise to liquidate."

CROWELL FIGHTING FOR JOB.

Gets Court Order in Effort to Stop Removal Hearing.

Robert R. Crowell, chief engineer of the Queens Topographical Bureau, during the term of ex-President Gresser, who was removed on charges of incompetency by Gov. Dix, objects to being called upon a second time to defend himself from removal charges, and yesterday he obtained from Justice Van Siclen in the Brooklyn Supreme Court an order directing President Connolly of Queens to show cause why he should not be permanently restrained from going on with the hearing.

In his affidavit Crowell alleges that he was tried before Gresser on charges similar to the ones now pending against him and was acquitted. Crowell also charges that he was unfairly treated by the newspapers at the time of his first trial and that prejudicial reports concerning him were given out at the Borough Hall, when as a matter of fact, the hearing was conducted in private and the newspaper men were not even allowed to see a copy of the charges on which he was tried.

Crowell also alleges that he is the victim of a conspiracy to ruin him financially, and that his trial before Gresser cost him $3,000, which he had to pay out of his salary of $5,000 a year.

Among other things Crowell is charged with incompetency, neglect of duty, and of favoring the McLaughlin Engineering Company, which, it is alleged, charged the city for maps made by city employes. The court order is returnable Monday.

PARK & TILFORD SUE CITY.

Ask $844 for Explosion's Damage to the 72d St. Store.

Park & Tilford, the grocers, filed a complaint in the Supreme Court yesterday against the City of New York. The company demands damages to the extent of $844.18 for the wreckage done to its store at Seventy-second Street and Columbus Avenue on Nov. 23 by a dynamite explosion.

The city was rebuilding the street directly in front of the Park & Tilford store, and had stored considerable dynamite in a shanty on the corner. Through an unknown cause the dyamite exploded, breaking in all the windows of the vicinity, killing one man, and injuring a score.

SUE FOR COFFEE PROFITS.

Stockholders of Cafetal Carlota Co. Ask George D. Cook for Accounting.

Suit was begun yesterday in the Supreme Court by the shareholders of the Cafetal Carlton Company, coffee importers, for an accounting of the affairs of George D. Cook & Co., bankers of 71 Broadway. The Cafetal Company has been financed by Cook & Co. since 1900.

According to the complaint, the books of Cook & Co. show nothing of the financial affairs of the Cafetal Company. The shareholders demand to know what has become of the alleged $50,000, which the banking house received as the result of a sale of Cafetal stock. They allege further that although the Cafetal Company realized $10,000 from a sale of coffee, this year, there is nothing on the books of the banking company to show these proceeds.

In addition, it is stated, that the Cafetal Company has made a net profit of 6¼ cents on each pound of coffee grown on its plantations since 1900, including 1910. Of this, they say that Cook & Co. have received more than $300,000. For this also, they demand an accounting.

ESTATE TO HEIRS IN IRELAND.

H. D. Cunningham Left $737,839, and $50,000 to Charity.

Harris Daniel Cunningham, a retired contractor, who died Oct. 8, 1911, left an estate of $737,839.93, and $543,000 of this was invested in real estate. The report of Appraiser Joseph I. Berry was filed yesterday in the Transfer Tax Office of the Surrogates' Court by Deputy State Controller Wallace S. Fraser.

This showed that his securities consisted of only two $1,000 bonds of the Water Script of Jersey City, worth $2,061.05, and notes and mortgages amounting to $163,318.94. He had on deposit $81,789.19. His real estate was mostly in the downtown district, and some valuable pieces of property are included in his estate.

By the terms of Mr. Cunningham's will his estate is divided as follows: Fifty thousand dollars is set aside to be distributed by the executors among charitable institutions, and the rest goes to relatives. His sister, Margaret Flood, residing in Ireland, is the principal legatee, and she received $182,567. A large number of nieces and nephews who live in Ireland receive the remainder, after two bequests to Charles T. Bradley and Thomas Bradley of 101 West Forty-second Street, who receive $5,000 each. Mr. Cunningham ordered that $5,000 be set aside for the maintenance of a vault which was erected in Calvary Cemetery to receive his body. He adds in a clause of the will that "the body of no other person besides myself shall be buried in said vault except my friend, the Rev. Father Louis J. Sloane."

THE BUSINESS WORLD

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Certain Glassware Reduced to 45 Per Cent.—Lace Pins Not Jewelry.

Charles H. Wyman & Co. of St. Louis obtained a reduction of duty yesterday before the Board of United States General Appraisers on an importation of blown and molded glassware and unfinished glass tubing in long lengths. Duty had been assessed at 60 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 100 of the Tariff act of 1897, but following a decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Sharretts held the goods at 45 per cent. under Paragraph 112.

Mills & Gibb, the Pratt & Framer Company, L. W. Levy & Co., and Samstag & Hilder Brothers established that gold-plated lace pins were properly dutiable as "manufactures of metal" at 45 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 199. Collector Loeb had assessed duty at 60 per cent. as jewelry.

Skinned and boned fish in less than one-half barrel lots was the subject of a protest by George S. Bush & Co., Inc., and N. Fujita of Port Townsend. Duty had been assessed at 30 per cent., but the importers contended for 1¾ cents a pound under Paragraph 273, and a previous Treasury decision. The decision of the Collector was reversed.

Judge Chamberlain rendered a decision in favor of Pfaltz & Bauer, who asked to pay ½ cent per pound on refined wool grease, which the Appraiser had returned as "medicinal preparations" at 25 per cent.

SILK BUREAU'S SUCCESS.

Expected to Bring About the Elimination of Many Trade Losses.

While it has been in active operation a comparatively short time, the cost calculation bureau recently organized by the Ribbon Manufacturers of the United States, Division E, of the Silk Association of America, is already attracting considerable attention in the trade, and, in the belief of Henry A. Loth, of Joseph Loth & Co., 30 Greene Street, it will eventually bring about the elimination of a great deal of individual and trade loss resulting through incorrect methods of figuring costs.

"Despite the fact that the bureau has been open a short time, we have already received a fair number of samples to calculate on," said Mr. Loth yesterday. "Manufacturers seem delighted with it, and I am confident that it will not be long before the greater part of the trade will make use of it. It offers advantages worth many times the nominal fee charged for calculation, and will, I believe go a long way in placing the domestic ribbon industry on a firmer basis. In time I expect to see it do away with a considerable part of unintentional selling below cost, a thing, which is largely due to lack of technical knowledge and which has done a great deal of harm to the industry in the past. The majority of manufacturers believe in the bureau, and having once been benefitted by it, I think they will use it whenever an occasion arises."

SLUMP IN DRY GOODS.

Increased Renewal of Activities Looked for Next Week.

There was an appreciable falling off in the activities of buyers in the New York dry goods market yesterday, the slump having been particularly noticeable after the good business done in the earlier days of the week. Taken as a whole, however, the volume of merchandise disposed of was substantially larger than that of last Friday. Little real trading is looked for to-day, but indications are said to point to an increased renewal of activities in the coming week.

About the greatest amount of yesterday's trading was noted in the dress goods end of the secondary market. Buyers continued to operate in a generally liberal way, and while there was an evident decline in the number of orders taken, it was not nearly so pronounced as in other lines of Fall merchandise. Wash goods moved in a fair way, the feature of the day's activities in these lines having been the size of the individual orders placed. According to one of the dominant factors in this end of the trade, the apparent departure of buyers from hand-to-mouth methods of trading has been one of the most encouraging developments of the present season.

Laces reflected the movement of wash goods to some extent, but embroideries continued to lag. Silks, ribbons, white goods, linens and similar merchandise slowed up perceptibly. Fall lines of hosiery and underwear were generally dull. The primary markets showed no great amount of activity from all accounts, but there was no apparent recession in the values of the merchandise offered.

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

Substantial Mail Orders from Salesmen Out with Fall Lines.

Trading in the New York crockery and glassware market showed noticeable improvement this week. Substantial mail orders were received from salesmen now out with Fall lines, and spot buying was more active under the stimulus afforded by the increased number of out-of-town buyers in the market. One of the most gratifying features of the week's business was the attention given to the better grades of the various wares. Steady improvement is looked for in buying from now on, and a feeling of optimism is general in the trade.

The domestic potteries are getting good business, according to advices received by the Crockery and Glass Journal, the majority of the Western potteries being engaged to capacity. The glass factories are also busy. Cut glass is in good demand, and the lamp trade is in fine condition. Orders in this end of the market are considerably heavier than those of last year.

Imported wares generally shared the improved demand for domestic goods. German and French wares were in particularly good call, while the request for English goods was somewhat improved. Retailers are said to be calling for quick delivery of stocks taken on earlier orders, which is believed to indicate a generally healthy condition. Summer lines of Japanese wares continue to move well, but as yet there has been little call for Fall goods.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Arrangements are practically completed for the annual convention of the United States Brewers' Association, which will be held at the Hotel Copley Plaza, Boston, Sept. 18, 19, and 20. It is understood that invitations to attend will be extended to all the brewers of the country, whether members of the association or not.

According to Bradstreet's, wheat exports for the week, including flour, aggregate 2,740,125 bushels, against 2,494,637 last week and 2,560,967 last year; since July 1, 14,765,141 bushels, against 13,221,342 last season. Corn exports for the week were 92,895 bushels, against 77,842 last week and 635,781 last year; since July 1, 523,544 bushels, against 3,717,589 last season.

Willet & Gray report the total stock of raw sugar in Europe and America to be 1,608,512 tons, against 1,605,284 tons last year at the same uneven dates. The increase of stock is 3,228 tons, against a decrease of 17,115 last week. Ttotal stocks and afloats together show a visible supply of 1,808,512 tons, against 1,836,284 last year, a decrease of 27,772 tons.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

There are five Chambers of Commerce in Smyrna—Ottoman, British, French, Dutch, and American. The first named sometimes publishes statistics of exports and imports, but they are usually two or three years behind. This body has as its object the promotion of Turkish commerce and industries in general. It is semi-official, and is often asked by the local Government for advice and suggestions regarding commercial and industrial matters of the province.

The foreign trade of Cadiz in 1911 was not up to that of 1910, principally because of decreased exports of wines to the United States. Smaller shipments of wines were expected, however, in view of the abnormal shipments prior to August, 1910, when the increased customs duties in the United States went into force. The completion of new tobacco warehouses in 1911 led to an increase of 3,200 tons in tobacco imports, the shipments from the United States having more than doubled.

According to Consul C. L. L. Williams of Swatow, there is considerable Chinese demand for sweaters in all grades. Pure woolen sweaters retail at Swatow for $1.20 to $1.40 gold. Ordinary sweaters are more in evidence than sweater coats, and are of the lightweight jersey style. The preferred colors seem to be green, white, and maroon. Most of the retailers buy all their supplies through Hongkong importers, as they cannot correspond in any language but Chinese.

LINENS TO BE MADE HERE.

Product of New Wisconsin Mills May Not Affect Imports.

Reports from Beloit, Wis., telling that the United States Linen Company would begin the manufacture of linen in that city early in 1913, have aroused no little interest among New York importers. The company is said to be headed by C. H. Hess, for a number of years connected with the Quaker Oats Company, and is reputed to have substantial financial backing. Machinery is now being manufactured in Belfast, and is expected to be ready for operation in this country by the first of next year. A main office will be maintained in Chicago, according to the reports, the present office being at 25 North Franklin Street. The company will raise its own flax, having leased several thousand acres from the State of Minnesota for the purpose, and will convert it into the finished fabric by an original process reputed to be better than any used heretofore.

The new company being the first, from all accounts, to take up seriously the manufacture of linen in the United States, its progress doubtless will be followed with more than usual interest by importers in this market. While few definite opinions were given yesterday regarding the extent and probable success of the enterprise, there appeared to be a belief that imports from the foreign markets would not suffer materially from the competition of American-made linens for several years at least.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

Flat venises in a variety of patterns are regarded among the most popular laces for Fall.

Some heavy buying of cotton duck is looked for in this market within the next few weeks.

There is a rather limited demand for crude rubber in evidence here at the moment. Consumers appear to be holding off for more favorable prices

Several out-of-town houses now have Fall lines of cut glass on display in one of the leading Broadway hotels.

According to comments heard in certain quarters of the local silk market, the activity reported in Fall merchandise is not as general as it might be.

Unger & Co., manufacturers of cloaks and suits, 84 University Place, by these creditors: Zachary T. Brew, $365; E. Butler, $240, and Max Goldberg, $402. The liabilities are reported to be $7,000 and assets $3,500.

NEW AMSTERDAM TRUCKING COMPANY.—A petition has been filed against the New Amsterdam Trucking Company of 119 and 121 Broad Street, by these creditors: E. F. HACKETT, CARHART & CO., INC., (Retail.)—A meeting of creditors of Hackett, Carhart & Co., Inc., (Retail,) retail dealers in clothing at 841 and 265 Broadway, 119 West Forty-second Street, and 154 East 125th Street, was held yesterday afternoon at the Broadway Central Hotel, at which about sixty creditors were present. Morris May of the A. B. Kirschbaum Company was Chairman. Benjamin F. Feiner, attorney for the Creditors' Committee, gave an account of the circumstances which led up to the financial embarrassment of the corporation, primarily due, he said, to the withdrawal of $70,000 by F. P. Forster, the President of the company. Mr. Forster, he said, had purchased the business for $130,000 and turned it over to the new corporation for $390,000 in stock of the new corporation. Mr. Forster is at Nonquit, near New Bedford, Mass., and his condition was such that it might not be possible to examine him as to the financial matters of the corporation. Samuel D. Leidesdorf, receiver of the corporation, made a statement showing liabilities of about $210,000. The entire assets have a book value of $254,000, but the real value is estimated at about $190,000. The merchandise on hand is valued at $167,000. There is $23,000 cash in banks, but of this amount $20,000 is in banks which hold notes of the corporation and will no doubt claim the money. The furniture, fixtures, and improvements have a book value of $44,000, the actual value of which is very much less. Francis W. Aymar, attorney for the corporation, declared that if creditors were willing to accept an offer of 50 cents on the dollar cash he might be able to submit such an offer in a few days. A committee of creditors was finally appointed to co-operate with the receiver.

Stocks Close Strong After Reactionary Movement—Crop Report Excellent.

So far reaching will be the effect of the harvesting of the crops indicated in yesterday's Government report that it is very natural to attach great importance to the excellent prospect which that report presented. Assuming a yield in keeping with the promise of Aug. 1, we will raise this year 625,000,000 more bushels of the three principal grain crops, corn, wheat, and oats, than were harvested last year. We will have a record oat crop while the promised corn and total wheat yields have been exceeded in only two or three years in the past. The Government figures fully bore out the optimistic expectations which have lately been held regarding the course of the grain crops, and it must have been on the theory that with the good news out selling was in order that the traders on the floor of the Stock Exchange yesterday sold stocks on the publication of the crop report. It could hardly have been because of disappointment at the showing which was made. But despite this selling many stocks in the last hour rose to the highest prices of the session and made good net gains for the day. During the hour that preceeded the publication of the Government's crop estimate, trading came very nearly to a standstill, but the dealings increased considerably thereafter.

There had been some who hesitated to accept the very favorable estimates of the crop situation which have lately been current, but the Government report left very little ground on which this stand could be maintained, and it is quite possible, therefore, that short covering by this element in the market accounted in a measure for the closing strength of prices. This did not, however, offer a full explanation of the movement which was under way when trading closed for the day. It seemed clear that this represented in large part continued reflection of hopefulness regarding the general business situation. Talk was heard yesterday of possible stock dividends by several industrial corporations, and this naturally helped to emphasize the satisfactory business outlook. It would seem, moreover, to be a fair inference from the recent record of dividend increases; from further proposed increases, and from the current talk, some of it seemingly well founded, of large special distributions by several companies, that business has in reality been less backward than has appeared from some of the comment which has been passing in business circles. However this may be, there can be no question that the outlook for the future, fortified as it is by yesterday's very excellent official crop report, is as bright as any could reasonably ask. The excellence of the crop prospect is a particularly fortunate factor in the affairs of the railroads, which, because of the special conditions surrounding them, are peculiarly in need of increased earnings. It may fairly be said that the high promise of the crops prevented recently a further decrease in the St. Paul dividend and the harvesting of bountiful grain crops may mean even more to some smaller roads.

It is natural under the circumstances to find much optimism regarding the future, and it is not strange, perhaps, that there is a disposition at the moment to pay heed to every favorable prediction. Nothing will be lost in the long run, however, by tempering hopefulness, which undoubtedly is solidly founded by reasonable differentiating between expectations which are conservatively probable, and those which may seem to be borne principally of market optimism. The position of the money market must not be lost sight of, and while the tendency at the moment is slightly easier it must be all the while remembered that the demands upon the money market are likely to be unusually large this Fall. This week the banks appear to have gained some cash, and there has been some lending in this market of surplus funds by banks in other cities, but on the other hand an increasing number of localities are looking to New York for assistance customary at this season of the year. Thus, the interior banks in the Middle West, and to some extent in the South, are borrowing from their New York correspondents making preparation for the money requirements which they will have to meet a little later. There has for several days been considerable discussion regarding an expected increase in the dividend of the Westinghouse Company, and in some quarters there has been a disposition to look for more in this direction than the stockholders as a whole have been expecting. It was understood when the 1 per cent. dividend was paid last Spring that, if conditions warranted, the stock would this Fall be put on a 4 per cent. basis. This would involve, of course, the payment at the next dividend declaration of 3 per cent., making with the 1 per cent. paid in April a total of 4 per cent. for the year. While the question is still an open one it does not appear that there is any sound basis for the report in circulation yesterday that this 3 per cent. dividend, if declared, will be announced as a semi-annual payment which would put the stock on a 6 per cent. basis. The present excellent business of the company should not cause forgetfulness of the difficulties through which it lately passed and from which it is now so happily recovering.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Strike That Was Lost.

Judge Robert S. Lovett, Chairman of the Harriman system, is a man of few words. Not having many words to use, he has a habit of saying only what he means, and then standing by it. When the men employed in the Southern Pacific's shops became inocculated with the strike germ they drew up a list of grievances and submitted them to the officers. The Southern Pacific was ready to discuss wages and conditions of employment, but turned a deaf ear to a suggestion that the labor union be consulted on all matters of policy and on the fitness of candidates for jobs. The labor leaders had seen railroad officials before who were inclined to be stubborn, and they knew the persuasive power of a strike. Most employers confronted with a walkout can close down their plants and wait until the men are tired. A railroad has to keep its trains running, strike or no strike. The Southern Pacific trouble proved very expensive. For every disorderly striker with a penchant for hurling rocks through the shop windows or tucking a stick of dynamite in a locomotive firebox the company had to employ a score of guards. Timid shippers unwittingly aided the strikers by sending their business over other lines as far as possible, so that a loss in gross revenues was added to an unusually high expense account. It apparently never occurred to Judge Lovett that he could restore peace in an hour by yielding to the demands of the strike leaders, and he kept doggedly to his task of keeping the Southern Pacific's trains running with as little interference as possible. When a locomotive was blown up, with a serious loss of life, he offered no theory as to the responsibility for the disaster, but added more guards. The strike has been practically ended for a long time now, although it has never been officially called off. In his comment on the preliminary earnings figures Judge Lovett gave his account of the trouble in these words: "And then the shopmen's strike has been very expensive, though it has not cost us half so much as I expected when the issue was joined." In other words, the Harriman management would still be running its shops free from union dictation if the strikers had been able to bring twice as much pressure to bear.

General Chemical's Dividend.

If a rumor that has gained wide circulation proves to have been well founded, the shareholders of the General Chemical Company are soon to have fresh cause to congratulate themselves. It is said that the Directors are considering a stock dividend of 100 per cent. A little present of 10 per cent. in stock was distributed in March, 1910, and another of 5 per cent. early this year. Earnings have been very good, and with every likelihood that the buyers of fertilizer will have more money to spend on their farms in coming months than for years past, the outlook is excellent. A distribution of this amount of stock is equivalent to doubling the present dividend of 6 per cent. On sales of 200 shares yesterday the price advanced 20 points, to 215.

⁂

Consolidated Gas Realty.

The fact of a 6 per cent. stock selling at 147 is evidence of the market's firm conviction that something pleasant is going to happen. The Consolidated Gas Company, owning the very profitable New York Edison Company, pays only 6 per cent. dividends, but it has been plainly intimated that some means would be adopted for making up to the loyal shareholders what they lost by the reduction in the dividend at the time of the eighty-cent law's going into effect. In those days the management professed to believe, in all sincerity probably, that the company could not sell its product at this price and pay more than 4 per cent. in dividends. So the rate was reduced, and eventually the constitutionality of the law was upheld in the Supreme Court. Earnings persisted in proving the Legislature's judgment to have been better than the company's, and now the management is reported to be embarrassed by prosperity, which it would like to pass along to its stockholders if the thing can be done in an unostentatious way. It is poor policy for a public service corporation to proclaim its big earnings from the housetops. Outside of the very satisfactory earnings of both the gas and electric properties, one reason for the view taken by hopeful Consolidated stockholders is found in the large real estate holdings which the company is free to sell with the completion of the Astoria plant.

No Change in People's Gas Control.

A loyal Chicago paper discovered that control of the People's Gas Company of that city, which has been lodged with A. N. Brady, C. K. G. Billings, and associates, had passed to local interests. Mr. Brady is in Europe, but his son spoke for him when the story was brought to his notice, and said that, through the increase in the number of the company's stockholders, control of the property was more closely held in the East than ever before.

July Earnings.

Reports which have come to hand so far seem to bear out the indications for improved earnings in July. Of thirty-two roads which have published their earnings for the fourth week of last month, twenty-nine had increases aggregating $2,942,000, and three decreases amounting to $84,000.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

Bar silver was quoted unchanged in London, at 28 1-16d, and unchanged in New York, at 61c per ounce.

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES.

The fifty typical stocks yesterday closed with a slight average net gain, but they did not get within half a point of Thursday's highest, scoring a fifth below Thursday's lowest, and averaged about a third of a point below Thursday's mean. The railroads did much better than the industrials, averaging only a bit below Thursday's mean and closing with a net gain of nearly half a point. The averages:

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Interest Centres Around Oil Subsidiaries in Another Dull Trading Session on the Curb.

Outside of the spectacular fluctuations of some of the new oil companies brought into public view with the breaking up of the Standard Oil Company, yesterday's outside market proved dull and uninteresting. There has been a pronounced falling off in activity in the mining list. British-American Tobacco was relatively prominent, with sales of 3,000 shares between 22¾ and 22½.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN.

Advance in Sears-Roebuck Makes New Exchange Rule Necessary.

Yesterday's markets in other cities were narrow, and most of the price changes, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, of little moment.

Atlantic Coast Line convertible debenture 4s, which have been in steady demand, advanced 1½ on good buying at Baltimore. Houston Oil preferred lost 1 point. Merchants & Miners Transportation gained 2 points on talk of increased dividends.

The unfavorable statement made Thursday by the Copper Producers' Association, and the sharp decline in the price of copper metal in London, had a depressing effect on the Boston copper shares. Fortunately the selling pressure was not very heavy or widespread. Superior was the weakest of the coppers. The tone was firm in the late dealings. Butte & Superior rose ⅞, with ⅝ recession.

Brisk bidding for National Carbon, common stock at Chicago advanced the price from 120 to 122, but the movement failed to dislodge any great amount of stock. Rumors are current of the absorption by the General Electric Company, but this is given little credence by those who are familiar with the affairs of the smaller concern. The most popular theory is that Carbon stockholders will come in for extra dividend some time next Fall. Sears-Roebuck advanced to a new high mark, selling at 206⅛, or 2⅛ points above yesterday's record. Studebaker common also made a further advance from 45½ to 49½, the buying being predicated on the belief that an initial dividend will be declared at the November meeting of the Directors.

Commission rules of the Chicago Stock Exchange have been amended so that the charge of an eighth will apply on all stocks selling at prices up to $300 a share. On stocks selling at and above $300 the charge of one-quarter commission will be made. The former limit of one-eighth commission was $200 a share, but since Sears-Roebuck common crossed the mark it was found necessary to stretch the limit and prevent a large volume of the business done in the shares of the mail order concern from being executed in New York.

The traders on the Philadelphia board turned their attention to General Asphalt yesterday. Buying orders from two prominent uptown houses made their appearance at the opening and found the stock scarce. The result was a rapid upward whirl which sent the price up 2 points, to 26, before midday. The preferred was less active, but advanced nearly as much, selling at 68¾, against 67¼ at the close Thursday.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Good Buying Raises London Prices—Paris Bourse Firm, but Berlin Irregular.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, Aug. 10.—The Times in its City article this morning says:

"Owing to the general disinclination to take bills, money remained easy, but there was no real increase in the supply. Bills of dates beyond about five or six weeks, which were offered, found few takers, even at an advance on Thursday's discount rates. For the moment the market is working very stiffly, owing to fear of further withdrawals of gold from the Bank of England for export to Brazil, and possibly to other quarters.

"Owing to the rise in discount rates Paris cheque moved in favor of London, but Berlin and Amsterdam moved against us.

"A cheerful tone characterized all sections of the Stock Exchange. At the opening prices advanced in most departments, the news of the settlement of the Montenegrin dispute, the satisfactory Board of Trade returns, and the result of the Northwest Manchester election, all tending to help the markets. Later in the day prices relapsed, owing to the usual week-end realizations, coupled with a few sales before the carry-over, but the tone again became firm in the last hour.

"Canadian Pacific Railway shares reached a new high level, but Grand Trunk junior stocks, after opening firm on the dividend statement, relapsed later on some profit-taking.

"American shares were lower as a rule, following the previous day's decline in Wall Street.

"The mining carry-over presented no difficulties, and leading South African shares were bid for in the afternoon, both on local and Continental account.

"Business in the rubber shares market showed signs of broadening, and the buying of leading shipping companies' securities was again a feature, a further sharp rise taking place in Peninsular & Oriental preferred.

"A fairly general investment demand was reported for home railway prior-charge securities."

PARIS, Aug. 9.—The Bourse was firm to-day on the improving political outlook. Three per cent. rentes 92 francs 27½ centimes for the account.

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—Prices moved irregularly on the Boerse to-day.

The weekly statement of the Imperial Bank shows the following changes: Cash in hand increased 6,516,000 marks, loans decreased 30,117,000 marks, discounts decreased 57,718,000 marks, Treasury bills increased 5,135,000 marks, notes in circulation decreased 65,858,000 marks, deposits decreased 18,388,000 marks, gold in hand increased 4,056,000 marks.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

Grains Quiet and Weaker; Cotton Falls but Rallies Late.

The grain markets were less active and all lower, awaiting the Government report. Weather conditions were more favorable. The report showed a large increase in the wheat crop and record promise for the feedstuffs crops. Provisions were quiet and firmer. Cottonseed oil was active and weak, with heavy liquidation in old crop months. Cotton was very weak on further good rains, making new low levels, but rallying at the close. Coffee was less active and lower early, but rallied and closed at a small net gain.

WHEAT.

The wheat market was quiet all the session, closing at a small net decline. The little decline was due to the more favorable weather conditions in the Northwest. The map showed only a little rain in Minnesota, none in the Dakotas, and the prediction was fair and warmer. There was no rain in Manitoba, and the prediction was also fair and warmer. In the Southwest the receipts were not quite so heavy, but there was sufficient cash wheat offering to fill the demand for the day, which was naturally small, as both foreign and domestic interests were disposed to wait for the Government report. After the little early decline, the market became quiet and prices were steady at the decline. The foreign markets were quiet, with no important changes. Argentine exports were 2,260,000 bushels for the week; Australian, 320,000 bushels; Indian, 1,048,000 bushels; American, 2,740,000 bushels. The indicated world's exports were 9,140,000 bushels, against 7,392,000 bushels last week, and 10,928,000 bushels last year. Export demand was small, amounting to only about twelve loads. The Government report after the close was about in line with conservative expectations. It made the yield of Winter wheat 15.1 bushels per acre, with a total outturn of 390,000,000 bushels, against 358,000,000 bushels last month, and final last year of 430,656,000 bushels. The condition of Spring wheat was given at 90.4, against 89.3 last month. The indicated yield per acre was 15.1, with a total crop promise of 290,000,000 bushels, against 271,000,000 bushels estimated last month, and 190,686,000 bushels final last year. The grand total was 680,000,000 bushels, against 629,000,000 bushels last month, and 621,338,000 bushels final last year. The carry-over this year is less than last. The decrease of the carry-over was 12,000,000 bushels. The indicated distribution for last year points to an underestimate of about 40,000,000 bushels in the crop of last year, so that the present supply is but slightly more than what evidently was the total supply last year. Cash wheat was dull, with No. 2 red quoted at $1.08½, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.03; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.02½; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.16½. The rye crop was 35,000,000 bushels, against 33,119,000 bushels last year, and the potato crop 371,000,000 bushels, against 292,000,000 bushels last year.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN was only moderately active during the day and slightly easier on the weather conditions, which were very favorable, prices rallying a little at the close. The exports for the week were 92,000 bushels, while the Argentine exports were 6,061,000 bushels. The weather map showed general rains through the corn States, while the prediction was for clear and warmer west of the Mississippi. The Government report was about as expected. It showed a present condition of 80, against 81.5 last month. The total crop was placed at 2,811,000,000 bushels, the same as last month, compared with 2,531,000,000 bushels last year. Owing to the rains the general conditions are believed to have improved since Aug. 1. The indicated barley crop was 202,000,000 bushels, against 194,000,000 bushels last month, and 160,000,000 bushels last year. Indicated hay crop, 73,000,000 tons, on a revised acreage, probably based on the Census Bureau of 49,209,000 acres, compared with an unrevised total last year of 43,017,000 acres and 47,044,000 tons. Cash corn was firm, with export corn quoted at 82½c, free on board.

OATS.—The market was quiet, and after a small advance at the opening, due to further rains in the Central West, reacted nearly 1c a bushel, closing at about the low of the day on predictions of clearing weather and expectation of a very favorable Government report. The report made a very large crop. The condition was given at 90.3, against 89.2 last month, with an indicated crop of 1,207,000,000 bushels, against 1,139,000,000 bushels last month, 922,000,000 bushels last year, and the previous record of 1,186,000,000 bushels in 1910. Cash oats were quoted for standards, new, 60½c, track; No. 2 white, 60½c, track; No. 3 white, 58@59c.

PROVISIONS.

Hog products were dull, but with light offerings the market was firmer, closing at a small net gain. Total hog receipts were 60,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market was active and weak. Liquidation was pronounced in September and October, and these months suffered most decline. The selling was largely influenced by the more favorable reports regarding the cotton crop and the greater confidence in a large cotton outturn. The heavy decline in cotton was disconcerting to speculative holders of the old crop months, while the demand for old oil continues slow, and the buying of new crop, either for domestic or foreign account, has so far been very slow.

COTTON.

The weather map showed widespread rains again. There was precipitation in all sections excepting parts of Texas and parts of the Carolinas. The detailed report showed good rains at a number of points in Northeastern and Central Texas not shown on the early map, and the rains in other sections of the belt have completely relieved all apprehension. In some cases, in fact, the rains have been so heavy that there is beginning to be a little complaint of too much rain. The weather conditions were so favorable as a whole, however, that liquidation started again in heavy volume, and prices declined about 24 or 25 points before there was any hesitation. The rest of the day the market drifted at 3 to 12 points above the low, closing about midway between high and low, but at a net decline for the day. At the low point prices were down 140 to 145 points from the high of last week. Heavy selling was seen in the market for Waldorf interests, commission houses, and spot houses. The latter were either free sellers for their regular clients or were executing orders for those who wished to give the appearance of selling by spot houses. The buying on the decline seemed to be largely the taking in of profits on important lines of cotton, and this general covering movement took so much cotton out of the market that there was a considerable better tone in the last hour. The heavy break in values has shaken out an immense amount of speculatively held cotton. Conditions for the crop have undoubtedly improved very materially as a result of the rains, and confidence is now being expressed in a large outturn, possibly not more than 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 bales less than last year. Some are claiming an even larger crop. The into sight for the week was 24,000 bales, against 33,000 last year, and the total for the season has been 15,510,000 bales, against 11,785,000 last year. The spinners' takings of American cotton were 173,000 bales, against 152,000 last week and 111,000 last year. The visible supply showed a decrease of American of 146,990 bales, compared with a decrease of 78,554 last year. Spot cotton was quiet at 20 points decline; middling uplands, 12.30c.

The French market closed net ¼ to ½ franc lower, while Hamburg was finally ¼ to ½ pfennig below the close of the previous day. Rio was 25 reis lower and Santos was unchanged. CONDITION OF TRADE.

In their weekly trade reviews, both Dun's and Bradstreet's report an improvement in conditions. Dun's will say to-day:

The leading crops are brought closer to maturity under favorable conditions, which were especially beneficial this wek. In most of the other primary markets trading is maintained on fairly active lines. Wool is held at high values and there is some activity, but the market is temporarily held in check by the possibility of tariff legislation. Hides and leather are very strong and in active demand. Current business in iron and steel continues on the high plane of the recent activity, shortage of labor and cars being a retarding influence in this industry. Industrial activity in the East is still interrupted by the strikes in the cotton mills, but otherwise labor conditions are fairly satisfactory.

In Central States industrial activity is the marked feature and enlarged payrolls help in the distribution of merchandise at retail. The West is feeling the influence of crop returns and the movement of wheat now exceeds the heavy movement of a year ago. Naturally, trade at the South is still marking time, awaiting final determination as to cotton, but there is a fair movement for this season. Statistics of new building permits still show a considerable increase.

Bradstreet's says:

The excellence of the general crop situation is disseminating confidence and creating fears of a car shortage in the Fall. Under the circumstances practically all lines note an enlarged demand. Dry goods, shoes, wool, hardware, saddlery, building materials, all forms of iron and steel and lumber are in especially good request, with every section, not barring the South, figuring in the buying movement. Jobbers of dry goods, thanks to the presence of out-of-town buyers, have done an increased business. In short, buyers appear to be actuated by fears of an understocked market, due to past and present demands as to labor troubles. Lumber is very active, and mill operations, particularly in the Pacific Northwest, are being rushed. Wool has resumed its activity of a fortnight ago, fears of tariff changes having been dispelled. Consumers apparently are determined not to be caught on deliveries in the way they have been this year, wherefore they are now ordering at an early date. Railway traffic is increasing, idle cars are diminishing, earnings are improving, and the leading lines anticipate more or less difficulty in moving traffic in the Fall.

PREDICTS BIG CAR SHORTAGE.

Railroad Man Warns Shippers That a Crisis Is Imminent.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—An unprecedented car shortage confronts railways and shippers this Fall unless care is taken, according to a statement to-day by W. A. Garrett, Chairman of the Association of Western Railways. In a circular sent out to traffic managers and commercial organizations throughout the country he finds by looking up the statistics that unless the shippers give help the country will be confronted in October by the worst shortage in its history, ranging from 60,000 to 180,000 cars.

The largest crops in history are the reason he assigns for the situation, and he asks that all cars be loaded to their greatest capacity, and that shippers unload cars the day they are received.

"The situation created by even the smaller of these shortages, 60,000 cars, would be appalling, and the resulting losses suffered by all commercial, industrial, and transportation interests enormous," says Mr. Garrett.

221 Business Failures This Week.

Bradstreet's reports 221 business failures in the United States for the week, against 224 for the previous week and 208, 231, 219, and 249 for the corresponding weeks of 1911 to 1908. The Middle States had 67, New England 31, Southern 45, Western 36, Northwestern 11, and Far Western 31. Canada had 22, against 25 for the preceding week. About 91 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 2 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

World's Cotton Supply 2,297,675 Bales.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 9.—Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton shows the total visible is 2,297,675, against 2,485,472 last week, 1,625,163 last year, and 1,653,516 year before last. Of this the total of American cotton is 1,438,675, against 1,597,492 last week, and 732,163 last year.

Santo Domingo Customs Receipts.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Material increases are shown in the customs collections of Santo Domingo during June. The total is reported as $334,791, an increase over June last year of $7,894. The gross collections for the eleven months extending from August, 1911, to June last are given as $3,317,973, an increase of $249,567. Import returns for June yielded $6,478 more than June of last year.

NINE MORE DETROIT ALDERMEN ARRESTED

TAKE OFFICIALS OUT OF BED

New Warrants Issued Against Men Already in Custody—Citizens Tell How They Were Held Up.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 9.—Nine more Aldermen were arrested to-day in the development of Detroit's Common Council graft scandal, making a total of 18 now in the net. Two more are expected to be arrested. This will leave Detroit with only 16 Aldermen. All the Aldermen arrested in the first raid were re-arrested to-day. It is understood that the charge against them will be conspiracy. Warrants will be sworn out for them to-morrow.

The new men arrested are Aldermen William Koenig, William H. C. Hindle, Stephen D. Skrzycki, Patrick O'Brien, Richard Watson, George H. Ellis, Thomas Lynch, Joseph Merritt, and William Zoeller.

Detective Burns's representatives took no part in this new string of arrests. County Prosecutor Hugh Shepherd is solely responsible. When the first knowledge of the scandal came to light he was sick in bed. As soon as he could get out he went to work to complete what Detective W. J. Brennon had begun. He did not take Brennon into his plans at all, but investigated Aldermanic records.

He was greatly aided by business men of the city, scores of whom gave him instances of graft of which they had been made the victims. It is said that a business firm could not get the slightest grant for an aid to their business, such as permission to have a side track laid or to erect buildings, without first crossing the palms of the Aldermen.

This morning the detectives were on hand at dawn, awaiting orders. Shepherd planned to gather them in a bunch before they could get scattered about the city. The detectives took some from breakfast and others from bed. Only one was missed, Alois Deimel, one of those for whom a warrant was sworn out the first time.

It is understood that the new warrants will in no way conflict with the charges preferred in the Wabash Railroad street closing case, but that they will go into the official business transactions of the Aldermen for several years back.

Several of the officials were released on bonds soon after their arrest. The newly arrested were required to furnish $5,000 bonds, and those formerly taken into custody were released upon furnishing surety to the amount of $2,000.

Suffrage Day at Clason Point.

If you wear a Woman Suffrage Party button at Clason Point a week from today you may do all the stunts in Fairyland Park free of charge. It is going to be Suffrage Day at the Point, with the Woman Suffrage Party mass meetings, soap box talks, and button selling bees all the afternoon and evening. Fairyland Park is to be thrown open to the women and all their friends free of charge, the "W. S. P." button being the open sesame.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Hotel Seymour Owners Buy Adjacent Property in Forty-fifth Street—Big Lawrence Estate Sold—Record Thirty-fourth Street Lease—Active Bronx Market—Many Suburban Deals.

For the purpose of protecting the light and air of the Hotel Seymour, at 46 to 50 West Forty-fifth Street, the Seaboard Realty Company, (Irons & Todd,) owners of the property, have bought the two three-story dwellings, 52 and 54, adjoining. The buildings, which cover a plot 40 by 100.5, were owned by Susie E. Fitchett.

The purchasers acquired the property to prevent the contemplated erection of a tall commercial building on the property, for which, it is said, negotiations were in progress.

The Hotel Seymour is a twelve-story structure fronting eighty feet on Forty-fifth Street and running through to Forty-fourth Street. It was acquired by the present owners in May, 1905.

Episcopal Society Gives $175,000 Mortgage.

The Protestant Episcopal Society for Promoting Religion and Learning in the State of New York has obtained $175,000 on mortgage from the Seamen's Bank for Savings on the plot 100.10 by 125, at the southwest corner of Hudson and Beach Streets. The larger part of the plot is now vacant. The mortgage is to run for five years from July 31.

Harlem Flat Resold.

The five-story double flat at 1,829 Seventh Avenue, known as the Kenmore, has been resold for Harry Rosenthal by A. V. Amy & Co., to a client for investment. The plot is 37.6 by 100, on the east side of the avenue, between 111th and 112th Streets.

Buys $125,000 Lawrence Estate.

One of the largest deals in Lawrence, L. I., for some time has been negotiated by J. Edgar Leaycraft & Co., who have sold for Brown Brothers, to a client for occupancy, the large property known as the Loughman estate, consisting of four acres, a fine country house, and outbuildings. The property has a large frontage on Briarwood Crossing, adjoining the Rockaway Hunting Club, and is one of the show places of that popular Summer section. It has been held at $125,000.

The former owner, M. F. Loughman, gave this estate in part payment to Brown Brothers a few months ago for the twelve-story apartment on the south side of Seventy-second Street, just east of Broadway, erected last year by Brown Brothers, and opened last October. It was the first big apartment on Seventy-second Street, with the exception of the Chatsworth, overlooking the river, and was so successful that Brown Brothers are now erecting a similar structure at 105 to 109 West Seventy-second Street.

Record Rent on 34th Street.

A record rental is said to have been paid for a store on Thirty-fourth Street by the Eureka Vacuum Cleaning Company, which leased No. 11 at an annual rental of $24,000. The store has a frontage of 25 feet and a depth of 126, and is owned by Francis A. Harris.

Speculators Buying on East Side.

An interesting transaction in the neighborhood of the proposed Queensboro Bridge Plaza was reported yesterday by A. V. McColter, Jr., who sold to Spencer T. Horton for investment 225 West Sixtieth Street, a private dwelling, on a lot 20 by 100.5.

A number of other parcels have recently been sold in the blocks adjacent to Fifty-ninth Street, between Second and Lexington Avenues. The buyers are reported to be operators, and values have already taken a decided upward trend. This is due in a measure, however, not only to the proposed plaza, but to the building of the Lexington Avenue subway.

City Buys Bath Site.

The H. M. Weill Company has sold for Annie Mitchell the three-story and basement dwelling 407 West Twenty-eighth Street, plot 20 by 100, to the city, who will use the same for the building of a public bath, and, for Florence Cahen, the two three-story and basement dwellings, on a plot 37.6 by 98.9, 411 to 413 West Twenty-eighth Street to the city, which is also to be used for a public bath.

Bronx Borough.

M. Meyer has purchased for investment 1,085 Simpson Street, a five-story new-law tenement, on a plot 38 by 88 by 100. A. G. Bechmann negotiated the sale. The same broker has also sold for a client to M. J. Gaffney twenty lots on 213th Street, between Woodlawn Road and Jerome Avenue.

Platt & Albert have sold for Amelia Koch 2,021 La Fontaine Avenue, Bronx, a five-story apartment house, 37.6 by 100, to Irving G. Schreyer.

The J. Schwartz Contracting Company has purchased from H. B. Davis a plot of lots on the east side of Webster Avenue, 100 feet north of 182d Street, measuring 120 by 90. The buyers will immediately improve with three five-story apartment buildings.

The Corporation of the City of New York has purchased from the Sentinal Realty and Construction Company, of which Seymour Mork is President, the entire block front of fourteen lots on the north side of East 207th Street, between Decatur and Hull Avenues, to be used as a site for a new school which the city proposes to build. W. E. & W. I. Brown were the brokers in the transaction.

Long Island.

The Rickert-Finlay Realty Company has sold to Kenneth Gardner, of the law firm of Wallace, Butler & Brown, a large plot on the north side of Arleigh Road, between Park Road and Beverly Lane, Kensington, Great Neck, on which Mr. Gardner will build a residence for his own occupancy.

The plot is located in the woods section of Kensington, and has a magnificent view of Manhasset Bay and the Wheatley Hills.

The David P. Leahy Realty Company has sold at South Ozone Park, Queens Borough, to James McLaughlin 184 Brinkmeyer Avenue, a four-room house, for $2,473; to Arthur R. Allen 527 Boss Avenue, a six-room house, for $3,650, and to E. Kirby 511 Boss Avenue, a similar house for the same price.

The Neponset Realty Company has sold at Neponsit a plot of six lots fronting on the ocean to Robert A. Drysdale, who has had plans prepared for a fifteen-room house, to be built immediately; to P. Harvey Middleton, a nine-room house and plot 40 by 100 on Dakota Street; to Mrs. Charles H. Crooks a plot 40 by 100 on Seminole Street, and to Charles H. Crooks a plot 40 by 100 on Ontario Street.

The Stormfeltz-Lovely-Neville Company has sold at Hicksville a quarter acre on Main Parkway to W. A. Strandell; a half acre on Pine Drive to William Otto; a quarter acre on Northern Parkway to Fred Rosser, and on Northern Parkway and Oak Drive a half acre to P. Gillings.

The Lewis H. May Company has resold for James Ross the Arklow, fronting on Ocean Avenue, Far Rockaway, to Eugene L. Lezinsky, for occupancy. The property was purchased at the recent E. B. Corey auction sale.

Connecticut Farms Sold.

Adams & Keeler have sold to Col. Louis D. Conley the Drias Selleck farm at Ridgefield, Conn., consisting of 250 acres. The same brokers have sold to Mrs. H. D. Colt the home of John A. King on High Ridge, Ridgefield, Conn., formerly known as the Peter Palley place.

Leases.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased in the new nineteen-story Masonic Building, northeast corner of Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, the second floor to the M. Wilbur Dyer Company, at about $8,000 per annum; a part of the third floor to the Epstein Underwear Company; one-half of the eighth floor to Harris Goldman; a portion of the tenth floor to Philip Mark & Co.; one-third of the ninth floor to the Antoinette Garment Manufacturing Company; and other space to Mendelson Brothers of San Francisco, Bernard Kutz, Bohm Pearl Button Works, Claremont Waist Company, Simone Cap Company, Heilbron & Berger, and Morris Hyman & Co.

Senior & Stout have leased for the Thacher estate the four-story dwelling 57 West Fiftieth Street to Dr. Dan S. Dougherty; also for Auguste Rosenberg the four-story dwelling at 122 West Fifty-eighth Street to Mrs. A. K. Reynolds.

Building Loans.

A building loan of $325,000 has been obtained by the Century Holding Company from the estate of Sender Jarmulowsky on the new loft to be erected on the north side of Forty-fifth Street, 325 feet west of Fifth Avenue, a plot 100 by 100.5.

John V. S. Oddie has secured for John T. Haugaard, builder, of Richmond Hill, L. I., a building and permanent loan of $60,000 on six new houses now in the course of construction at Kew Gardens, Richmond Hill, L. I. The Nassau-Suffolk Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company were the lenders.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The Western disturbance has advanced slowly eastward and Friday night its centre was over the upper lake region. The influence of this storm is widespread, and during the last twenty-four hours it caused showers and thunderstorms in all districts from the Mississippi Valley east to and including the Atlantic States. There were very heavy local rains in the South Atlantic and Gulf States and the Ohio Valley. The weather has become fair over the Plains States and it remains fair over the plateau and Rocky Mountain regions and the Pacific States.

Temperatures are somewhat higher in the Plains States and the Rocky Mountain region and have changed little elsewhere, readings being below the seasonal averages in nearly all parts of the country.

Indications are that the disturbance that is now central over the upper lake region will advance slowly east and be attended by unsettled weather and showers in practically all districts east of the Mississippi River on Saturday and Sunday.

Fair weather will prevail Saturday and Sunday from the Mississippi Valley over the Rocky Mountain region.

No important temperature changes are indicated for any part of the country during the next forty-eight hours.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate to brisk south; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate south; South Atlantic Coast, slight, variable.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have moderate to brisk south winds and overcast, showery weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York and New England—Showers Saturday and Sunday; moderate to brisk south winds.

New Jersey, Western New York, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Showers Saturday and probably Sunday; moderate south winds.

	1911.	1912.		1911.	1912.
3 A. M.	70	67	4 P. M.	83	73

12 M.	78	74	12 P. M.	75	..

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 70; for the corresponding date last year it was 76; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 73.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 70; at 8 P. M. it was 70. Maximum temperature, 74 degrees at 12 noon; minimum, 67 degrees at 1 A. M. Humidity, 90 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 81 per cent. at 8 P. M.

EDUCATION NOTES.

Lawyer Denis R. O'Brien of 165 Broadway has brought suit against the Board of Education on behalf of William W. Nutting of 3,750 Broadway, a teacher in Public School 10, Eagle Avenue and 162d Street, the Bronx. Mr. Nutting has been teaching in that school since 1899, and in February, 1912, was put in charge of a graduating class. The suit is to compel the Board of Education to pay him the salary he would have received under the old schedules prior to 1912. Under the Grady law, it is said, the Board of Education could not be made to pay the salary attached to the position prior to the going into effect of the equal-pay schedules, but the Colne bill, which became law last April, rehabilitated the schedule so as to entitle teachers, who were in the service prior to Jan. 1, 1912, but appointed since that date to graduating classes, to the salary which they would have received if the old law had remained in effect.

Mr. O'Brien said yesterday that it was an interesting but involved question. Mr. Nutting's suit is a test case. There are about fifteen other teachers who have engaged Mr. O'Brien in the same matter, and if the Nutting claim is decided favorably these other teachers will benefit accordingly. Mr. O'Brien has filed a mandamus in the case, the Corporation Counsel has been served with the papers, and argument will be heard in Part I. of the Supreme Court on Monday.

'WAR' BEGINS TO-DAY; CITY UNDER ATTACK

20,000 TROOPS IN THE FIELD

Best Fliers in United States Army Aviation Squad to Take Part—O'Ryan Commands New Yorkers.

Special to The New York Times.

STRATFORD, Conn., Aug. 9.—The troops which are to participate in the war manoeuvres, the culminating problem of which will be an attack upon and defense of New York City, are headed for the hills of Southwestern Connecticut, and by to-morrow noon half of the 20,000 regulars and National Guardsmen who are to figure in the war game will have pitched their camps in the battle zone.

Some of the regular troops have already arrived, and in these are included the Aviation Corps, officers of which are assembling their machines in preparation for some of the most important military aviation tests ever undertaken in this country. The aerial reconnoissance work should be in full swing by Monday, and from then on until the manoeuvres end with the "Battle of New York" the army fliers, weather conditions permitting, are expected to be in action most of the time from sunup until dark.

Capt. Charles DeF. Chandler will command the aviation squad, and will have under him Capt. Hennessy and Lieuts. Arnold, Milling and Kirtland, three of the most experienced aviators in the United States Army.

The first flight in camp was made to-night by the Burgess-Wright machine with Lieut. Milling in the seat. Conditions were excellent and he made a spiral ascent to 2,000 feet around the wireless aerial and then with a sweep descended to the starting point.

Major Gen. O'Ryan, commanding the New York National Guard, came into camp unexpectedly during the afternoon, driving over from New York in the machine of Lieut. Col. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Gov. Dix will arrive Sunday. Gov. Foss will be with the Massachusetts troops, but when he will call upon Gen. Bliss is not known. Rain was falling to-night, bringing relief from the dusty conditions of the roads leading into the camp.

Of the 20,000 troops on the way to the Connecticut battlefields, nearly half are from New York City. Every military organization in Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx, with the exception of the Coast Artillery organizations, have been ordered to Connecticut. All in all, New York will be represented by six regiments of infantry, two regiments of cavalry, one regiment of engineers, two companies of the Signal Corps, and a fully equipped field hospital and ambulance service.

In command of this army of New Yorkers will be Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, who recently succeeded Major Gen. Charles F. Roe in command of the National Guard of New York. It will be Gen. O'Ryan's first appearance at manoeuvres as the commander of the New York State forces.

The New York troops are organized into two brigades of infantry and one of cavalry, the other organizations operating independently, so far as brigade formation is concerned. One brigade of infantry will operate with the Blue Army, as the army of defense will be known, while the other brigade will be in the Red, or invading army. The cavalry will also probably be divided between the two opposing armies.

In command of the Blues, on the skill and grit of which will depend the theoretical safety of the metropolis, will be Brig. Gen. Albert L. Mills, U. S. A., former Superintendent of the Military Academy at West Point, and at present in command of the Department of the Gulf, with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga. Opposed to him will be another New Yorker in the person of Brig. Gen. Frederick A. Smith, commanding officer of the Department of the Missouri.

The Red line will be east of and the Blue west of the Housatonic River, the line of battle extending for a distance of about twenty miles, the battle area being in the thirty miles radius between Danbury and New Haven. In the arrangement of the instructional programme neither army can battle outside of that area.

The theoretical war that is now raging in New England started more than six weeks ago, when a certain unnamed foreign Power is supposed to have declared war against this country, defeated the Atlantic Fleet, and then established an effective blockade of Hampton Roads, Va. In the language of the General Staff of the Army, this is what has happened to the United States since June 25 last:

> Seizing a favorable opportunity, a European power (Red) unexpectedly precipitated a war with the United States (Blue) on June 25, defeated its principal fleet, and blockaded the remainder in Hampton Roads on June 30.
> On June 25 the United States ordered the concentration of the regular army and its recruitment to war strength; the organized militia was called into the service of the Federal Government, and the President called for 500,000 volunteers.
>
> By July 17 one division of regulars and two brigades of regular cavalry were concentrated at Boston; two more divisions (incomplete) of regulars and one brigade of regular cavalry were concentrating near New York and Washington. The organized militia had concentrated in State camps, part having been moved to the Atlantic and Gulf seaboards and the remainder moving in the same direction. The volunteers were being recruited and their training had begun.
>
> On July 20 the Red Government suddenly began landing an expedition of 100,000 men near New Bedford, Mass., and quickly overcame the weak detachments of Blue troops in that vicinity. An advance on Boston was at once begun, and on Aug. 5 the Blue field army (80,000 men hastily concentrated, comprising practically all the available regulars and instructed militia,) was defeated near Boston and retired via Worcester toward Albany, its new base, vigorously pursued by the Red force.
>
> On July 24, when the First Red Army occupied Providence, R. I., in its advance on Boston, the First Red Division was detached, apparently to move westward and cover the exposed flank of the Red line in communication, protect the line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and threaten the water system of New York City. This division moved west, unopposed, its detachments occupying the important junction points east of Providence to the Connecticut River, and as far north as Hartford. Small garrisons were left at New London, Willimantic, Hartford, and Middletown to protect the railroad facilities.
>
> On Aug. 9 a second Red expedition of 100,000 men began landing near New Bedford, and the First Red Army passed through Worcester in pursuit of the main Blue force retiring on Springfield. The Blue troops near New York City, just organized into the Provisional Blue Division, were rushed toward Danbury and Bridgeport. The leading troops of the First Red Division reached New Haven and drove back a Blue regiment which had just arrived at that city, and a Red detachment occupied Waterbury.
>
> The Blue Government had succeeded in withdrawing to New York City and Albany the bulk of the railroad transportation of the New England railroads. However, enough was collected by the Red forces to provide for supplying the troops, but there is practically no available transportation for moving troops. A large portion of the rolling stock withdrawn to New York City was used in concentrating the First Blue Army at Boston. This shortage, together with the demands on the railroads in transporting other troops and supplies from the Middle West, has seriously interfered with the movement of the Provisional Blue Division from New York City toward Bridgeport.
>
> Several secondary Blue naval craft occupy Long Island Sound, and are able to interfere seriously with the Red transportation over the shore line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and to give support to the Blue detachment near Milford.

Brig. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, commanding the Eastern Division of the army, on Governors Island, as manoeuvre commander and chief umpire, will within the next few days further acquaint Gen. Mills and Gen. Smith of the nature of the obstacles which they are up against, and it will then devolve upon those experienced soldiers to try to outwit the other and win a warlike triumph in a time of profound peace.

Gen. Bliss will have his headquarters near this place, and under him will be a large number of regular army officers who will assist him as umpires and observers. These officers come from all parts of the country east of the Mississippi. Many of these officers have arrived, and all are expected to report to Gen. Bliss by noon to-morrow.

The full list of military organizations that are due to take the field to-morrow is as follows:

One aviation section, United States Army.

Intense interest in the coming of the troops is already noticeable in the country where the action will take place, and the timid are nerving themselves to withstand the din that will follow every time the opposing forces come into contact. Many artillery duels are expected, since in no manoeuvres ever before held in this country has so large a force of field artillery participated as will take part in the exercises that begin in earnest to-morrow afternoon.

If the weather is good thousands are expected to visit the camps Sunday, and, as the Connecticut roads are good, it is believed that the automobilists who will motor into the war country will total far into the thousands. Naturally all of the country folk who live anywhere near the scene of hostilities will be on hand whenever possible to watch the regular and his civilian brother fight to a finish a peaceful campaign for the possession of New York.

Gen. Bliss's staff of assistants is composed of the following officers:

Col. W. A. Mann, General Staff, Chief of Staff; Lieut. Col. W. G. Haan, Assistant Chief of Staff; Major G. T. Patterson, Adjutant General; Col. S. C. Mills, Inspector General; Col. J. A. Connecticut Breaks Her Starboard Crankshaft and Nebraska Hits Uncharted Shoals.

CRIPPLED AT MANOEUVRES

Admiral Osterhaus's Flagship to be Ordered Here for Repairs—Nebraska Is Sent to Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 9.—The battleship Connecticut, flying the flag of Rear Admiral Osterhaus, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, arrived to-night from the manoeuvres in the vicinity of Block Island with her starboard crankshaft split.

The break occurred yesterday morning, when the Connecticut was going through manoeuvres at a fifteen-knot speed, but it was not discovered until after the ship came to anchor. Then one of the machinists detected the break. The flagship will likely go to the New York or League Island Navy Yard for about three weeks.

The battleship Nebraska, Capt. Spencer S. Wood commanding, touched bottom in twenty-four feet of water on an uncharted shoal about four miles west by south of Point Judith Light on Tuesday. Immediately the signal for collision drill was sounded. All bulkheads were closed and the ship was stopped. Capt. Wood ordered divers over the side, discovering boulders covering an acre, and not less than twenty-four feet of water over it, which is a serious menace.

Pumps were started, and this kept the ship from danger, although her injuries are serious. It was learned to-night that the Nebraska, which was sent to the Boston Navy Yard by orders from Admiral Osterhaus in obedience to instructions from Acting Secretary of the Navy Beekman Winthrop, cannot be ready for the yearly target practice, scheduled from Aug. 21 to Sept. 15 in Southern waters.

The Nebraska and the Connecticut, with the other ships of the North Atlantic fleet, left Newport last Monday for a week's naval engagement in the vicinity of Block Island, Vineyard Haven, and Point Judith.

In spite of the fetich about the interference of politics with business in Presidential campaigns, there seems to be no one factor that has as great an influence on the trend of business this year as the outlook for the crops. Not only the general condition of the crops is essential to be informed upon, but the distribution by sections is of great importance in explaining trade movements. Handy tables for quickly getting the probable crops by States, when the Government Crop Report is out, will be published on the Monday preceding each report day in The New York Times Weekly Financial Review.
